

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

And then the House adjourned.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1854.

Mr. Henry Thompson, the member returned to serve in this House from the county of Ohio; and Mr. John C. McCreary, the member returned to serve from the county of Simpson, appeared, and having taken the oath prescribed by the Constitution, took their seats.

A message was received from the Senate by Mr. Stone.

MR. SPEAKER: I am directed by the Senate to inform this House that the Senate having met, formed a quorum, and elected their officers, are now ready to proceed to legislative business. That they had appointed a committee on their part to act in conjunction with a committee on the part of this House, to wait on the Governor and inform him that they are now ready to receive such communication, by way of message, as he may think proper to make.

Whereupon, Messrs. Huston, Bates, Musselman, Silvertooth, and King, were appointed a committee on the part of this House.

After a short time, Mr. Huston, from said committee, reported that they had performed the duty assigned them, and was informed by the Governor that he would forthwith make a communication to them in their respective chambers by way of message.

A message was received from the Governor by Mr. Metcalfe, Secretary of State:

MR. SPEAKER: I am directed by the Governor to lay before this House a message in writing:

The said message was then taken up, and read as follows, viz:

*Gentlemen of the Senate
and House of Representatives:*

It affords me pleasure to congratulate you on the general prosperity of the State, and the happy condition of our constituents. Since the adjournment of the last Legislature the people of our beloved Commonwealth have enjoyed unusually good health; our fields have produced abundant crops, and all the industrial pursuits have been attended with great prosperity; the public credit has been preserved, and the public peace maintained. The very great prosperity of our people affords abundant cause of gratulation, and we should return our gratitude and thanks to Almighty God, for the various and innumerable blessings He has, in His beneficent providence, bestowed upon us as a State and a people.

The Auditor found it necessary, to enable him to conduct with facility the business of his department, to publish a report for the year 1852, which will be laid before you. The public service requires that the reports of the Auditor of Public Accounts, and Superintendent of Public Instruction, should be published annually; and I recommend that you pass a law requiring it to be done. The annual publication of those reports would not increase the cost of the public printing. Under the present law, the matter contained in them would be published biennially, at the meeting of the Legislature. The annual publication of the matter contained in those reports would greatly facilitate the business in those departments.

From the statements furnished me by the Auditor of Public Accounts, I am enabled to lay before you the condition of the Treasury on the 10th of October, 1852, and on the 10th of October, 1853, and its estimated condition on the 10th of October, 1854. I refer you to the reports of the Auditor for a more detailed statement of the condition, and probable condition of the Treasury, at those several periods:

Receipts into the treasury from 11th October, 1851, to 10th October, 1852,	-	$779,293 45
Add balance in the treasury 10th day of October, 1851,	-	4,592 12

Amount of expenses from 11th October, 1851, to 10th October, 1852,	-	724,694 77
Leaving in the Treasury, Revenue Department, on 10th October, 1852,	-	59,190 80
Of this belongs to—
School Fund,	-	$55,651 88
Revenue Fund,	-	3,538 92
Total, as above,	-	59,190 80

Leaving in the Treasury, Revenue Department, on 10th October, 1853,	-	187,632 23
Of this belongs to—
Revenue Fund, (of which the sum of $60,000 has been transferred to the Sinking Fund,)	-	$96,505 11

Sinking Fund,	-	13,369 45
Making,	-	187,632 23
Supposed receipts for the year ending 10th of October, 1854, after deducting the amount supposed to belong to the School and Sinking Funds,	-	410,493 90

Making,	-	598,126 13
Deduct supposed expenditures for year ending October 10, 1854,	-	$352,000 00
Amount of debts due from the Commonwealth,	-	99,369 69
Amount due Sinking Fund, out of the balance in the Treasury, on the 10th October, 1853, as above,	-	60,000 00
	-	511,369 69
Leaving,	-	86,756 44

Which amount, it is supposed, will be in the Treasury on the 10th day of October, 1854; all of which, except $10,000, will be transferred to the Sinking Fund.

The Auditor states, that no extraordinary appropriation is included in this statement, as his department has no certain means of ascertaining matters of this kind, and, consequently, if any such appropriation be necessary, it will be an additional charge for the year 1854; and, in that case, the supposed balance for 1854 will be reduced to that extent.

It will be perceived that the receipts into the Treasury for the fiscal year ending 10th of October, 1852, exceed by a considerable sum the receipts for the year ending 10th of October, 1853, notwithstanding the increase of the valuation of taxable property in the latter year over the former. This difference was occasioned mainly by a larger amount of revenue of 1852 being paid into the Treasury by the sheriffs, prior to the 10th of October of that year, than is usual, and by the fact, that the school interest, which had been withheld by the Sinking Fund, was ordered to be paid by the Commissioners, in the month of September, 1851, as stated in my message to the last General Assembly, and paid into the Treasury in the fiscal year ending 10th of October, 1852.

For a detailed account of the management, operations, and resources of the Sinking Fund, you are referred to the reports of the Auditor and the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, which will be laid before you.

The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, in order to make the money on hand as productive as possible, until such time as they could use it in payment of the public debt, in pursuance of the law authorizing them to deposit any of the money of said fund, in any of the banks of the state, upon terms agreed upon by the parties, deposited in November last, in the Farmers Bank of Kentucky, at Frankfort, sixty thousand dollars on interest, at the rate of six per cent. per annum. The Commissioners are paying off the public debt with the surplus on hand, as fast as they can procure it under the existing laws.

I recommend that you pass a law authorizing the payment of the Craddock fund. The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund have ample means to pay it. It should be paid, and the Sinking Fund no longer charged with the payment of interest upon it.

It would facilitate the business of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, if a majority of the Commissioners resided at the capital. I recommend that the Secretary of State, and the Cashier of the Frankfort Branch of the Bank of Kentucky, be added to the board of Commissioners; this would make the organization of the board as it was before the revised statutes went into effect.

It would benefit the operations of the Sinking Fund department, if the revenue was made payable on the 15th of December instead of the 15th of January, as it now is. A semi-annual installment of interest upon the state debt falls due on the 1st of January, and the payment of the revenue before that time is important. I recommend that this change in the time of paying the revenue be made.

It will be seen by reference to the Auditor's reports that the increase in the valuation of taxable property in the Commonwealth in 1852 over the year 1851, was $16,048,908, making an increase of revenue of $31,115 18; and that the increase in the valuation in 1853, over the year 1852 is $33,825,975; making an increase of revenue of $51,448 95.

You are referred to the report of the Treasurer for a statement of the Treasury department during the past two years.

For the purpose of carrying the registration laws fully into effect, the Auditor was compelled to call in the aid of a skillful physician. I was satisfied of the importance of this course. A full report will be made by the Auditor on this subject; and a fair allowance should be made for the service rendered by the physician.

The business in the Auditor's office has increased to such an extent, that it is almost impossible for the force employed in that department to do the labor assigned them. Notwithstanding the Auditor, his assistant, and the clerks in his office, devote themselves with assiduity to their official duties from eight o'clock in the morning until ten at night, for at least six months in the year, they are unable to keep up with the business of the department. I recommend that you pass a law making an appropriation, which will enable the Auditor to employ two additional clerks in his department.

The Treasurer should be allowed a clerk in his department. I recommend that you pass a law allowing him one; and that you make an appropriation which will enable him to employ a competent clerk to assist him in the duties of his office.

I subjoin a statement of the public debt. In this statement is included the debt due to individuals, corporations, and that due to the Board of Education:

Of the school bonds the sum of $1,250,270 01 bears five per cent. interest, and the sum of $67,500, six per cent.

To pay the public debt the state has the following resources, if they could be applied to that purpose: $939,000 of stock in the Bank of Kentucky; $290,000 of stock in the Northern Bank of Kentucky; $40,000 of stock in the Bank of Louisville; and $600,000 of stock in the Southern Bank of Kentucky; to which may be added $150,000 of stock in the Lexington and Frankfort Railroad, and $74,519 50 bonds on the Louisville and Frankfort Railroad Company—making in all the sum of $2,094,119 50. The state has, in addition, $2,094,239 98 stock in turnpike roads—supposed to be worth about twenty-five or thirty cents to the dollar—besides her investments in rivers, &c.

To provide for the payment of the interest and principal of the state debt, the Sinking Fund was established by law and dedicated by the constitution. The resources of the fund cannot be diminished, but may be increased to any extent which may become necessary to enable it to accomplish the great object of its creation. It should be so managed, if possible, as to secure the final extinguishment of the debt without a resort to increased taxation. Our policy is to pay off our indebtedness as fast as our resources will allow. The credit of the state stands deservedly high abroad, as well as at home, and Kentucky will never suffer her honor to be tarnished, but will meet promptly every dollar of her debt at its maturity, as well as the interest upon it as it accrues.

In compliance with the acts establishing the Southern Bank of Kentucky, I have, since the last session of the legislature, subscribed for and on account of the state, one thousand shares, amounting to one hundred thousand dollars of the capital stock of said bank. Gov. Crittenden, whilst in office, had subscribed five thousand shares, amounting to five hundred thousand dollars, as stated in my message to the last legislature. The state now holds stock in said bank to the amount of six hundred thousand dollars, in payment of which the bonds of the state have been issued for that amount, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars thereof by Gov. Helm, and the remainder by me. The bank is bound by the provisions of its charter to pay the interest on the bonds, and I am happy to be able to inform you, that so far, not only has this been done, but the state has realized a handsome profit from the dividends upon its stock, after the payment of the interest upon the bonds.

The existing banks of the state are in a sound and prosperous condition, and furnish a currency which compares favorably with that of other states, for its uniform value and stability—the public confidence in their ability to meet all their engagements is unshaken. I am not prepared, however, to advocate or encourage a further increase of banks or bank capital; on the contrary, I am fully persuaded that the number of banks and amount of bank capital in Kentucky, are already sufficiently great, and that no increase of either should be made. An additional quantity of bank paper thrown into circulation cannot, it is believed, add to the substantial wealth or prosperity of the country, but might, in time, seriously retard our progress in both. We should at all times guard against an unsafe expansion of the currency.

The report of the President of the Board of Internal Improvement will make you acquainted with the condition of that branch of the public service. Since the wholesome provision which the present constitution has made against the increase of our public debt, no effort has been made to carry on works of internal improvement on the part of the state, and it is presumed that such an effort will not soon be made; our policy should be rather to provide for the extinguishment of the existing debt than to think of enlarging it. It is greatly to be feared that the system of creating large county debts for internal improvement purposes, may result in serious injury, not only to the counties involved, but to the state at large; and, whilst I am at all times disposed to defer to your better judgment, I cannot withhold the expression of my deliberate conviction that the creation of such burdens upon the counties, is founded in an unwise policy. Our appellate court has characterized the laws authorizing them as a species of legislation peculiarly liable to abuse, and to an unjust and oppressive operation upon portions of the local communities to be affected by it; which, if carried to excess, may produce an indebtedness as burdensome to the citizens of the whole state as that against which the thirty-sixth section of the second article of the constitution intended to guard the commonwealth.

Whilst I entertain these views, I am at the same time gratified that our citizens have given so much evidence of the undaunted energy which they possess in carrying on valuable improvements in the different sections of the state, for the purpose of developing our abundant resources, facilitating trade and travel, and adding to the wealth and general prosperity of the commonwealth; and I feel an abiding conviction, as earnest as I have ever entertained upon any subject, that however much I may deprecate the species of legislation to which I have referred, there can be no doubt that the counties which have incurred debts, for those works of improvement, will maintain their credit and faith untarnished, and promptly meet every dollar of the burdens they have imposed on themselves.

I invite your attention to the affairs of the Penitentiary. The number of persons in confinement on the 20th day of October, 1851, as shown by the report of the Keeper to the last legislature, was one hundred and sixty-six. Received into the prison from the 20th day of October, 1851, to the 1st day of December, 1853, one hundred and eighty-eight; making three hundred and fifty-four. The number discharged during the same time was one hundred and sixty-one, escaped two, died six, leaving in confinement on the 1st day of December, 1853, one hundred and eighty-five; of this number there are one hundred and seventy white males and fifteen colored males. I refer you to the report of the Keeper and Agent for a statement of the management of the affairs of the Prison for the past two years.

The Deaf and Dumb Asylum, the Lunatic Asylum, and the Asylum for the education of the Blind, should continue to receive the protecting care of the government. The unfortunate inmates of those institutions have claims upon your benevolence and sympathy which will not be disregarded. You will be made acquainted with their condition and management by the reports of those under whose superintendence they are placed, which will be laid before you.

In obedience to an act of the legislature, approved January 7th, 1852, "entitled an act for the benefit of the Kentucky institution for the education of the blind," I appointed commissioners to select a site for the location of the institution, and to make a plan of a building for the same. The commissioners selected for the site ten acres of ground, within about a half mile of the limits of the city of Louisville, on the Shelbyville turnpike road; they also reported a plan for the building; which site for the location, and plan for the building, I approved, and ordered the purchase of the land selected for the site to be completed, and the building to be erected, with the exception of the dome and porticos—these I directed should not be erected unless the legislature should make an appropriation for that purpose. My object in directing the dome and porticos not to be erected unless the legislature should authorize it, was to keep the work ordered to be done within the means of the institution. I was informed by the president and board of visitors of the institution, that the porticos and dome were ornamental and would add but little to the usefulness of the building, and that they could be erected, if the legislature saw fit to order them, at a subsequent time. My object was to have a building erected and so far finished as to be occupied and used, for the purpose for which it was intended, with the means on hand. I herewith transmit the report of the commissioners, the plan of the building, the resolutions passed by the board of visitors recommending the plan, and a letter of an architect to the board of visitors giving an estimate of the cost of the building on the plan approved, which accompanied the report of the commissioners to me—also, my orders approving the site selected and the plan of the building, and directing the purchase of the land for the site to be completed and the building to be erected. The erection of the building has been commenced by the board of visitors of the institution, and I refer you to their report, which will be laid before you, for its progress and condition.

The fence around the capitol square is very much dilapidated; so much so, that it will be impossible to keep the grounds and buildings secure from depredation without a new one. The grounds should be enclosed with a good and substantial fence. The superintendent of the public property is authorized by law, under the orders of the governor, to have repairs made to the fence, but he has no authority to build one. I recommend that you pass a law authorizing him to have a good and substantial fence built around the capitol square.

The Commissioners to prepare a Code of Practice, both civil and criminal, in this commonwealth, have been engaged in completing and perfecting the work assigned them by the constitution, and will report the result of their labors to you at an early day. I recommend their report for your consideration and adoption. Since the adjournment of the last general assembly John W. Stevenson, Esq., has been appointed by me to fill a vacancy in the board.

After the adoption of the Revised Statutes, the legislature adjourned without providing for their publication, and without making to the Commissioners who prepared them, any compensation for their services. Two of them, believing that the publication ought to be made under the superintendence of the Commissioners, or some of them, determined to publish the work for the use of the state, upon their own responsibility. The publication of the Revised Statutes, in a convenient and well arranged form, was accordingly made by them in the summer of 1852. It was highly important for them to be distributed as speedily as possible to the various officers entitled to them, by their own provisions, but there was no law to authorize the distribution of them at the public expense; they were, however, distributed without delay to the several counties, along with the twelfth volume of Ben. Monroe's reports of the decisions of the court of appeals, by the Public Printer, A. G. Hodges, Esq., at his own expense.

The distribution of that volume of the decisions was expedited nearly two years by this arrangement, as it could not have been sent out at the expense of the state until the acts of the present session of the legislature would be distributed. Great benefit has resulted to the public, not only from the preparation and publication of the Revised Statutes, but also from the early distribution of them, and the decisions of the appellate court. I recommend the passage of a law making a sufficient appropriation to pay for the number of volumes of the Revised Statutes which have been distributed to the officers of the state, as well as to make ample compensation to the Commissioners for their services in preparing them, and to reimburse Mr. Hodges for the expenses incurred by him in distributing them and the decisions of the court of appeals.

The time which has elapsed since the Revised Statutes took effect, has afforded an opportunity for the discovery of any imperfections which may exist in them. You have seen their practical operation and are doubtless prepared to make such amendments to them as experience may have shown to be necessary.

The law requires a vacancy in the office of justice of the peace, to be filled by the appointment of the governor, temporarily, until the succeeding May or August election, and the remaining vacancy to be then filled by the people of the district. I recommend that it be so changed as to authorize the entire vacancy whenever it occurs, to be filled by the people; upon a writ of election issued by the county court; or that the power of appointment now vested in the governor, to fill the vacancy temporarily, be conferred upon the presiding judge of the county court and justices of the peace of the county. The present plan is often attended with delay and is in many respects inconvenient. The people of the district, or the local authorities of the county, having a better acquaintance than the governor, with the qualifications of those from whom a choice is to be made, would be prepared to fill the vacancy with a competent person without delay. Vacancies in other county offices are not filled by the appointment of the governor, and there is no reason why a vacancy in the office of a justice of the peace should form an exception to the rule.

The laws prohibiting betting on elections, were repealed by the Revised Statutes. Since the Revised Statutes went into operation, there has been no law in the commonwealth, prohibiting this pernicious practice. In order to preserve the public morals, and protect the purity of the elective franchise, I recommend that you pass such laws, as will suppress, if possible, this evil, which has increased to an alarming extent, since the laws prohibiting it were repealed.

The Common School system will demand your attention. It affords me very great pleasure to inform you that since the adjournment of the last legislature, the interest which has accrued on the bonds due to the Board of Education has been promptly paid by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund; and that all the means appropriated by law for Common School education, have been applied to that purpose. The system is in operation in every county in the commonwealth; and as its benefits have been extended among the people, it has grown in interest and favor. In a free country there can be no question of such great and paramount importance, as that of universal education. This is a subject upon which all can most cheerfully and cordially unite. All the means appropriated by law to sustain Common Schools should be sacredly applied to that purpose, and should never be diverted or withheld. To see that the School Fund is never diminished, but on all proper occasions increased, until it shall be sufficiently large to extend its benefits to every child in the commonwealth, is a sacred duty, which you, as well as those who come after you, should not, and doubtless will not, fail to perform. This is a subject to which every citizen, who is desirous of promoting virtue, preserving order, elevating labor, and transmitting to posterity, unimpaired, our free institutions, will earnestly devote his attention.

There has been no time in our history, when the great and glorious cause of free education, or any proposition calculated to promote or protect it, has been submitted to the people, but that they have responded in a manner calculated to silence the clamors of its opponents, and fully to show that the people of Kentucky, from its centre to its circumference, are ready to bear most cheerfully, any burthens necessary to foster and support it. The best surety we can have, that morality, virtue, and religion are being promoted among us, is, that the children of the commonwealth are being educated. Educate the children of the state, disseminate intelligence among the people, and virtue and morality will not only be extended, and more widely diffused, but labor will be elevated and dignified, and its productions increased by the application of knowledge and science to every branch of industry. By a more intelligent application of labor, the fields of the husbandman will produce more varied and abundant harvests, the workshops of the mechanic will be more prolific in the amount, elegance, and usefulness of their productions, and the various manufacturing and commercial interests of our people will be increased and promoted. An intelligent application of labor not only enriches and strengthens, but civilizes, refines, and exalts a people. A nation distinguished for the skillful and scientific application of its labor must also be distinguished for its wealth, civilization, and refinement.

In all governments, it is a matter of great importance that the people be educated; but in a government like ours, where sovereign power abides, both in theory and in fact, with the people, it is peculiarly important. The surest guaranty we can have for the continuance and perpetuity of our free institutions, is the education of our children. The children of to-day, are soon to fill the places we now occupy. To them is to be entrusted the destinies of the state. They are to occupy the bar, the bench, the pulpit, and other places of honor and trust; upon them will devolve the power, privilege, and duty of choosing all the officers of the government; they are to be the guardians of the honor, glory, and safety of the commonwealth. Sovereign power is to pass to them. Such considerations are certainly sufficient to inculcate the necessity of general and universal education.

"Knowledge is power." The strength of a republic exists in the virtue and intelligence of its citizens; and the broadest and strongest shield a free state can throw around its liberties, is the diffusion of intelligence among its people. I exhort you to foster and protect this great interest of the people. Kentucky, noted for the valor and chivalry of her sons, is far behind many of her sister states, in the glorious cause of Common School education. We should never relax our efforts in this great work, until we can proclaim to our sister states, and to the world, that Kentucky has provided the means to educate every child within her borders—and that every son and daughter of the state has the means of a Common School education brought to their doors as a free offering.

The chapter of the Revised Statutes concerning Common Schools, requires amendment. The law, as it now exists, is in many respects very defective; it is complex, and difficult to be understood, and inconvenient in its execution. The late Superintendent of Public Instruction, although he devoted himself with great zeal, energy, and ability, to the duties of his office, found it extremely difficult to carry out the provisions of the law. Its enactments have embarrassed the operations of the system. The board of education have had this subject under advisement, and will at an early day, submit for your consideration such amendments to the law, as will, in their judgment, be best calculated to perfect the system. I respectfully invite your attention to the suggestions they may make, and recommend the adoption of the amendments they may propose for its improvement. The great object should be to make the Common School system as simple as possible, so that it can be easily understood by the people, and to place the means appropriated by the state in a condition to be easily obtained by the schools.

In order to give such information to the school commissioners, trustees, &c., as was required by them to carry on the schools with facility, the late Superintendent of Public Instruction found it necessary to publish an annual report for the year 1852, which he did, upon consultation with the board of education and the executive. The report will be laid before you, and I invite your attention to the suggestions for the improvement of the school system therein contained. Nothing would have been saved to the state, by withholding the publication of the report until this time; under the provisions of the law, the matter contained in it would have been contained in the report of the Superintendent to the legislature at its present session.

During the last month, Dr. Robt. J. Breckinridge, who has for many years, with great efficiency and ability, discharged the duties of Superintendent of Public Instruction, resigned his office. I appointed Dr. John D. Matthews, a gentleman distinguished for learning and talents, to fill the vacancy. I refer you to his report for the detailed operations of the system, during the past year, and call your attention to such suggestions as he may make for the improvement of the system.

The annual resources of the School Fund are as follows:

Interest on $1,320,770 01, bonds of the state held by the Board of Education,	$ 67,013 50
Dividends on $73,500 of stock in the Bank of Kentucky, about	7,000 00
Two cents on each hundred dollars of taxable property, about	69,258 77
Tax on capital stock of the Farmers Bank of Kentucky, about	7,000 00
Tax on Safety Fund Bank of Kentucky, about	360 00
Tax on Commercial Bank of Kentucky, about	1,500 00
Total,	$ 152,139 27

The number of children in the state, between the ages of six and eighteen years, is about two hundred and nineteen thousand two hundred and thirty-nine.

The Kentucky State Medical Society, at its annual meetings, has published some valuable reports on vital statistics and various other important subjects; and much good is expected to result from the circulation of the information contained in those reports among the people. I understand that the society has appointed a committee to memorialize you as to the propriety of causing such of those reports as you may deem of sufficient general importance, to be published with the legislative reports. I respectfully invite your attention to this subject.

I earnestly recommend that you order a minute and thorough geological and agricultural survey of the state. Such a survey would be of incalculable benefit to the people of Kentucky. It would show the quantities, kinds, and varieties of the minerals of the state, and make known the geographical and geological position of the various marbles, building stones, rocks, soils, coals, iron and lead ores which abound in the state with a chemical analysis of each, making known their utility in agriculture, in the arts, and in manufactures. Coal, salt, saltpetre, lead, iron, marble, building stone, hydraulic limestone, &c., are found in the state, and some of them in large quantities; but their quantity, quality, variety, and location are very imperfectly known. The coal fields and the iron region, each occupy, it is thought, one fourth of the area of the state. Such a survey would collect, arrange, and systematize information on this subject, and thus put a mass of certain, reliable and important information, that could not be otherwise obtained, in a shape that would make it available to all. This information disseminated among the people, would give labor, employed in mining, an intelligent and certain direction, which would cause a rapid development of our vast mineral resources, and bring forth the rich mines of wealth now hidden beneath the surface of the earth, and locked up in our mountains.

The development of the mineral wealth of the state, and the opening of abundant supplies of cheap fuel would greatly increase our manufacturing, diversify labor, invite investments of capital, and make regions now sterile and worthless, prosperous and wealthy.

There is no class of the community who have so great an interest in a geological and agricultural survey, as the farmers. It would make known to them the elements of the soil, its nature, properties and capacity, in the different localities, and its adaptation to the various productions suited to our latitude and climate. Such information the intelligent farmers would appreciate, and apply in such a manner as to enrich their fields, increase the abundance and variety of their crops, extend the already vast agricultural resources of the state, and add to the wealth and prosperity of this numerous and enterprising class of our constituents.

Kentucky is far behind many of her sister states in this important matter. Almost every state in the Union has had a geological survey, and great advantages have resulted to those states from their labors in this field of science. Without such a survey, the mineral, agricultural and manufacturing resources of the state can never be fully known or developed. Our people are exhibiting a laudable and praiseworthy enterprise, in constructing railroads in various parts of the commonwealth. One great object of their construction is to pierce the coal and mineral regions, for the purpose of developing their resources, and obtaining cheap, certain and lasting supplies of coal for fuel and manufacturing purposes. Every person who has reflected on this subject in connection with the railroad improvements now contemplated and going on in Kentucky, must have felt the want of a geological survey. It is thought that the people of Kentucky lose annually, for the want of the information that would be imparted by such a survey, more than twice its cost. The cost of the work would be trifling when compared to the great, important and lasting benefits it would confer. You owe it to science, to the progressive spirit of the age in which we live, to the mining, manufacturing, agricultural and other industrial interests of the state to cause this work to be commenced without delay.

I invite your attention to the agricultural and mechanical interests of the state. In order to encourage these branches of industry, I recommend that you appropriate a sum of money to be expended in premiums to be awarded to those who produce the best fruits, grains, vegetables, animals, agricultural implements, and products of domestic manufacture. The premiums could be awarded at a state exhibition, or at the agricultural and mechanical exhibitions now established in various parts of the state, by agricultural societies. Such a distribution of premiums would be highly beneficial to this large producing class of our citizens. It would stimulate industry, cause the introduction of the best breeds of animals, the most useful products of mechanical skill, and the best kinds and varieties of grains and fruits—increase the mechanical, horticultural and agricultural wealth of the state, and add to the general prosperity. The farmers are by far the most numerous class of our people. They pay into the treasury about two-thirds of the state revenue. The prosperity of every country is regulated to a great extent by the condition of the agriculturists. All are dependent on them for the necessities of life. Heretofore, we have had very little, if any, legislation for the purpose of fostering and encouraging this numerous and meritorious class of our constituents. A large number of the states of the Union, for the purpose of encouraging and stimulating mechanical and agricultural industry, annually distribute state premiums at their industrial exhibitions, and the result has been most beneficial. One or two thousand dollars annually expended in this way, would be attended with great and lasting benefits to the state. The large and growing agricultural and mechanical interests of the state demand, at your hands, the most favorable consideration.

As the aggregate amount of appropriations to be made by you will be necessarily large, I cannot too strongly recommend the observance of the most rigid economy in all expenditures of the public money. Parsimony and extravagance are alike to be avoided. Our constituents do not demand the one and will not tolerate the other. They justly require of their official agents an economical administration of the government, together with a strict accountability of all those who have in any way the control of the revenues or finances of the state.

In my message to the last general assembly I recommended the passage of a law to lay off the state into congressional districts in such manner as should be fair and just towards all the citizens of the commonwealth; but as you are aware, no law was passed upon that subject. I now renew that recommendation and inform you that, since that time, I have received the accompanying official certificate from the Secretary of the Interior of the United States, dated August 2d, 1852, showing that the number of representatives in Congress apportioned to this state, under the last, or seventh enumeration of the inhabitants of the United States, is ten.

Since the adjournment of the last legislature, the state and the nation have been called to mourn the death of Henry Clay, distinguished alike for his lofty patriotism and commanding eloquence. His fame is inseparably connected with the history of the republic; and his eminent virtues live embalmed in the memories of the people of Kentucky, whom he so long and brilliantly served in the national councils. We have more recently been called to mingle our grief with Massachusetts for the loss of Daniel Webster, her most illustrious citizen. I herewith transmit a communication from the governor of South Carolina, and the resolves of the legislature of that state, offering fraternal condolence to the states of Kentucky and Massachusetts, upon the death of Mr. Clay and Mr. Webster.

South Carolina, too, has mourned the loss of her most distinguished statesman. Thus within a short space of time, Calhoun, Clay, and Webster, three of the most distinguished orators and statesmen of the republic have gone from us forever. That trio of illustrious orators and statesmen, who for near half a century, adorned our history, swayed the Cabinet, and enchained the Senate by their matchless eloquence, have passed from our midst; but their names and virtues will live with undiminished luster upon the pages of our country's history.

Alabama, as well as South Carolina, Massachusetts, and Kentucky, laments the loss of a favorite son. The death of Wm. R. King, Vice President of the United States, a citizen beloved and respected for the purity of his character, eminent for his talents, and distinguished for his long and faithful services to his country in the many high and responsible stations to which he had been called by his state and nation, occurred soon after that of his illustrious compeers. The general sorrow produced by this national calamity exhibits the esteem with which a free people always regard the faithful public servant and benefactor of his country.

I place at your disposal a medal, presented by the citizens of New York, through me, to the state of Kentucky, designed by them, "to commemorate the public services of Mr. Clay, and to transmit to distant posterity a perfect resemblance of his features." The letter of the committee of the citizens of New York which accompanied the medal, and a copy of my response accepting it, on behalf of the state of Kentucky, are transmitted herewith. I recommend that you direct that it be placed in the public library.

I herewith transmit a communication from the state department of the Federal Government, accompanied with a copy of a "consular convention between the United States of America, and his majesty, the Emperor of the French," and invite your attention to the seventh article of the convention.

The prosperous condition of our national affairs is a subject of congratulation. While some of the nations of the old world are engaged in domestic strife and civil wars, and others in bloody conflict with neighboring states, we are exempt from internal and foreign wars, so destructive to the happiness and prosperity of nations, and left to cultivate the arts of peace. Agriculture, manufactures, commerce, art, and science are being rapidly extended amongst us, and throughout the republic our people enjoy civil, religious and political liberty in its fullest extent.

The able and patriotic Chief Magistrate of the republic, in his inaugural address, and in his message to the present Congress, has indicated a determination to see that the compromise measures passed by the Congress of the United States in 1850, are carried out in good faith—to restore as far as possible, that good feeling and harmony which should exist among sister states forming one great confederacy—and to see that all the rights guaranteed by the Federal Constitution are extended to each and all the states, and that the Union be preserved.

The distinguished citizen at the head of the national administration, will find Kentucky ready to co-operate most heartily with him in his patriotic efforts to preserve the Union, and maintain inviolate the constitution, and to uphold unimpaired the rights of the states and that nationality which is based upon the guarantees of the constitution under which we have enjoyed such unexampled happiness and prosperity. Kentucky will stand by the Constitution and the Union, and will at all times be ready to protect the one and defend the other, whenever assailed, whether by traitors from within or foes from without.

From the condition of our national revenues, we may expect a speedy reduction of the tariff. The lessening of the restrictions upon the commerce of the country, and the reduction of the taxes imposed upon the great producing classes are results greatly to be desired, and would tend to add to the general prosperity of the country.

The foreign policy of the national administration has been marked by a determination to maintain, inviolate, our faith with other nations, whilst, at the same time, the honor and dignity of the confederacy are sacredly preserved, and the protection of our constitution and laws is extended to all who have a just claim to our nationality. In whatever clime an American citizen may be found in the pursuit of business or pleasure, he is under the protecting influence of our constitution and flag; and the republic holds it to be a sacred duty to protect him in his rights, liberty and lawful pursuits.

Before the meeting of the next general assembly, my official term will have expired, and the duties of Chief Magistrate of the Commonwealth will have devolved upon another; who is yet to be chosen by the people. The occasion of delivering my last biennial communication to their representatives allows me to express, as I now do, the profound gratitude I feel, and which I shall never cease to entertain, for the confidence reposed in me by my fellow citizens, in placing me at the head of the executive department of the government. I have heretofore endeavored, as I shall hereafter do, to justify their confidence by faithfully discharging my duties to the best of my ability; and, whether in public or in private life, my most earnest wishes shall ever be for the welfare of my native state. It gives me pleasure to offer my testimony to the able and faithful manner with which the executive officers at the capital have discharged their official duties; and it is proper for me to add that I have, on all occasions, received the cordial co-operation of all others who have been, with various duties, engaged in the management of the affairs of the commonwealth.

In conclusion, gentlemen, permit me to assure you, that having entire confidence in your patriotic desire to serve your country, it would be gratifying to me to unite with you in whatever measures you may adopt calculated to promote the public good.

L. W. POWELL.

DECEMBER 31, 1853.

To His Excellency, the Governor of Kentucky:

The undersigned, Commissioners appointed by your Excellency in pursuance to an act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, approved January 7, 1852, have now the honor to report, that in discharge of the duties assigned them, they have selected ten acres of ground as a site for the contemplated buildings of the Kentucky Institution for the education of the Blind. The ground is situated about a half mile from the limits of the city of Louisville, and on the north side of the Shelbyville and Louisville turnpike road. It fronts on said road five hundred and forty-four and a half feet, and extends back northwardly eight hundred feet. The ground now belongs to Frederick G. Edwards, and the price agreed on is five hundred and fifty dollars ($550) per acre.

W. TOMPKINS,
HENRY PIRTLE,
A. M. JACKSON.

May 1, 1853.

Having visited and inspected the ground selected by the commissioners, Wm. Tompkins, Henry Pirtle and A. M. Jackson, appointed to select a site for the buildings and grounds for the Kentucky Institution for the education of the Blind, I accept and approve the above report of the said commissioners, and order the same, with this my approval, to be entered on the Executive Journal, May 3d, 1852.

L. W. POWELL,

By the Governor:

D. MEADOWS, Secretary of State.

Description of the Kentucky Institution for the Education of the Blind.

The edifice will consist of a central or main building and two wings. The main building will be 92 feet in front, and 66 feet in depth. Each wing will be 43 by 67 feet.

Height of the stories will be as follows:

Basement story,	-	-	-	10 feet.
Principal "	-	-	-	14 "
Second "	-	-	-	13 "
Third "	-	-	-	12 "
Fourth "	-	-	-	10 "

The floor of the basement will be 21 inches above the paved walk around the building.

There will be a cellar under the building 8 feet in depth. The spaces in the cellar, under the corridor in the main building, and under the passages in the wings, will be occupied as hot air chambers, in which will be placed apparatus for heating the entire building, either by hot air, hot water, or steam, as may be most approved. Each room will also be furnished with a flue for stove-pipe, which may be used if it should ever be necessary.

Every room will be ventilated by one or more flues carried up in the walls to the roof of the building.

The dimensions of each room are marked on the drawings, in which the stone work is tinted blue, the brick work red, and the wooden portions yellow.

The foundations will be at least 30 inches in thickness. They will be built of stone.

The walls above the ground will be of brick. The outside basement walls 28 inches thick. The inside walls of the basement, and the outside walls of the principal story 22 inches thick. The other walls will be of sufficient thickness to give strength to the building, and furnish space for the heating, ventilating and smoke flues.

The lintels of the outside doors and of the windows may be either of cast iron or stone.

The joist in the floors and roof of the building will be of poplar.

The sheathing may be of third-rate pine flooring.

The style of the interior finish of the building will be neat, and without unnecessary embellishment.

The painting and plastering should be done in the most approved manner.

The kitchen, laundry, drying room, ironing room, bath rooms, and water closets, should be fitted up in the best manner, with the requisite apparatus.

The dome and portico, the only ornamental parts of the building, are intended to be highly useful as well as ornamental—the dome, as an aid to the proper ventilation of all the rooms in the main building—and the portico, as a covered walk for the pupils in rainy weather. If it should be thought advisable, the building may be erected without the dome and portico, and thereby be reduced to a structure of the plainest kind.

The uses of all the apartments in the building are indicated in the accompanying drawings.

In the basement story are the dining room, the kitchen, with its offices, the laundry, drying room, ironing room, bath and wash rooms, water-closets, and sleeping rooms for all the domestics.

The principal story is devoted mainly to the various school exercises. In this story are the office, library, receiving room, lecture room, music rooms, recitation rooms, and study and sitting for the pupils. On this floor also are dressing rooms, to which the pupils can retire to make any changes in their apparel that may be necessary in the course of the day. By this arrangement the necessity of their going up to their sleeping rooms during the day is obviated.

In the second story are the infirmaries, physician's office, sewing room, work room for the younger boys, rooms for the officers of the institution, and the chapel or exhibition room, containing a recess for an organ.

All the rooms in the third and fourth stories, except the band room, exercise rooms and store rooms, are dormitories for the pupils.

The entire building, in all its interior and exterior arrangements, is admirably adapted to the purposes of the institution. All the rooms, proposed, are necessary to secure the highest success of the school, and all are conveniently and judiciously located.

The Legislature of Kentucky, with a liberality worthy of our time-honored Commonwealth, has made provision for the education of all the blind children and youth within her borders, and directed that a building of sufficient size for their accommodation shall be erected. Henceforth the doors of the institution are to be thrown open freely to all who are worthy of admission—to the poor as well as to the rich. The edifice to be erected should therefore contain ample room for all who may apply for admission for many years to come.

The number of blind persons in Kentucky, returned by the last census of the United States, is 530, a number, which we have reason to believe, is far below the real number. The building represented in the accompanying drawings, will accommodate one hundred pupils, and by converting into a dormitory, the large room in the fourth story, marked "exercise room," and making one or two other practicable changes, the house can be made to accommodate as large a number as will be likely to apply for admission for many years.

It will not probably be necessary to finish all the rooms in the building for several years, but it is very important, on the score of economy, as well as for other obvious reasons, that the walls of the entire structure should be carried up and covered together. The funds of the institution are sufficient to erect the building and finish a part of the interior. The other rooms can be finished from time to time, as the means of the institution will permit.

The building was designed by the superintendent of the institutions after an examination of all the principal institutions for the blind in the United States, and an experience of ten years as superintendent of the Kentucky Institution; and is believed to be much better adapted to its objects than any other institution of the kind in the Union. All the other institutions of the kind in the United States have serious defects, which, it is believed, have been obviated in the plan of this.

The accompanying design has been carefully examined by a number of gentlemen (including several architects,) well qualified to form a judgment as to its merits, and all unite in pronouncing it to be remarkably well adapted to the purposes of the institution.

A proper regard to economy has been observed in planning the building, and it will not be as costly as the institutions in several other states in the Union. Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, New York and Massachusetts, have institutions that were erected at an expense greater than will be required for the contemplated institution in Kentucky.

Erected according to the design, it will afford ample accommodation for all the blind children and youth of Kentucky, and be an ornament to the state of which her citizens will have reason to feel proud for generations to come.

At a meeting of the Board of Visitors of the Kentucky Institution for the education of the Blind, held on the 9th day of June, 1852, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the accompanying plan and description of an edifice for the Kentucky Institution for the Blind, laid before this Board this day, be commended to the commissioners, appointed by the Governor of the Commonwealth to select a site for the Institution, and present a plan for the building, as, in our judgment, fulfilling all the requisitions for a school edifice for the Blind, without any unnecessary expenditure.

Resolved, That T. S. Bell and B. M. Patten be appointed a committee to lay the accompanying plan and description before the commissioners, with the request that the said commissioners will, if the plan meet their approbation, recommend it to the Governor of the Commonwealth.

W. F. BULLOCK, President.

B. M. PATTEN, Secretary.

To His Excellency, the Governor of Kentucky:

The undersigned, commissioners appointed in pursuance of an act of Assembly passed at the last session of the General Assembly, to select and report to the Governor a site for the Kentucky Institution for the education of the blind, and a suitable plan of a building for that purpose; having heretofore submitted their report of a site, which has been approved, beg leave to present a plan for the building, accompanying the foregoing description. The commissioners have carefully examined the subject, and unhesitatingly recommend said plan as embracing all the essentials for the commodious accommodation of the inmates of the institution for many years to come; and we perceive nothing which, with the strictest regard to economy, could be dispensed with. We would therefore respectfully recommend the adoption of said plan.

Witness our hands this 16th June, 1852.

W. TOMPKINS,
A. M. JACKSON,
HENRY PIRTLE.

LOUISVILLE, August 5, 1852.

To the Board of Trustees of the Kentucky Institution for the Blind:

GENTLEMEN: I find, by calculations made at your request, upon the drawings for the Kentucky Institution for the blind, that the sum of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) will be required to put the building under roof, and finish ready for occupancy the principal rooms. The cost of the dome and portico will be additional to the above amount.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

E. E. WILLIAMS.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, {
FRANKFORT, KY., August 7, 1852. }

GENTLEMEN: Your report as commissioners appointed in pursuance of an act of the last Legislature, to select and report to the Governor a suitable site for the Kentucky Institution for the education of the blind, and suitable plan for a building for that purpose, was received. The site selected has been heretofore approved—the plan of the building submitted by your report now before me, has been carefully examined and considered, and is approved and accepted by me, and the report ordered to be filed in this office. And I do order and direct the purchase of the ground selected to be completed, and the building erected. In consequence of want of means, the dome and portico, (set forth in the plan approved) as they are ornamental, are not to be constructed unless the Legislature make an appropriation for that purpose.

Allow me to ask that you cause this approval of the plan, &c., to be filed with the records and papers of the President and Visitors of said Institute.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

L. W. POWELL.

To Hons. W. Tompkins, A. M. Jackson and Henry Pirtle, Commissioners.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, {
COLUMBIA, Nov. 8, 1852. }

To His Excellency the Governor of Kentucky:

DEAR SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith to your Excellency the proceedings of the Legislature of South Carolina, while in extra session, on the subject of the deaths of Mr. Clay and Mr. Webster. I trust they will be received as they are meant, as a tribute of respect on the part of our State to the memories of those illustrious statesmen, and as an earnest of the deep sympathy which she feels for her sister States, in this their irreparable loss.

With sentiments of profound respect, and sympathy, I have the honor to be,
Your Excellency's ob't. servant,

J. H. MEANS.

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

The General Assembly of the State being convened in Special Session, as a tribute of respect to the memory of the Hon. Henry Clay and Hon. Daniel Webster, his Excellency the Governor transmitted the following message to that body:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
COLUMBIA, November, 2, 1852. }

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

I feel it my duty officially to announce to you the deaths of two of our most illustrious statesmen, Henry Clay and Daniel Webster, which have occurred since your last meeting.

Thus, in the same space of three short years, have passed away from the stage of action three of the greatest names that have ever adorned the history of our country. Calhoun, Clay and Webster were names which were upon every lip, for praise or blame, according to the peculiar political tenets of those who pronounced them. They were the shining stars of our Republic. One by one they have been extinguished, as though they were not permitted to shine but in conjunction. While we mourn the loss of our own Calhoun, we should not withhold our homage to the intellectual power and worth of his great compeers, or refuse to mingle our tears with Kentucky or Massachusetts, o'er the tombs of their favorite sons. Differing, it is true, upon the agitating subjects of the day, now that the grave has closed over them, we should forget whatever of frailty was incident to their mortality, and only remember them as the great intellectual lights which shed a halo of glory around the history of our common country.

J. H. MEANS.

On the reception of which, both branches of the Assembly adopted the following resolutions:

Be it resolved, That the General Assembly of South Carolina deplores the bereavements which have fallen upon the confederacy at large in the decease of those illustrious citizens and eminent orators and statesmen, Henry Clay and Daniel Webster; and that while we have recalled to us the memory of sorrows nearer home, it but adds to the poignancy of our grief to know that others mourn as we have mourned.

Resolved, That we offer, with fraternal feelings, our condolence to our co-States of the Union on this sorrowful occasion, and more particularly do we tender it to the Commonwealths of Kentucky and Massachusetts.

Resolved, That his Excellency the Governor be requested to communicate a copy of his message to the General Assembly, together with the foregoing resolutions, to the Executives of Kentucky and Massachusetts.

BEAUFORT T. WATTS, Secretary.

NEW YORK, February 7, 1853.

SIR: The undersigned, a committee of citizens of New York, have been instructed by their associates to present, through you, to the State of Kentucky, the accompanying medal.

Its design, you will perceive, is to commemorate the public services, &c., of the late Mr. Clay. Besides the one in gold, which was presented to him, one hundred and fifty, and no more, have been struck in bronze by the same dies.

The fame of that illustrious statesman is identified with the history of Kentucky—the State of his adoption. It is, therefore, deemed fitting that she should possess one of these medals, whose objects are to transmit to distant posterity a perfect resemblance of his features, and to perpetuate, in the most classic form, the remembrance of the leading events of his life.

With high consideration, we have the honor to be,

Your Excellency's ob't. servants,

DANIEL ULLMANN,
JOS. M. PRICE,
SMITH J. EASTMAN,
CHAS. M. LEUPP,
A. G. PECKMAN.

His Excellency, LAZARUS W. POWELL, Governor, &c., State of Kentucky.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,

FRANKFORT, KY., March 20, 1853. }

GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 7th of February last, in behalf of the citizens of New York, accompanied by a medal, "the design of which is to commemorate the public services of the late Mr. Clay."

I accept on behalf of the State of Kentucky, from the citizens of New York, this touching and appropriate memorial of the life and eminent public services of Kentucky's most distinguished orator and statesman.

His fame, as you well remark, is identified with the history of Kentucky. More than fifty years ago he entered the service of the State, and from that time to the day of his death, with but few and short intervals, he was engaged in public affairs. And such was the commanding influence of his genius, that he arrayed and lead the party that advocated or that resisted, almost every great measure that has agitated the country since he entered the public service. His fame is not only identified with Kentucky, but it graces and adorns the history of its republic.

Be pleased, gentlemen, to accept for yourselves, and the citizens of New York, the most grateful and heartfelt acknowledgments of the people of Kentucky, for this beautiful and affecting tribute of respect to the memory and public services of their illustrious and cherished statesman.

Very respectfully, your ob't servant,

L. W. POWELL.

To Messrs. Daniel Ullmann, James M. Price, Smith J. Eastman, Chas. M. Leupp, and A. G. Peckham, committee, New York.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, 19th Oct. 1853. }

To his Excellency, the Governor of the State of Kentucky, Frankfort:

SIR: I have the honor to transmit to your Excellency a copy of the Consular Convention of the 23d of February last, between the United States and France, and to invite your Excellency's attention to the second paragraph of its seventh article. Pursuant to the stipulation therein contained, the President engages to recommend to those states of the Union by whose laws aliens are not permitted to hold real estate, the passage of such laws as may be necessary for the purpose of conferring that right. In accordance with the stipulation adverted to, the President directs me to communicate to your Excellency his recommendation that if, pursuant to existing laws, French subjects should not be allowed to hold real estate in Kentucky, that right may, by law, be conferred upon them.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully,

Your Excellency's obedient servant,
W. L. MARCY.

Whereas a Consular Convention between the United States of America and His Majesty the Emperor of the French, was concluded and signed, in this city, by their respective plenipotentiaries, on the twenty-third day of February last, which Convention as amended by the Senate of the United States, and being in the English and French languages, is word for word, as follows:

Consular Convention between the United States of America and his Majesty the Emperor of the French.

The President of the United States of America, and his Majesty the Emperor of the French, being equally desirous to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the two nations, and to give a new and more ample development to their commercial intercourse, deem it expedient, for the accomplishment of that purpose, to conclude a special convention which shall determine, in a precise and reciprocal manner, the rights, privileges, and duties of the consuls of the two countries.

Accordingly they have named—

The President of the United States:

The Honorable Edward Everett, Secretary of State of the United States;

His Majesty the Emperor of the French;

The Count de Sartiges, Commander of the Imperial order of the Legion of Honor, &c. &c., his Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Washington;

Who, after communicating to each other their full powers, found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

The consuls general, consuls, and vice consuls, or consular agents of the United States and France, shall be reciprocally received and recognised, on the presentation of their commissions, in the form established in their respective countries. The necessary exequatur for the exercise of their functions shall be furnished to them without charge; and on the exhibition of this exequatur, they shall be admitted at once, and without difficulty, by the territorial authorities, federal or state, judicial or executive, of the ports, cities, and places of their residence and district, to the enjoyment of the prerogatives reciprocally granted. The government that furnishes the exequatur reserves the right to withdraw it on a statement of the reasons for which it has thought proper to do so.

ARTICLE II.

The consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents of the United States and France, shall enjoy in the two countries the privileges usually accorded to their offices, such as personal immunity, except in the case of crime, exemption from military billetings, from service in the militia or the national guard, and other duties of the same nature; and from all direct and personal taxation, whether federal, state, or municipal. If, however, the said consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, are citizens of the country in which they reside; if they are, or become, owners of property there, or engage in commerce, they shall be subject to the same taxes and imposts, and with the reservation of the treatment granted to commercial agents, to the same jurisdiction, as other citizens of the country who are owners of property, or merchants.

They may place on the outer door of their offices, or of their dwelling-houses, the arms of their nation, with an inscription in these words: "Consul of the United States," or "Consul of France;" and they shall be allowed to hoist the flag of their country thereon.

They shall never be compelled to appear as witnesses before the courts. When any declaration for judicial purposes, or deposition is to be received from them in the administration of justice, they shall be invited, in writing, to appear in court, and if unable to do so, their testimony shall be requested in writing, or be taken orally at their dwellings.

Consular pupils shall enjoy the same personal privileges and immunities as consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents.

In case of death, indisposition, or absence of the latter, the chancellors, secretaries, and consular pupils attached to their offices, shall be entitled to discharge ad interim the duties of their respective posts; and shall enjoy whilst thus acting, the prerogatives granted to the incumbents.

ARTICLE III.

The consular offices and dwellings shall be inviolable. The local authorities shall not invade them under any pretext. In no case shall they examine or seize the papers there deposited. In no case shall those offices or dwellings be used as places of asylum.

ARTICLE IV.

The consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, of both countries, shall have the right to complain to the authorities of the respective governments, whether federal or local, judicial, or executive, throughout the extent of their consular district, of any infraction of the treaties or conventions existing between the United States and France, or for the purpose of protecting informally the rights and interests of their countrymen, especially in cases of absence. Should there be no diplomatic agent of their nation, they shall be authorized, in case of need, to have recourse to the general or federal government of the country in which they exercise their functions.

ARTICLE V.

The respective consuls general, and consuls, shall be free to establish, in such parts of their districts as they may see fit, vice-consuls, or consular agents, who may be taken indiscriminately from among Americans of the United States, Frenchmen, or citizens of other countries. These agents, whose nomination, it is understood, shall be submitted to the approval of the respective governments, shall be provided with a certificate given to them by the consul by whom they are named, and under whose orders they are to act.

ARTICLE VI.

The consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, shall have the right of taking at their offices or bureaux, at the domicile of the parties concerned, or on board ship, the declarations of captains, crews, passengers, merchants, or citizens of their country, and of executing there, all requisite papers.

The respective consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, shall have the right, also, to receive at their offices or bureaux, conformably to the laws and regulations of their country, all acts of agreement executed between the citizens of their own country and the citizens or inhabitants of the country in which they reside, and even all such acts between the latter, provided that these acts relate to property situated, or to business to be transacted, in the territory of the nation to which the consul or the agent before whom they are executed may belong.

Copies of such papers, duly authenticated by the consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, and sealed with the official seal of their consulate or consular agency, shall be admitted in courts of justice throughout the United States and France, in like manner as the originals.

ARTICLE VII.

In all the states of the Union, whose existing laws permit it, so long and to the same extent as the said laws shall remain in force, Frenchmen shall enjoy the right of possessing personal and real property by the same title and in the same manner as the citizens of the United States. They shall be free to dispose of it as they may please, either gratuitously or for value received, by donation, testament, or otherwise, just as those citizens themselves; and in no case shall they be subjected to taxes on transfer, inheritance, or any others different from those paid by the latter, or to taxes which shall not be equally imposed.

As to the states of the Union, by whose existing laws aliens are not permitted to hold real estate, the President engages to recommend to them the passage of such laws as may be necessary for the purpose of conferring this right.

In like manner, but with the reservation of the ulterior right of establishing reciprocity in regard to possession and inheritance, the government of France accords to the citizens of the United States the same rights within its territory in respect to real and personal property, as to inheritance, as are enjoyed there by its own citizens.

ARTICLE VII.

The respective consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, shall have exclusive charge of the internal order of the merchant vessels of their nation, and shall alone take cognizance of differences which may arise, either at sea or in port, between the captain, officers, and crew, without exception; particularly in reference to the adjustment of wages and the execution of contracts. The local authorities shall not, on any pretext, interfere in these differences, but shall lend forcible aid to the consuls, when they may ask it, to arrest and imprison all persons composing the crew whom they may deem it necessary to confine. Those persons shall be arrested at the sole request of the consuls, addressed in writing to the local authority, and supported by an official extract from the register of the ship or list of the crew, and shall be held, during the whole time of their stay in the port, at the disposal of the consuls. Their release shall be granted at the mere request of the consuls made in writing. The expenses of the arrest and detention of those persons shall be paid by the consuls.

ARTICLE IX.

The respective consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, may arrest the officers, sailors, and all other persons making part of the crews of ships-of-war or merchant vessels of their nation, who may be guilty or be accused of having deserted said ships and vessels, for the purpose of sending them on board, or back to their country. To that end, the consuls of France in the United States shall apply to the magistrates designated in the act of Congress of May 4, 1826—that is to say, indiscriminately to any of the federal, state, or municipal authorities; and the consuls of the United States in France shall apply to any of the competent authorities and make a request in writing for the deserters, supporting it by an exhibition of the registers of the vessel and list of the crew, or by other official documents, to show that the men whom they claim belonged to said crew. Upon such request alone, thus supported, and without the exaction of any oath from the consuls, the deserters, not being citizens of the country where the demand is made, either at the time of their shipping or of their arrival in the port, shall be given up to them. All aid and protection shall be furnished them for the pursuit, seizure, and arrest of the deserters, who shall even be put and kept in the prisons of the country at the request and at the expense of the consuls until these agents may find an opportunity of sending them away. If, however, such opportunity should not present itself within the space of three months, counting from the day of the arrest, the deserters shall be set at liberty, and shall not again be arrested for the same cause.

ARTICLE X.

The respective consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, shall receive the declarations, protests, and reports of all captains of vessels of their nation in reference to injuries experienced at sea; they shall examine and take note of the stowage; and when there are no stipulations to the contrary between the owners, freighters, or insurers, they shall be charged with the repairs. If any inhabitants of the country in which the consuls reside, or citizens of a third nation, are interested in the matter, and the parties cannot agree, the competent authority shall decide.

ARTICLE XI.

All proceedings relative to the salvage of American vessels upon the coasts of France, and of French vessels wrecked upon the coasts of the United States, shall be respectively directed by the consuls general, consuls and vice-consuls of the United States in France, by the consuls general, consuls, and vice-consuls of France in the United States, and until their arrival by the respective consular agents where an agency exists. In the places and ports where an agency does not exist, the local authorities, until the arrival of the consul in whose district the wreck may have occurred, and who shall be immediately informed of the occurrence, shall take all necessary measures for the protection of persons and the preservation of property.

The local authorities shall not otherwise interfere than for the maintenance of order, the protection of the interests of the salvors, if they do not belong to the crews that have been wrecked, and to carry into effect the arrangements made for the entry and exportation of the merchandise saved.

It is understood that such merchandise shall not be subjected to any custom-house duty if it is to be re-exported, and, if it be entered for consumption, a diminution of such duty shall be allowed in conformity with the regulations of the respective countries.

ARTICLE XII.

The respective consuls general, consuls, vice-consuls, or consular agents, as well as their consular pupils, chancellors, and secretaries, shall enjoy in the two countries all the other privileges, exemptions, and immunities which may at any future time be granted to the agents of the same rank of the most favored nation.

ARTICLE XIII.

The present convention shall remain in force for the space of ten years from the day of exchange of the ratifications, which shall be made in conformity with the respective constitutions of the two countries, and exchanged at Washington within the period of six months, or sooner, if possible. In case neither party gives notice, twelve months before the expiration of the said period of ten years, of its intention not to renew this convention, it shall remain in force a year longer, and so on from year to year, until the expiration of a year from the day on which one of the parties shall give such notice.

In testimony whereof, the respective plenipotentiaries have signed this convention, and hereunto affixed their respective seals.

Done at the city of Washington the twenty-third day of February, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three.

* The undersigned, minority of the committee on Banks, to whom was referred leave to introduce a bill to amend the charter of the Kentucky Trust Company Bank, would respectfully state that the said bank, although unlimited in her capital stock, except so far as the Directors of said Bank may choose, is nevertheless restricted in her note issues to the amount of capital stock actually paid in. The amendment proposed to the said charter by the majority of said committee, authorizes the Bank to issue double the amount of her capital and fixes the capital at $1,500,000, and the establishment of four branches, which we believe would increase the amount of Bank paper in circulation, and therefore be ultimately detrimental to the best interests of the country.

The past history of the country, as well as past experience, alike admonish us to guard against a redundancy of Bank paper.

We have therefore dissented, &c.

There have been admitted into the Hospital since the last report, one hundred and seventy-four patients, of whom twenty died, and the balance discharged cured.

The usual annual appropriation of fifteen hundred dollars, or three thousand dollars for the years 1854 and 1855, payable quarterly, in advance, with such sum as may reasonably be expected from the United States, we presume will be sufficient to sustain the Institution until the next regular session of the legislature.

The balance on hand will be immediately appropriated to the purchase of 610 shares of Stock, as authorized by the act of Assembly, which, added to those purchased in the eleven previous years, will make 9,800 shares retired, leaving 200 shares to be hereafter liquidated.

It will be noticed, by an item in the above account, that the State of Kentucky has taxed the entire property and franchises of the Canal, consequently no Stockholder can be holden to give in the amount of his stock for taxation, and thus be subjected to a double tax.

The annexed table shows the number and tonnage of boats that have passed through the Canal since its commencement.

Respectfully submitted,

Mr. Woodson, from the committee on Propositions and Grievances, to whom was referred the petition of sundry citizens of Shelby county, praying to be added to the county of Henry, made the following report, viz:

The undersigned, members of the committee on Propositions and Grievances, to whom was referred the petition of sundry citizens of

Shelby county, praying to be detached from the county of Shelby and added to the county of Henry, state that the petition and evidence before the committee, go as they think, fully to establish the following facts:

1st. That the territory embraced in the petition covers an area of about ninety square miles and most of it as fine soil as any in Shelby county.

2d. That the petitioners are laboring under no such grievances as should induce the legislature to grant their petition. That most of them live almost as near Shelbyville as they do to New Castle; that they have as good roads to travel to the former as they do to the latter place; and that neither socially, commercially, or otherwise, would they derive any appreciable advantage from the proposed change.

3d. That the petition had its inception in, and is prosecuted by the petitioners from considerations chiefly meriting legislative condemnation; we allude to the dissatisfaction consequent upon the imposition of a railroad tax by the vote of a majority of the citizens of the county in which the petitioners live; and we are satisfied from the testimony, that had not the tax referred to been imposed, the petition would never have been gotten up, and if it had, that few of the petitioners would have signed it. And believing the above statements to be strictly true, and that an application of the remedy proposed by the petitioners would be a dangerous precedent, and if followed, would lead to the most interminable feuds and border strifes between the citizens of the various counties of the commonwealth, and impose an immense amount of difficult, unsatisfactory, exciting, and unprofitable legislation upon those who are to come after us, attended by no corresponding good, we ask leave to report the petition back to the House, with the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That said petition be rejected.

SILAS WOODSON,
JAMES BRIEN,
JOSHUA GIVEN,
WM. A. BRANN,
JAMES B. MONTGOMERY.

Which was concurred in.

An engrossed bill, entitled, an act for the benefit of Distillers, was read the third time.

Resolved, That a prohibitory liquor law, be recommended by this body, for the consideration and approval of the present legislature.

A true copy from the record attested by the signature of the Grand Scribe and the seal of said Grand Division, this 25th day of January, 1854.

L. HORD, G. S.

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

The undersigned as a committee acting under a resolution appended to this memorial, would represent to your honorable body, that the friends of Temperance have been laboring for years to stay the tide of woe, pauperism, and crime, flowing from the traffic in, and use of ardent spirits as a beverage, and they have found that the laws now in force paralyze their efforts to do so. They believe that the law-making power should by its enactments, give aid to industry and promote sound morality, and should protect the citizen in the enjoyment of health, peace, and property.

To this end therefore, they would most respectfully ask for a repeal of the laws authorizing licenses to be granted, for the retail of ardent spirits, and other intoxicating drinks; and for the passage of proper laws prohibiting their manufacture and sale, except for medicinal, mechanical, and sacramental purposes.

FRANKFORT, February 1, 1854.

TO THE HON. CHAS. G. WINTERSMITH,

Speaker of the House of Representatives:

SIR: You will please lay before the House over which you preside, the inclosed report, and oblige your ob't serv'ts.

JAMES F. BUCKNER,
JOHN P. CAMPBELL,

Commissioners.

To the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

The Commissioners of the Second Kentucky Lunatic Asylum would respectfully report that since their last report made on the 8th December, 1851, they have received from the Treasury of the state, under the act passed at the session of 1850-51, and for which they are chargeable, the sum of $ 35,000 00
Also, amount of appropriation of 1851-52. 43,000 00

Making the aggregate sum of $ 78,000 00

They have paid out in liquidation of the debts then reported to be due to contractors, ($52,672 96.) and have expended in the prosecution of the work, and by which sums they are entitled to credits the following sums, viz:

By amount paid for brick work,	$ 19,926 59
By amount paid for rough stone,	298 75
By amount paid for cut stone,	5,688 85
By amount paid carpenters,	13,031 90
By amount paid for plastering,	6,115 00
By amount paid for paints, painting, glass, &c.,	3,174 80
By amount paid for hardware, nails, &c.,	2,236 29
By amount paid for tin work, guttering, &c.,	1,561 97
By amount paid for lumber,	12,094 69

Amounts carried forward, $ 64,158 75 $ 78,000 00

Amounts brought forward, - - - - -	$ 64,158 75	$ 76,000 00
By amount paid for smith work, - - - - -	8 00
By amount paid for cast iron sash, weights, &c., - - - - -	1,670 12
By amount paid for plumbing work, - - - - -	2,246 90
By amount paid for heating building, including boilers, engines, pipes, &c., - - - - -	3,888 21
By amount paid for grading and excavating drains, - - - - -	296 57
By amount paid for wells and cisterns, - - - - -	458 00
By amount paid for fencing grounds, - - - - -	99 30
By amount paid architect, superintendence, &c., during three years, - - - - -	5,084 70

By balance in their favour on settlement with Messrs. Rodman, Mallory, and Sharp, 21st November, 1851, - - - - -	110 50
		$ 78,117 73
Leaving balance in favor of Commissioners of - - - - -		$ 117 73

By reference to our last report it will be seen that there was then due to contractors for work already done up to that period, the sum of $32,672 96, which, when deducted from the appropriation which had been already made, but which had not come to our hands, ($35,000 00,) would leave a balance in our hands of $2,327 04. To this last sum we add the amount of last appropriation, $43,000 00, which will show the amount which we have had at our disposal during the last two years, to-wit. the sum of $45,327 04.

The amount of work done by contractors, and materials purchased since our last report is estimated to be - - - - -	$ 72,199 64
Deduct amount of funds as above, - - - - -	45,327 04
Making balance due contractors for work to this date, - - - - -	$ 26,872 60
To which add the amount of work yet to be done, necessary to complete the building for the reception of patients, the sum of - - - - -	17,145 00
Making the sum of - - - - -	$ 44,017 60

Which sum must be provided for by the appropriation of the present session.

The work is now rapidly verging to completion, and they anticipate the pleasure of announcing the fact that it is finished by the first of May next, at farthest, or at least by the time the Board of Managers and officers who are to have charge of the Institution, can furnish it ready for patients. The Commissioners have, since they were visited by the commission appointed by the Governor to inspect the building, made a change in the plan then entertained for heating the building, which will, for the present, add something to the cost, but they believe will add greatly to its security and comfort, and in the end prove much the most economical.

This fact, in connection with the great and increasing advance in the price of labour and all the materials of construction, has caused the amount expended considerably to exceed the estimate of its supposed cost when the building was commenced; but they confidently believe not beyond the cost of similar buildings in other states. For a description of the building, and general character of the work they have had done, they refer you to the report of Messrs. Rodman, Mallory, and Sharp, and the accompanying papers made to the General Assembly at its last session. We would request that an act be passed authorizing the appointment of Commissioners to examine the building when entirely completed, and to make a full and final settlement with the undersigned of all their accounts remaining unadjusted, and for a cancelment of the several bonds which, under the laws they have been required to execute. The undersigned, in conclusion, would remark that neither the law originally requiring the erection of this Institution and under which they were appointed, nor any of the subsequent acts passed in reference to the same, make any provision for the payment of the Commissioners who have erected it; and they have discharged the duties incumbent upon them to this time, without compensation, but they presume that such compensation is intended to be made them by an act of the present session.

The present members of the board of building Commissioners have been engaged from the time of their appointment on 1st July, 1848, and will continue until its final completion. Mr. Samuel Shryock acted with them until about the 1st of January, 1851, when his services terminated by his removal to Tennessee; the amount of compensation they submit to the liberality of the General Assembly.

JOHN P. CAMPBELL,
JAMES F. BUCKNER.

That they have had a conference with the Commissioners of the State of Tennessee, have considered the subject of the petition and the resolutions, and heard the remonstrances of a delegation of the citizens of Fulton county. While recognizing the inconveniences under which the citizens residing in Madrid Bend now labour; the injury which would result to Fulton county, and the strong opposition of the citizens of that county, have determined the committee to report, as their opinion, that it is inexpedient to make the cession. The committee would be favorable to an exchange of the territory in Madrid Bend for an equal amount of territory along the boundary line between Fulton county and the state of Tennessee, if such an exchange would be agreeable to that state and its citizens who would be affected by the exchange.

And the court shall have the right to grant to either party a new trial, for the same causes that new trials are granted in suits at law, and either party may appeal or take a writ of error; but no appeal or writ of error shall prevent the company from proceeding to construct the road: provided, that the value of the estimated advantages that said road will be, shall in no case be deducted from, or set off against the assessed or estimated value of the land taken or required for said road.

William P. D. Bush,

Mr. King, from the committee on Enrollments, reported that the committee had examined an enrolled bill which originated in the House, entitled, an act to amend the charter of the Nashville and Cincinnati Railroad Company.

And bills which originated in the Senate of the following titles, viz:

An act authorizing the Justices of Bracken county to hold the February term, 1854; of the County Court.

An act to amend an act, entitled, an act extending the limits of the city of Maysville.

And had found the same truly enrolled.

Whereupon, the Speaker affixed his signature thereto.

Ordered, That Mr. King inform the Senate thereof.

Mr. Geiger, from the committee on the Penitentiary, made the following report, viz:

The committee on the Penitentiary respectfully report that they have, in committee and individually, visited from time to time the State Prison and inspected its condition, and investigated the general treatment of its convicts, as well as examined the nature of the duties assigned them; and as the result of their labors submit the following:

Your committee unanimously concur in opinion as regards the unfitness of the cells, both as relates to the safety of the same as well as the health of the convicts.

The committee found that succeeding a rain, dampness to a considerable extent, pervaded the ground within the enclosure and adjacent to the cells.

The committee found the hospital of such contracted dimensions that during any epidemic, or where more than the ordinary number of cases of sickness occur, that there can be but little accommodation, and serious difficulty might arise. The floor of which is also found to be considerably below the outside surface.

The committee consider the location for the Penitentiary as an extremely injudicious one; and the necessity is, therefore, the more urgent, that better arrangements should be made for the health and personal comfort of the convicts.

The committee have, upon examination, such as has been within their power, found the strictest of rules (which we regard as highly judicious and sanitary,) governing the labors, conduct, and treatment of the convicts.

The committee found the clothing to consist of good material, well made, and altogether comfortable. The convicts are cleanly in their habits, their diet wholesome, and prepared with neatness.

The laws in relation to this Institution appear, as far as lie within the power of the committee to learn, to be sufficient for its good government, and do not therefore, recommend any further legislation.

Of the business operations of the Institution, your committee did not make a detailed investigation, for the reason that its financial condition is fully reported by the Clerk of the Penitentiary, and the law now directs an annual settlement with the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, in whose competence to investigate its fiscal transaction, it is believed the General Assembly have implicit confidence.

Mr. Hunt, from the committee on the Sinking Fund, to whom was referred the petition of the securities of the Sheriff of Montgomery county, asked to be discharged from the further consideration of the same, which was granted.

Ordered, That said petition be referred to the committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Hunt, from the same committee, reported a bill further to regulate the operations of the Sinking Fund, which was read the first time.

The question was then put on reading said bill a second time,

And after some discussion had thereon, the hour of 12 o'clock arrived and the House proceeded to the orders of the day.

The House, again resolved itself into a committee of the Whole, on the bill to incorporate the Louisville and Memphis Railroad Company, Mr. M. C. Johnson in the chair; and after some time spent therein, the Speaker resumed the chair, when Mr. M. C. Johnson reported that the committee had, according to order, had under consideration the bill aforesaid, and had made some progress therein, but not having time to go through with the same, had instructed him to ask leave to sit again, which was granted.

The committee to whom was referred a resolution of the House of Representatives directing them to ascertain and report whether Sinclair Roberts gave John J. Jordan notice of his, Roberts' intention to contest the right of said Jordan to a seat in this House, as the representative from the county of Lawrence, and whether in consequence thereof, said Jordan incurred any expense or cost, respectfully report:

That it appears from papers submitted to the committee that said Jordan was served with a notice with the name of Sinclair Roberts attached thereto, of his intention to contest the seat of said Jordan. That both parties took depositions, which seemed to have been enclosed to the Clerk of this House; but said Roberts presented no petition and made no further attempt to prosecute the case. Under these circumstances it seems to the committee that Roberts should pay to Jordan the costs and expenses incurred by the latter in consequence of the giving of said notice. It appears to the committee that said Jordan has incurred at least twenty-five dollars costs besides the fees of officers for giving notices and taking depositions to sustain his right to the seat in this House. The committee submit for the consideration of the House, the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Clerk of this House ascertain from the depositions on file, taken by John J. Jordan to sustain him in his seat in this House, the costs of taking them according to the existing laws, and make a certificate thereof, and deliver the same to said John J. Jordan.

Mr. Anderson, from the committee on Claims, to whom was referred a bill from the Senate, entitled, an act for the benefit of John Moore, Jailer of Green county, reported the same without amendment.

Newcomb, together with their successors, associates, and assigns be, and they are hereby created a body politic and corporate, under the name and style of the "Commercial Insurance and Trust Company," and shall continue until the first day of January, 1895, and by that name are made capable in law to have, purchase, and receive, possess, enjoy, and retain, sell, convey, or otherwise dispose of to them and their successors, lands, tenements, rents, goods, chattels, public and private securities of any kind, quality and nature whatsoever, including shares of the capital stock of this corporation, not exceeding at any one time the amount of the capital stock of said corporation, and accumulate profits, and to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded in any court of record in this commonwealth, or in any other place whatsoever, and to make and use a common seal, and the same to break, alter, or renew at pleasure; also, to ordain, establish, and put in execution and amend such by-laws as may be necessary and convenient for the government of the said corporation, not contrary to the laws of this commonwealth.

§ 2. The capital stock of said corporation shall be two hundred thousand dollars in four thousand shares of fifty dollars each; but if at any time after the organization of the company, the President and Directors, with the concurrence of the owners of a majority of the stock, should deem it advisable to increase the capital stock of the company, the same may be increased to an amount not exceeding five hundred thousand dollars by sale of additional shares of fifty dollars each, on such terms and in such manner as the President and Directors may direct.

§ 3. The corporators named in this act, or any one or more of them, shall, as soon as may be deemed advisable by them after the passage of this act, open books of subscription for four thousand shares of the capital stock of said corporation, first giving at least ten days notice of the time and place of opening said books of subscription; by publication in one or more of the daily newspapers published in the city of Louisville, and when four thousand shares shall have been subscribed for the books shall be closed, and thereafter, notice shall be given in like manner as in case of opening books of a meeting of the subscribers, at which meeting five dollars in money shall be paid upon each share subscribed for and the company be organized, after which the remaining forty-five dollars on each share shall be secured by the notes of subscribers secured to the satisfaction of the President and Directors, and to be paid at such time or times as they may designate. If any of the corporators named in this act shall fail to subscribe for stock when the books are opened for subscriptions they shall cease to be corporators; and if any person or company subscribing for shares of the stock of said company shall fail to pay the five dollars on each share at the time and place of such payment is to be made, according to notice, such stock shall be forfeited to the company and may be disposed of by sale or otherwise; and if at any time any stockholder shall fail to pay any call upon the note for unpaid installments, or shall refuse or neglect to give a note with security, satisfactory to the President and Directors of said company, the stock of such subscriber shall be forfeited thereby to the Company, and may be sold, the company accounting for the proceeds of sale thereof, first deducting all claims for calls or other claim against such shareholder held by the company.

When any Director ceases to be a shareholder to the amount of two hundred shares he shall cease to be a Director, unless designated as such by a co-partnership firm owning two hundred shares, or by the shareholders owning less than two hundred shares of said stock.

§ 5. The Directors of said company shall first organize by the election of one of their number President, to hold office until his successor is elected and qualified, and they shall also elect at least two of their number to serve until the ensuing first Monday in January, and then and annually thereafter on the first Monday in January shall elect at least two of their number to serve in conjunction with the President as a business committee, which committee shall have the general direction and control of the transactions of the corporation; and the President and Directors shall elect such officers and agents as may be necessary for the transaction of the business of the company, fix their salaries and prescribe their duties, and may require from any officer bond with security in such sum as they may deem adequate. The business committee may call meetings of the Directors when deemed necessary.

§ 6. Whenever the sum of twenty thousand dollars in cash has been paid by the shareholders, and the further sum of forty-five dollars on each share subscribed has been secured by note as hereinbefore provided, the President shall have full power and authority, in the name and on behalf of the said company, to make all kinds of marine and fire insurance and re-insurance on property of any and every kind within the United States, or elsewhere, on the general principles and conditions of Marine and Fire Insurance, or upon particular principles and conditions designated in the policies used by the said company.

§ 7. The said company shall have the right to employ any portion of their capital stock or surplus funds on hand in the purchase or discount of foreign and domestic bills of exchange and promissory notes, made negotiable and payable at the office of said company, or at any of the banks or branches of banks chartered by this commonwealth; and any of the promissory notes purchased or discounted by said company shall be, and they are placed on the same footing with foreign bills of exchange, and remedy may be had thereon, jointly or severally, against the drawers and endorsers, and with like effect except as to damages; and the said company may sell and buy bankers and bank checks, and may receive deposits of money payable on demand or at some fixed date, and issue certificates therefor, which certificates shall only be transferable by indorsement, and the company may contract to pay interest on such deposits or on any of them.

§ 8. The said company may, with the concurrence of the owners of a majority of the shares of the capital stock, transact the insurance business upon the mutual principle, dividing profits with insurers upon such terms as may be prescribed in the by-laws of the company, and issuing scrip-stock certificates for the proportion of profits divided to non-shareholders, which scrip-stock shall be liable for losses before the capital stock of the company. And when scrip-stock has been issued to the amount of three hundred thousand dollars the subsequent accumulation of profits represented by scrip-stock shall be applied to the redemption of the amount in excess of three hundred thousand dollars, beginning with the certificates of oldest date outstanding, paying pro rata of the sum to be thus applied when there is a larger amount of scrip of one date than the sum applicable to its redemption.

§ 9. The form of certificates of stock and certificates of scrip-stock, and the manner of transfer of the same shall be fixed in the by-laws of the company. And a lien is hereby created in favor of the corporation on the shares of stock or scrip-stock of any holder thereof, for any claim of any kind whatever, which the company may hold against the holder of such shares of stock or scrip-stock.

§ 10. The principal office for the transaction of the business of the corporation shall be in Louisville, in Jefferson county, but the President and Directors may establish agencies or branch offices elsewhere, if deemed necessary by them.

The House then took up the bill from the Senate, entitled, an act to amend the charter of the Deposit Bank of Covington.

The said bill was then amended, and as amended read as follows, viz:

§ 2. That the name of said bank be, and the same is hereby changed to the Savings Bank of Kentucky, and by that name, said bank shall be and continue a body corporate and politic, possessing all the privileges of said charter, which are consistant with the provisions of this act, with power as natural persons, to carry out the full and true intent of the same.

§ 3. But the bank shall not be held to have violated this provision, if the amount of the promissory notes held and owned by the principal bank, or any branch, shall be at any time reduced by payments below the amount of the bills of exchange: Provided, no further purchases of bills are made for such bank or branches, until the amount of the bills be reduced below that of the promissory notes; and said bank shall not at any time invest more than one-half the amount of its circulation in bills of exchange, nor shall it owe, by any obligations, bills, bonds, or notes which it may issue, an amount exceeding twice the amount of capital stock paid in; and in case of excess the president and directors, under whose administration it shall have taken place, shall be liable for the payment of the same, in their individual capacities, by joint and several actions of debt, to be recovered in any court having jurisdiction thereof. And for any failure or refusal to redeem in gold or silver, the notes which said bank may make payable to bearer on demand, when presented within the usual banking hours, and payment demanded; or for any failure or refusal to pay any moneys on deposit, bills, bonds, or other obligations, when and where the same are due and payable, said bank shall be liable to pay damages at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum, on the amount thereof, until payment of the same; and for such failure or refusal, or for the violation of any of the provisions of this charter, the same shall be subject to forfeiture: the trial of which the Franklin Circuit Court shall have exclusive jurisdiction.

§ 4. Any individual, company, or corporation, that has deposited, or may deposit in said bank, a sum of money not less than one share, may convert the same into stock, and vote at the first election of directors, a meeting for which may be called on reasonable notice being given to the stockholders. If the sums so deposited and subscribed shall exceed eight hundred thousand dollars, the largest of said sums shall be equitably reduced so that the aggregate amount shall not exceed eight hundred thousand dollars, the capital stock hereby allowed.

§ 5. It shall be the duty of the President, on the first day of July of each year, after said bank commences business, to pay into the Treasury of the state fifty cents on each one hundred dollars of its capital stock, which shall be in full of all tax or bonus, which tax when so paid shall be set apart and is hereby dedicated to the cause of education, and shall form a part of the Common School Fund of this state.

§ 6. The President and Directors of said bank shall establish two branches or offices of discount, deposit and redemption, as follows: one in Springfield, Washington county, with a capital of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, and one in Burksville, in Cumberland county, with a capital of not less than one hundred thousand dollars; and shall commence business at either of said branches, when four hundred shares of stock are disposed of, and paid in for that purpose in gold and silver.

§ 7. The President and Directors of the principal bank may appoint a President, Cashier, Directors and such other officers as may be necessary to conduct the business of said branches; and they shall cause each of said officers to enter into bonds with sufficient security for the faithful discharge of his duty. Resolved, That the the title thereof be as aforesaid.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the Whole, on the bill to incorporate the Planters and Manufacturers Bank of Kentucky, Mr. T. Alexander in the chair; and after some time spent therein, the Speaker resumed the chair, when Mr. T. Alexander reported that the committee had, according to order, had under consideration the bill aforesaid, and had adopted sundry amendments thereto, and had instructed him to report the same to the House, which he handed in at the Clerk's table.

The said amendments were then twice read and concurred in, and said bill as amended, reads as follows, viz:

§ 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That there shall be and is hereby established a bank, by the name of the Planters and Manufacturers Bank of Kentucky, with a capital of two million six hundred thousand dollars, to be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and to be subscribed and paid for by individuals, companies, or corporations, in the manner hereinafter specified; which subscribers and shareholders, their successors and assigns, are hereby created a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of "The Planters and Manufacturers Bank of Kentucky," and shall so continue as a body politic and corporate until the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four; and by that name, under the restrictions hereinafter named, shall be competent to contract and be contracted with, to sue and be sued, to plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended, in all courts or places, and in all matters whatsoever, as natural persons, with full power to acquire, hold, possess, use, occupy and enjoy, and the same to sell, convey, and dispose of, all such real estate, goods, effects, and chattels, as shall be convenient for the transaction of its business, or which may be conveyed to said bank as surety for any debt, or purchased in satisfaction of any judgment or decree in favor of the bank or in the purchase of any property on which said bank may have a lien; and said bank may have and use a common seal, change, alter, and renew the same at pleasure; and it may ordain and put in execution such by-laws, rules, and regulations for the good government of said bank and the prudent and efficient management of its affairs, as may be deemed most proper: Provided, That they be not contrary to the constitution and laws of this state, or the United States.

§ 2. The said bank shall have and keep its principal office of discount and deposit in the city of Louisville, and it shall have the privilege of establishing nine other offices of discount and deposit, which shall be branches of the principal bank, as hereinafter provided. The business of said bank and its branches shall be to loan money, discount promissory notes and bills, and to deal in exchange, coin, and bullion; and it may issue bills and bank notes, payable to bearer on demand at either of its offices of discount and deposit, but not of a less denomination than one dollar, and it shall not issue any notes, bills, checks, or orders to circulate as money, except such as are payable on demand. The promissory notes made payable to any person or persons, and payable and negotiable at either of the offices of said bank, or at any other bank, and indorsed to and discounted by said bank, shall be and they are hereby put on the same footing as foreign bills of exchange, and remedy may be had jointly or severally against the drawer and indorser, and with like effect, except as to damages, and except that in a regular course of administration they shall have no other or greater dignity or priority of payment than other notes. And the said bank shall not directly or indirectly deal or trade in anything except in loaning money and exchange, and in gold and silver coin and bullion, or in the sale of goods, chattels, rights and credits, really and truly pledged for money lent and not redeemed in time, or in goods which shall be the proceeds of its lands.

§ 3. The bank notes to be issued by said bank shall be signed by the president of the principal bank, and countersigned by the cashier thereof, except notes of the denomination of less than five dollars, which may be signed by either the President or Cashier; and the said bank is hereby prohibited from issuing any checks or orders with the intent that they shall circulate as bank notes.

§ 4. The said bank shall not at any time owe an amount exceeding twice the amount of the capital stock actually paid in, exclusive of sums due depositors; and in case of excess the President and Directors under whose administration it shall have taken place, and who assented thereto, shall be liable in their individual capacities to the full extent of such excess, together with all damages and costs created in consequence thereof, to be recovered by a joint or several actions of debt in any court of this state having competent jurisdiction.

§ 5. Said bank shall not, at any time, suspend, fail, or refuse payment in gold or silver of any of its notes or other obligations due and payable, or any money on deposit; and if in such case the officers in the usual banking hours, at the office where the same shall be payable, shall refuse payment of the amount of any note there demandable and presented for payment, or the payment of any money previously deposited at such office and then due and demandable by any person or persons entitled to receive payment of the same, said bank shall be liable to pay damages at the rate of twelve per centum per annum on the amount thereof, from the time of such failure or refusal until the payment thereof; and for such failure or refusal, or for any violation of their charter, the same may be forfeited, and a scire facias may be sued out in the name of the commonwealth, by the attorney general, by order of the governor, and such proceedings may be had as to declare such forfeiture by the judgment of a court, and from and after such judgment, said bank shall cease to exercise any of the privileges and powers hereby granted: Provided, Said forfeiture shall not be so construed as to prevent said bank from suing and being sued, and continuing its operations for the purpose of closing its concerns, nor from making any contracts that may be convenient and proper for that purpose.

§ 6. The real and personal estate, business, property, and prudential concerns of said bank, and the administration of its affairs, shall be under the direction, management and control of seven Directors, to be chosen as hereinafter directed. They shall be stockholders, and, after the first election, shall have been stockholders at least three months previous to their election. They shall be residents of this state and citizens of the United States, and, after the first election, they shall be elected annually on the first Monday of May in each year. Each director shall be a stockholder in his own right. They shall hold their offices for one year, and until their successors shall be chosen. The Directors shall be chosen by the stockholders, who shall meet at the annual elections in the city of Louisville, at such time of day and place as the Directors for the time being shall direct. Notice of the time and place of holding the election shall be published in two newspapers thirty days previous to the election. The election shall be by a plurality of votes to be counted and read in public, after all the votes shall have been taken. The election shall be under the direction of three stockholders, acting under oath, and previously chosen by the directory, and not of their own body. No person who is an officer or director of another bank shall be eligible as an officer of this bank, or a member of the board of Directors therein; and any Director becoming an officer or Director of another bank, or while under protest in this bank for the non-payment of debts, shall be held to have vacated the office of Director in this bank; nor shall two partners in trade be eligible as Directors in this bank at one and the same time; and if the President, Cashier, or any Director shall become insolvent after his election or appointment, he shall become incapable to serve as an officer of this bank, and shall be held to have vacated his office or place, nor shall he be appointed to serve in this bank until his debts are paid, or until he obtain a full discharge from the same. If, from any cause, an election should not take place on the day fixed by this charter, the corporation for that purpose shall not be dissolved, but the stockholders may hold an election on any other day the by-laws shall direct.

§ 7. At all meetings of the stockholders, and at all elections under this charter, each shareholder, whether individual, company, or corporation, shall be entitled to one vote for each share held by him or them in his or their own right, up to fifty shares, and one vote for every five shares over fifty and up to one hundred, and one vote for every ten shares over one hundred. After the first election no share shall entitle the holder to a vote unless the same has been held by the person, company, or corporation claiming to vote on the same at least three months prior to that time, and so appear on the books of the bank. Any stockholder entitled to vote may do so in person or by proxy, such proxy being granted to a stockholder who is not an officer, or clerk, cashier, or teller of the bank; and any stockholder who is not a resident of the United States shall not be entitled to vote on his stock.

§ 8. The Directors chosen for the principal bank under the provisions of this charter, shall, as soon as may be after the first and every annual or other election of Directors, elect a President, from their own body, who shall preside at the board until the next election; and in case of the death, absence, or resignation or vacation of the office of President, the residue of the Directors shall choose a President pro tempore. They shall fill all vacancies which may occur in their own body during the time for which they were chosen, and appoint a cashier, clerk, agents, and servants of the principal bank, fix their compensation, define their powers, and prescribe their duties, and shall require of them such bonds and in such penalties as they may deem right, which bonds may be laid monthly before the directory and entry made thereof on the records; and the directory may, from time to time, require such additional bonds and sureties, with such penalties and conditions, as in their opinion will secure the bank from loss or damage; and all such officers shall hold their places during the pleasure of the President and Directors.

§ 9. The President and Directors of the principal bank, any four of whom shall form a quorum for the transaction of business, may, from time to time, make such by-laws, rules, and regulations for their own government and for the management and disposition of the property, estate, funds, and business of the bank, and all matters appertaining thereto, which they may deem expedient, not contrary to the provisions of this charter, or the by-laws, rules, and regulations which the stockholders, at their annual or other meetings, may, from time to time, prescribe: Provided, however, That the concurrence of a majority of all the Directors shall be necessary in the adopting of any of the by-laws of the institution.

§ 10. The President and Directors shall hold stated meetings at least once a week, on such day and such hour of the day as they shall, from time to time, appoint, and at such other time as they may agree upon; and they shall attend called meetings at any time the President shall direct; and all questions before the board shall be decided viva voce; and at the request of any two members the yeas and nays on any proposition submitted shall be recorded on the journal of their proceedings; and no vote shall be reconsidered when a less number is present than when the vote was given.

§ 11. The President and Directors of the principal bank shall establish within twelve months after the passage of this act, nine branches; one at Elizabethtown, with a capital of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; one at Shelbyville, with a capital of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; one at Hawesville, with a capital of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; one at Cynthiana, with a capital of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; one at Glasgow, with a capital of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; one at Eddyville, with a capital of not less than two hundred thousand dollars; one at Barbourville, with a capital of not less than one hundred thousand dollars; one at Winchester, with a capital of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and one at Catlettsburg, with a capital of not less than two hundred thousand dollars.

§ 12. The President and Directors of the principal bank shall appoint for each of the branches five Directors, one of whom they shall appoint as President, and shall prescribe such rules and regulations for each of said branches as they may deem right, and shall have power to enforce the same.

§ 13. The President and Directors of the principal bank shall appoint a cashier of the principal bank and a cashier for each of the branches. The President and Directors of the branches shall appoint a clerk and such other officers as the directory of the principal bank shall direct. Not less than a majority of the Directors of the branches respectively shall form a quorum for the transaction of business.

§ 14. No dividends of the profits of said bank shall be made until there shall be a surplus of one thousand dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars of capital stock actually paid in, and the surplus or contingent fund thus raised shall never be reduced below that ratio on all stock paid for; and it shall be the duty of the President and Directors of the principal bank, on the first Monday in January and July in each year, to declare a dividend of the profits over and above the contingent fund aforesaid, among the stockholders, payable to them on demand, of which dividend and the time and place of payment notice shall be given; and if at any time said President and Directors shall declare a dividend lessening the amount of the capital stock or the contingent fund aforesaid, or by any mismanagement or neglect of duty shall cause any loss or deficiency of or in the capital stock of said bank, the Directors consenting thereto or guilty of such mismanagement or neglect of duty, shall be jointly and severally liable to the stockholders or any creditors of said bank who may be injured thereby; and the President and each Director shall be deemed guilty of such mismanagement or neglect, or to have consented to such dividends, unless he forthwith give notice of his dissent thereto, or his absence from the institution, and call a meeting of the stockholders, which he is for that purpose hereby authorized to do.

§ 15. It shall be the duty of the cashier on the first day of July, eighteen hundred and fifty-five, and on the first day of July in each succeeding year during the continuance of this charter, to pay to the treasurer of this commonwealth fifty cents on each one hundred dollars of stock held and paid for in said bank, which shall be in full of all tax or bonus.

§ 16. The board of Directors of the principal bank shall allow to the President thereof, and to the President of each of the branches, such reasonable compensation for their services as they may, from time to time, deem just; but no compensation shall be allowed to any director unless the same be voted by the stockholders at a regular meeting.

§ 17. It shall be the duty of the President and Directors of the principal bank and branches, as often as once every three months, to cause a strict examination to be made of the accounts of the cashiers respectively, and full and complete statement to be made and entered on the journal of proceedings of the board of Directors of the principal bank and of each of the branches.

§ 18. It shall not be lawful for the cashier, clerk, or other subordinate officer of the principal bank or branches, to engage in or carry on any other business than that of said bank, without a special license from the President and Directors of the principal bank. Neither shall any of them, either directly or indirectly, become indebted to said bank, either as borrowers, indorsers, surety or otherwise.

§ 19. If the cashier, clerk, teller, agent, or other officer of the principal bank or branches, shall, without the authority of the President and Directors of the bank or branches, as the case may be, appropriate any of the funds of said corporation to his own use, or to that of any other person, or shall willfully fail to make correct entries, or shall knowingly make false entries on the books of the bank, with intent to cheat or defraud the corporation or any person, to hide and conceal any improper appropriation of the funds of the corporation, the officer so offending shall be deemed guilty of felony, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be sentenced to confinement in the jail and penitentiary of this state for a period of not less than five nor more than twenty years.

§ 20. The President and Directors of the principal bank shall keep a record or journal of all their proceedings, which they shall produce to the stockholders, when by them demanded at any regular meeting; and they shall be open to inspection by any committee appointed by the legislature; and the President and Directors of the branches shall in like manner keep a record of their proceedings respectively, which shall at all times be produced to the President and Directors of the principal bank, and subject to their inspection, or to that of any person or persons authorized by them to inspect the same, and which shall also be open to the inspection of the stockholders at any general meeting, or to any committee appointed for that purpose by the legislature.

§ 21. It shall be the duty of the President and Directors of the principal bank, during the first week of the session of the legislature in each year, to transmit to the Secretary of State an accurate and just statement of the principal bank and branches, as it existed on the first day of the preceding month; which statement shall specify the amount of capital stock actually paid in, and the amount not paid in, the amount of real estate belonging to the bank and its cost, the total amount of debts due to and from the bank, the amount of gold and silver and other coined metal and bullion on hand, the amount deposited, the amount of bills in circulation, and the amount of bills on hand of other incorporated banks, and the amount of bills in circulation of each denomination issued by the bank, the rate and amount of dividend and profits made by the bank, with the amount of surplus profit or the contingent fund; which statement the Governor of the commonwealth shall cause to be laid before the legislature of Kentucky; and they shall also, when required by the legislature, report all bad and doubtful debts.

§ 22. The President, Directors, Cashiers, Clerks, Tellers, and other officers of the principal bank and branches, previous to entering on the discharge of their duties, shall take an oath before some justice of the peace of this state, faithfully, honestly, impartially, and to the best of their skill and judgment, to discharge all the duties of their respective offices or stations, which may be required of them under this charter, or by the rules and regulations of the corporation.

§ 23. Said bank shall not contract for or receive a greater rate of interest than at the rate of six per centum per annum, for the loan or forbearance of money on promissory notes negotiable and payable at said bank, and their discounts shall be calculated upon the true time such notes have to run, and upon the usual principles of banking.

§ 24. The President and Directors shall issue certificates of stock to the holders thereof for so much as shall be paid for; and the shares of the capital stock of said bank shall be considered and held in law as personal property, and transferable and assignable only in such manner and in such place or places as the President and Directors of the principal bank shall, by their by-laws, prescribe.

§ 25. The certificates of deposit, bank bills, bills of exchange, or orders issued by said bank which shall be signed by the President and countersigned by the Cashier, promising or requesting the payment of money to any person or persons, and to order or bearer, as the case may be, and those of a less denomination than five dollars, signed by either the President or Cashier, shall be obligatory on said bank, though not under its seal; and such of said notes or bills as shall be payable to order shall be transferable by assignment, and those made payable to bearer by delivery.

§ 26. The general meeting of the stockholders shall be held annually on the first Monday in May in each year, in the city of Louisville, at the time of the annual elections, to which meeting the President and Directors of the principal bank shall present an accurate statement of the condition and affairs of the bank; and general meetings of the stockholders may be called as provided in this charter, or by the President and Directors of the principal bank, whenever they esteem it desirable, or by any number of stockholders the by-laws of the corporation may require.

§ 27. The General Assembly shall have the right to investigate the situation and affairs of said bank, by any committee they may appoint for that purpose, from time to time.

§ 28. The Franklin Circuit Court shall have jurisdiction to try the forfeiture of this charter, for the violation of any of the provisions of the same. The proceedings shall be by scire facias, alleging and specifying the acts of forfeiture relied on; and shall only be sued out at the instance of the Attorney General, when directed to do so by the legislature or Governor of this state, from the decision of which court appeal may be taken as in other cases.

§ 29. That Thomas T. Shreve, Hamilton Pope, A. Vatable, B. L. T. Bourland, Wm. Garvin, Walter W. Stapp, James Thompson, E. L. Hoffman, and Andrew Graham, of the city of Louisville; Samuel B. § 30. The said Commissioners, or a majority of them, shall have power, and they are authorized and required at such time as they may deem it expedient, to open books for the subscription of the capital stock at their respective places, and at such other places as they may think proper, and cause the books to be kept open until at least two thousand shares shall have been subscribed for the principal bank, and five hundred shares for each of the branches, when the same may be closed: The Commissioners at Louisville may appoint Commissioners at any town or city of the United States to receive subscriptions to said stock.

§ 31. Should the whole amount of capital stock contemplated by this charter not be taken upon the first opening of the books for subscription, the President and Directors may cause the books to be opened from time to time, and at such times and places as they may direct, and cause them to be kept open, if they choose, until the whole balance shall be taken; and the President and Directors may require such premium on the stock sold at the re-opening of the books as they shall deem right, and such premium shall be the property of the bank.

§ 32. When not less than two thousand shares of the capital stock shall have been taken for the principal bank, and the Commissioners shall have closed the books, it shall be their duty to give notice in some public newspaper printed in this state, and appoint a day and place in the city of Louisville for the election of the first board of Directors for said bank, who shall hold their offices until the next succeeding annual election; and not less than five nor more than twenty days notice shall be given of the time and place of electing said board of Directors. And on such appearing to be the fact, the governor is authorized to issue his proclamation that the amount hereby required to be paid in, and in the funds required, has been done, and the said bank is authorized to commence operations as a banking institution; and from and after the first proclamation it shall be lawful for said bank to commence business. The said branches shall be established and are authorized to commence business when like proceedings are had, so soon as ten thousand dollars in gold or silver shall be actually paid in for any one branch; but all the branches provided for in this charter shall be established and commence business within twelve months from the passage of this act, as hereinbefore provided.

§ 36. If any stockholder of said bank who shall not be a resident of the United States, shall vote, or authorize any person to vote, at the election for Directors of said bank upon the stock held by such person not a resident of the United States, or which may be held by others for his or their use and benefit, that such stock so held or voted upon, or so authorized to be voted upon, at any of the elections for Directors of said bank, shall be forfeited by such stockholder to and for the use of the said bank.

§ 37. The bills or notes of said corporation, originally made payable to bearer, shall be receivable in all payments to the state, and on account of county levies, so long as it shall redeem its notes in gold or silver on demand, unless otherwise directed by law.

§ 38. No person shall be eligible to the office of Director in the principal bank who is not the owner of ten shares of stock in his own right, at the time of his election.

§ 39. Said bank shall not make any loan of money or discount any note or bill on the pledge of the stock of said bank; and no stockholder, shall be allowed to pay any debt he may owe the bank by the surrender of the stock of the bank until all the notes of the bank shall be redeemed and the debts of the bank paid; and the stockholders who shall become indebted to the bank shall be compelled to pay their debts in all respects as other individuals dealing with the bank, nor shall any stockholder be allowed to make payment of the shares of stock held by him by means of a loan or loans obtained from said bank.

After two million six hundred thousand dollars of capital stock shall have been actually paid in, it shall be lawful for said bank, by a vote of the stockholders from time to time, to increase the amount of the capital stock of said bank: Provided, The whole amount of capital shall at no time exceed three millions six hundred thousand dollars.

§ 42. The President and Directors of the principal bank may, under the direction of such agent or agents as they may think proper to appoint, keep open books for the transfer of the stock of said bank at such places, and under such rules and regulations, as they may deem proper.

§ 43. Said bank shall not, at the principal bank or either of its branches, hold and own at any time an amount of bills of exchange exceeding the amount of promissory notes held and owned at such time by said bank or branches; and all promissory notes payable at a different point from that at which they may be discounted, and from which a greater discount than at the rate of six per cent. per annum is taken, whether under color of exchange, charge for collection or otherwise, shall, for the purposes of this section, be held and taken to be bills of exchange. But the bank shall not be held to have violated this provision, if the amount of the promissory notes held and owned by the principal bank, or any branch shall be, at any time, reduced by payments below the amount of the bills of exchange: Provided, No further purchases of bills are made for such bank or branch, until the amount of the bills be reduced below that of the promissory notes.

§ 44. If any of the branches herein provided for should, within the first twelve months, fail to go into operation as herein provided, this charter shall not on that account be forfeited, but in that case the President and Directors of the principal bank shall have two years from the passage of this act in which to establish such branch or branches.

The House then took up the message of the Governor vetoing the bill from the Senate, entitled, an act laying off the state into Congressional Districts, which reads as follows, viz:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
February 21, 1854. }

Gentlemen of the Senate:

A bill entitled "An act laying off the state into congressional districts," has been presented to me for my approval and signature, and I have given to the bill as mature consideration as the short time I have had it before me would allow.

The subject of apportionment, from its very nature, is one of intrinsic difficulty. Although no rule can be adopted which will lead to perfect justice and equality, yet the greatest attainable uniformity and equality are solemnly required by the spirit, if not the letter, of the constitution. The language and object of the constitution are intelligible, and cannot be misinterpreted. The entire population of the commonwealth are entitled to be represented, under the constitution, as near as it can be done, looking to geographical compactness and adjoining territory. This can only be done by a construction of the districts on as exact an approximation to the ratio as can be obtained, having in view the compactness of the districts. Nor can it be denied that another object should be to give as fair an expression as possible to the political opinions of the people of the state, as they are distributed over its surface, so as not to give an undue weight to any particular section or party.

Have these results been obtained in the present bill? Let a fair analysis of the bill, by the ordinary rules of common sense, answer the question. The representative population of Kentucky is 898,884—the present ratio is 89,888 and two-fifths.* Is the bill the most equal and uniform distribution of representation that could be devised? To answer the question in the affirmative would be a severe reflection upon the wisdom of the legislature. How nearly do the districts approximate the ratio?

* The fraction of two-fifths in the ratio of representation has been disregarded in the calculations made by me.

The 1st District is above the ratio	-	-	-	5,936
The 2d District is below the ratio	-	-	-	7,621
The 3d District is above the ratio	-	-	-	1,878
The 4th District is below the ratio	-	-	-	5,052
The 5th District is above the ratio	-	-	-	1,433
The 6th District is below the ratio	-	-	-	1,401
The 7th District is below the ratio	-	-	-	3,004
The 8th District is above the ratio	-	-	-	3,980
The 9th District is above the ratio	-	-	-	6,407
The 10th District is below the ratio	-	-	-	2,552

Total excesses and deficiencies,	-	-	-	39,264
----------------------------------	---	---	---	--------

Again. In the voting population of the state—taking as the test the elections for a series of years—no one could claim for the dominant party in the state a greater majority than from three to five thousand. Yet, with only this inequality, the dominant party have, by this bill, eight districts, while the minority are allowed not more than two, unless by extraordinary results.

But again. The fractions above the ratio in the 1st, 3d, 5th, 8th, and 9th Districts amount to 19,634; while the deficiencies in the 2d, 4th, 6th, 7th, and 10th districts, amount to 19,630. Are the 19,634 above the ratio to be virtually disfranchised and denied the privilege of representation, while there are five districts wanting the requisite number to about the same amount?

The want of geographical symmetry in many of the Districts, as laid out by the bill, is striking. I will not attempt to point out the irregularities in the formation of the districts—these can be seen by all who choose to examine the map of Kentucky. All must admit that they could be greatly improved in form.

Cannot the Districts be formed so as to approach much near the ratio, and at the same time have as good, if not better formation, than those formed by the bill under consideration?

The 1st District, as made by the bill, has 5,936 above the ratio. Take Union and Hopkins from it, and add Christian, and that District would have but 2,557 above the ratio.

The 2d District is 7,621 below the ratio. Take Christian from it, and add Union, Hopkins and Edmonson, and that District would only fall 242 below the ratio.

The 3d District has 1,878 above the ratio. Edmonson taken from it would make that District 2,122 below the ratio.

The 4th District is 5,052 below the ratio. Add Rockcastle to it, and it makes that District only 503 below the ratio.

The 6th District is 1,401 below the ratio. Take Rockcastle and Johnson from it, and add Clarke, and it makes that District 936 above the ratio.†

† In my calculation I have estimated the population of the county of Powell, formed since the census of 1850, with the population of the counties of Montgomery, Clarke, and Estill, out of which it was formed. About 400 of the population of Powell was taken from Clarke. Deduct the 400 taken from Clarke from the 6th District, would leave it 536, above the ratio, instead of 936. Add the 400 to the 9th District would leave it only 79 below the ratio instead of 479.

The 8th District has 3,980 above the ratio. Take Harrison from it, and add Owen, and it makes that District above the ratio 2,041.

The 9th District has 6,407 above the ratio. Clarke taken from it, and Johnson added, and it leaves that District 479 below the ratio.†

The 10th District is 2,552 below the ratio. Take Owen from it, and add Harrison, and it would make that District 613 below the ratio.

These changes would leave the 5th and 7th Districts as they stand in the bill, unaffected.

The variations from the ratio in all the Districts, as they stand in the bill, amount in the aggregate to 39,264. With the changes above indicated, the variations from the ratio, in all the Districts, would amount to 13,930, or about one third the sum made by the bill.

The changes suggested in the 1st, 2d and 3d Districts, which lie contiguous, could be made without affecting the remaining Districts, and would not only come 10,514 nearer equalizing representation in these three Districts, but would also greatly improve the form of those Districts, in the construction of which, by the bill under consideration, it is manifest that sufficient regard has not been paid to territorial formation, compactness and numbers. So, also, the changes suggested in the 4th, 6th and 9th Districts, which vary from the ratio in the aggregate the sum of 12,860, would bring the aggregate sum of the variations from the ratio in those Districts down to 1,918, equalizing representation in them to the extent of 10,942, without interfering with or changing any other District, and leaving the geographical position and formation of the Districts quite as good, if not better, than they are constituted by the bill. The principle that representation shall be "equal and uniform," is certainly violated by the manner in which those Districts are made up. And again—it will be seen that the changes suggested in the 8th and 10th Districts could have been made without interference with any other District, by which the aggregate amount of the variations from the ratio in those two Districts would be reduced from 6,532 to 2,654, making the two Districts more nearly approximate the ratio the sum of 3,878.

To sum up. The changes suggested in the 1st, 2d and 3d Districts, would more nearly equalize representation the sum of	10,514
The changes suggested in the 4th, 6th and 9th Districts, would more nearly equalize representation the sum of	10,942
The changes suggested in the 8th and 10th Districts would more nearly equalize representation the sum of	8,878

Equalizing representation in the eight Districts the sum of 25,334

Let us look at the matter in another aspect. If it were even conceded that the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th Districts should remain as they are formed by this bill, it can easily be shown that the 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th Districts should, in that event, have been formed in a different manner than that in which they are constituted by the bill.

The 7th District, as the bill makes it, is 3,004 below the ratio. Add Trimble, which geographically belongs to it, and it makes that District 2,592 above the ratio.

The 8th District has 3,980 above the ratio. Add Owen, and take off Nicholas, and it leaves that District 4,075 above the ratio.

The 9th District has 6,407 above the ratio. Add Nicholas to it, and take Mason from it, and it makes that District 473 below the ratio.

The 10th District is 2,552 below the ratio. Owen and Trimble taken off, and Mason added, makes that District 1,363 below the ratio.

The sum of the variations from the ratio in those four Districts, as made by the bill, is 15,943. If the changes above indicated were made, the variations would then amount to 8,503, or not much more than one half the variations as made by the bill in those Districts.

Apart from a general consideration of the bill, there are two inequalities, one affecting the 9th and 6th Districts, and the other affecting the 2d and 5th Districts, which I must briefly notice. If the changes I have indicated to the bill, so just as they are in themselves, were disregarded in its formation, still, as between the 2d and 5th Districts as they stand in the bill, the county of Meade should be taken from the 5th and added to the 2d. Without that county to either District, the 2d District would be below the ratio 7,621, and the 5th 5,322 below the ratio. The deficiency in the 2d District being more than 2,000 greater than that of the 5th District, would entitle the 2d District to the county of Meade.

As between the 9th and 6th Districts, as formed by the bill, the 9th, as we have seen, is 6,407 above the ratio, and the 6th 1,401 below the ratio. Take the county of Lawrence from the 9th, and add it to the 6th, and the 9th would be 181 above the ratio, and the 6th 4,825 above the ratio. The variations from the ratio of these two Districts, as made by the bill, amount to 7,808. If the change suggested were made, the variations from the ratio in those Districts would be 2,802 less.

It is not my intention, in suggesting alterations which could be made to the bill, (by which it could have been greatly improved,) to form an apportionment bill; but to exhibit the defects and inequalities in the bill as it stands, and to show how they might have been corrected. I have pointed out changes in the 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 6th, 8th, 9th and 10th Districts, which would bring them 25,334 nearer the ratio of representation, and to that extent equalize representation, at the same time that it would have given to the Districts, taking them as a whole, better geographical form and position. I have no doubt that Districts could be made still more nearly to approximate the ratio of representation than the Districts made by this bill would do, if amended as I have suggested. But it is not for me to propose to the General Assembly a plan of apportionment—it is my province simply to present the objections which I have to the plan which they have adopted.

The friends of constitutional reform, in the year 1848, published an address to the people of Kentucky, in which they say: "The right of suffrage, and the right to fair and equal representation, are regarded as of the invaluable rights of freemen. The rule by which those rights are secured should be clearly defined and easy to be understood. Divided as the state is into separate communities, defined by the boundaries of counties, it is a principle which should not be lost sight of, that each community, as near as practicable, should have a representation apportioned according to its population." Speaking of the formation of apportionment bills, they say: "We frequently see in them strongly marked traces of party struggling for power;" and they ask, if the right to be fairly represented should be subject to the conflict of party? Should it not be considered as among the unalienable rights of the citizen? The address from which these extracts are taken is signed by more than forty distinguished gentlemen of the state, several of whom are members of the present legislature. All men will concur in the justice and truth of the principles so forcibly set forth by the authors of that address. They regarded the right to a fair and equal representation as a sacred right, as among the inalienable rights of the citizen. One of the prominent reforms demanded by the people, and engrafted into the new constitution, was, that this right should be faithfully guarded and secured; and the constitution accordingly declares that "representation shall be equal and uniform in this commonwealth," and "to secure uniformity and equality," certain definite and well guarded provisions are made by that instrument.

Does this bill conform to the principles so clearly and forcibly expressed in the address just alluded to, or to the spirit of the Constitution? Certainly not. It violates every principle of "uniformity and equality;" that should govern in apportioning representation, whether for state or national purposes. The effect of the large excesses over the ratio in the respective Districts must be the virtual disfranchisement of the people composing these fractions, while the existence of such residuums creates deficiencies in other Districts, and leads to a direct violation of the principle of uniformity and equality—a representative from a District having a smaller number than the ratio, has as much weight in the national house of representatives as the representative of a District having a larger number than the ratio, however large the deficiency in the one case, or the excess in the other; in effect, the people who compose the excess are denied the right of representation.

Applying such unequal and unequally varying numbers, the result must be unequal and unjust. It can hardly be doubted that it was the duty of the legislature to adopt that apportionment which would be most just, equal, and uniform. The arrangement of the Districts should be just and fair to all sections of the state and to all the citizens of the commonwealth; and equality of representative population, geographical position, and compactness of territory of the Districts, should govern. In this bill these essential requisites have, to a great extent been disregarded. Compactness of form and conformity to the ratio of representation are both to be attained if possible, in the formation of Districts, and, where both cannot be obtained, form should yield to population.

I have taken as the basis for my calculations the tables of the representative population of the state, made out by the Secretary of State, in compliance with a resolution of the Senate, from the tables and returns of the census of 1850, made to his office by the late Marshal of the United States for the District of Kentucky, which was the same used by the legislature in forming the bill. It, however, it were assumed that the apportionment should be upon the basis of qualified voters, the Districts made by the bill are more unequal, tested by that basis, than they are when tested by the basis of representative population upon which they were made.

I regret that an imperious sense of duty compels me to withhold my approval from this bill. Entertaining for the General Assembly the most profound respect, it would afford me very great pleasure, if I could conscientiously do so, to concur with them and give my approval and signature to the bill. But believing as I do that it violates the principles of uniformity, equality, and justice, which should govern in the formation of an apportionment bill, and that it virtually disfranchises many thousands of our citizens, by withholding from them the equality of representation to which they are entitled alike by the genius of our government and the spirit of our constitution, I am compelled, by a solemn conviction of duty, to return it to the Senate, in which it originated, with my objections to its becoming a law.

I am aware that this is a question calculated to excite strife, and perhaps harsh and vindictive feelings. I can only say that I have endeavored to discharge a high constitutional duty, calmly and dispassionately, and I am willing to submit my action to the just judgment of the people of Kentucky, and to abide their decision.

L. W. POWELL.

Bills from the Senate of the following titles, viz:

1. An act to incorporate the Kentucky Mining and Manufacturing Company.

2. An act to incorporate the Kentucky Union, Coal and Iron Company.

Were read the first time, and ordered to be read a second time.

The rule of the House, constitutional provision, and second reading of said bills having been dispensed with, the 1st was referred to the committee on the Judiciary; and the 2d was ordered to be read a third time.

The rule of the House, constitutional provision, and third reading of the 2d bill having been dispensed with,

Resolved, That the same do pass, and that the title thereof be as afore-said.

The House resolved itself into a committee of the Whole, on the bill to incorporate the Bank of Milton, Mr. Anderson in the chair; and after some time spent therein, the Speaker resumed the chair, when Mr. Anderson reported that the committee had adopted sundry amendments to said bill, and had instructed him to report the bill and amendments to the House, which he handed in at the Clerk's table.

The amendments were then concurred in, and the bill as amended reads as follows, viz:

§ 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That there shall be and hereby is created and established, at Milton, in the county of Trimble, a bank, by the name and style of the "Bank of Milton," which shall continue in existence from the taking effect of this act until the first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

§ 2. That the capital stock of said bank shall be five hundred thousand dollars, divided into shares of one hundred dollars each; but so soon as one hundred thousand dollars of said capital stock shall be subscribed, and fifty thousand dollars in gold and silver paid in, as hereinafter specified, it shall be lawful for said bank to commence operations.

§ 3. That R. J. King, Lindsay Cooper, and John B. Floyd, or any two of them, be, and they are hereby appointed Commissioners to open books of subscription to the capital stock of said bank. Said books shall be opened in the town of Milton, at such times as said Commissioners may designate, of which at least three weeks notice shall be given in some newspaper printed in said county, or, if none be there published, then in some newspaper printed in the city of Louisville.

§ 4. It shall be lawful for any individual, company, or body corporate, to subscribe for any number of the shares of said capital stock; and such individual, company, or corporation, at the time of making such subscription, shall pay to said Commissioners, for the use of said bank, the sum of five dollars on each share of said stock so subscribed.

§ 5. Said Commissioners shall keep said books open for the subscription of stock, for the period of one week, unless the whole capital, before that time, shall have been subscribed. At the expiration of said week, if the amount of one hundred thousand dollars of said capital shall not have been subscribed, it shall be lawful for said Commissioners to designate one of their own number to take charge of said subscription books, and to attend to receiving additional subscriptions, until the amount of one hundred thousand dollars of said stock, at the least, shall have been taken. If at the end of three months from the time of opening such books, there shall not have been subscribed to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars of said stock, then immediately after that period it shall be the duty of said Commissioners to abandon the subscriptions already made, and to refund to such parties as may have subscribed the sums paid by them respectively on account of their said subscriptions. So soon, after the expiration of the first week above named, as the amount of one hundred thousand dollars, at the least, of said capital stock shall have been subscribed, it shall be the duty of said Commissioners to fix upon a day for the election of Directors of said bank, of which three weeks notice, at the least, shall be given in some newspaper printed in the county of Trimble, or if none be there printed, then in some newspaper printed in the city of Louisville.

§ 6. Said subscribers and shareholders, their successors and assigns, shall be, and hereby are created a body politic and corporate, by the name aforesaid, and by that name, under the restrictions hereinafter mentioned, shall be competent to contract and be contracted with, to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered unto, defend and be defended, in all courts and places and in all matters whatsoever, as natural persons, with full power to acquire, hold, possess, and enjoy, and the same to sell, convey, and dispose of at pleasure, all such real estate, goods, effects, and chattels, as shall be convenient for the transaction of their business, or which may be conveyed to said bank, as security for any loan or debt, or purchase in satisfaction of any judgment or decree in favor of said bank, or in the purchase of any property on which said bank may have a lien. And said bank may have and use a common seal, and change alter and renew the same at pleasure; and it may ordain and put in execution such by-laws, rules, and regulations, for the government of said bank, and the prudent and efficient management of its affairs, as may be thought most proper: Provided, That they be not contrary to the constitution and laws of this state, or the United States.

§ 7. The business of said bank shall be to loan money, discount promissory notes and bills, and deal in exchanges; and it may issue bills and bank notes, payable to bearer on demand, at either of its offices of discount and deposit, but of not less denomination than one dollar; and it shall not issue any notes, bills, checks, or orders to circulate as money, other than such as are payable on demand. The promissory notes, made payable to any other person or persons, and payable and negotiable at the principal office of discount and deposit, or branches of said bank, or at any other bank, and indorsed to and discounted by said bank, shall be and they are hereby put on the same footing as foreign bills of exchange, and remedy may be had jointly or severally, against the drawers and indorsers, and with like effect, except as to damages, and except, that in a regular course of administration they shall have no other or greater dignity or priority of payment than other notes.

§ 8. The real and personal estate, business, property, funds and prudential concerns of said bank, and the administration of its affairs, shall be under the direction, management and control of seven Directors, all of whom shall be citizens of the United States, and residents of the state of Kentucky, who, after the first election, shall be chosen annually on the first Monday in May. Each Director shall be a stockholder holding at least ten shares of stock in his own right. They shall hold their offices for one year and until their successors shall be chosen, except the first Directors, who shall hold their offices until the next regular annual election. The election shall be held at Milton; and of the time and place of holding the election, at least three weeks previous notice shall be given. The Directors shall be chosen by the stockholders, each share of stock being entitled to one vote held in their own right up to fifty, and one vote for every five shares between fifty and one hundred, and one vote for every ten votes above one hundred shares; the election shall be by ballot, and shall be conducted under the direction of three stockholders, acting under oath, previously chosen or appointed by the Directors, and who shall not be of their own body. After the first election, no share shall entitle the holder to vote, unless the same has been held by him at least three months prior to that time, and so appears on the books of the bank. Any stockholder entitled to vote may do so in person or by proxy; such proxy being granted to a person who is not a Director or officer in said bank. If from any cause an election shall not take place on the day fixed by this charter, the corporation for that cause, shall not be dissolved, but the stockholders may hold an election on any other day the by-laws shall direct. The stockholders, at annual election, may by a vote representing a majority of said stock, increase or diminish the number of Directors so as, however, that there shall never be more than eleven, nor less than five.

§ 9. The Directors shall, as soon as may be, after the first and every annual or other election of Directors, elect a President from their own body, who shall preside at the board until the next election; but in case of the death, absence, or resignation or vacation of the office of President, the residue of Directors shall choose a President pro tempore. They shall fill all vacancies which may occur in their own body, during the time for which they were chosen. They shall appoint a Cashier, and such other Clerks and Agents as they may deem proper, fix their compensation, define their powers, and prescribe their duties, and may require of them such bonds, and in such penalties and with such securities, as they may deem right for the faithful performance of their respective duties; and all such officers and employees shall hold their places during the pleasure of said board.

§ 10. The Directors shall hold stated meetings at least once a week, on such days and such hours as they may from time to time appoint, and at such other times as they may agree on. All questions before the board shall be decided viva voce, and, on the request of any member, the yeas and nays on any proposition or question shall be entered or recorded on the journal of their proceedings; and no vote shall be reconsidered when a less number are present than when the vote was given. The President may, whenever he deems it necessary, call a special meeting of said board, in which case each Director, unless absent from home, shall have a special notice.

§ 11. The Directors shall allow the President such reasonable compensation for his services as they may, from time to time, deem just; but no compensation shall be allowed to any Director, for services as such, unless the same be voted by the stockholders at some regular meeting.

§ 12. A journal of the proceedings of said board shall be regularly kept, which shall at all times be open to the inspection of any of the stockholders, and of any committee appointed by the legislature; and the legislature shall have the right, from time to time, to investigate the situation and affairs of said bank, by any committee they may think proper to appoint for that purpose.

§ 13. All notes issued by said bank shall be signed by the President and countersigned by the cashier thereof, except that notes of a less denomination than five dollars may be signed by the Cashier or President, or either of them, without being countersigned by the other.

§ 14. The said bill reads as follows, viz:

Buckner, D. M. Wooldridge,

R. Shackelford, Isaac Lewis, W. Wallace, and Robert McKee, of the county of Christian; be and they are hereby appointed Commissioners, under the direction of any two of whom books may be opened, for the purpose of receiving subscriptions to the capital stock of said company, at such times and places as they may prescribe by advertisement, in one or more public newspapers, and may continue them open for such times as they may deem expedient: Provided, That any subscription tendered at any time and place, other than advertised by said Commissioners, if accepted by them, shall be as valid against the party subscribing as if received at the time and place advertised; and if any of said Commissioners shall die, resign, or neglect to act, another may be appointed in his stead by the remaining Commissioners, or Commissioner, or a majority of them, of the county, or city, for which said Commissioner not acting was appointed.

§ 3. Each subscriber, at the time he subscribes, shall pay to the said Commissioners, or their agents appointed to receive such subscriptions, one dollar on each share subscribed by him, and the residue thereof in such installments, and at such times, as the Directors of said company shall deem proper, under penalty of forfeiting the shares of stock subscribed for, and all previous payments thereon, if payment shall not be made within thirty days after personal demand, or notice by advertisement in one or more newspapers published in Louisville and Hopkinsville: Provided, That the stockholders shall not be required to pay more than thirty per cent. of their stock in any one year, and that the Directors, by a majority of their whole board, may remit any such forfeiture on such terms as they may think proper.

§ 4. The capital stock of said company shall be five millions of dollars, in shares of one hundred dollars each, which may be subscribed for by any individual or corporation, and shall be considered personal property.

§ 5. Whenever three thousand or more shares of the capital stock shall have been subscribed, a majority of the Commissioners may close the books, and call a general meeting of the subscribers, for the election of Directors, at such time and place as they may appoint, and shall give twenty days notice thereof, in one or more of the newspapers published in Louisville and Hopkinsville; and at such meeting, the Commissioners, or three of them, shall be present, and conduct the election, and shall lay the subscription books before the subscribers then and there present; and in case more than fifty thousand shares of stock shall have been subscribed, they shall strike off the surplus from the largest subscriptions until the same shall be equalized as near as may be; and thereafter, a majority in value of the subscribers present, shall have power to elect from among the stockholders nine Directors to manage the affairs of said company; and those nine Directors, or a majority of them, shall elect a President of said company from among the Directors, and may allow him such compensation for his services as they may think proper; and in such election of Directors, and on all other occasions whenever a vote of the stockholders is to be taken, each stockholder shall be allowed one vote for every share of stock which shall have been owned by him, her, or it, for ten days, and no other, and may in writing depute any other person to vote and act as his, her, or its proxy. The Directors shall hold their office for one year, and until their successors are elected, and shall fill all vacancies in their board.

§ 6. There shall be an annual meeting of the stockholders, at the office of said company, on the first Monday in May, for the election of nine Directors to serve for the ensuing year: Provided, That the Directors shall have power to change the time and place of holding such annual meetings, upon publishing such change in the newspapers aforesaid, not less than thirty days prior to the time previously appointed. At all such meetings, the Directors shall choose three judges from among the stockholders, whose duty it shall be to receive the votes of the stockholders for Directors, and openly to count the votes and declare the result.

§ 7. Meetings of the stockholders may be called by the Directors, or by stockholders owning not less than one-fourth of the stock, by giving thirty days notice of the time and place of holding the same in the newspapers aforesaid; and whenever any such meeting is called by the stockholders, the particular object of such meeting shall be stated in such notice; and if at any such meeting a majority in value of the stockholders are not represented in person or by proxy, such meeting shall be adjourned from day to day, not exceeding five days, without transacting any business; and if within said five days stockholders having a majority in value of the stock subscribed do not attend, such meeting shall be dissolved.

§ 8. At the annual meetings of the stockholders, it shall be the duty of the President and Directors in office for the preceding year, to exhibit a clear and distinct statement of the affairs of said company; and at any meeting of the stockholders, a majority in value of those present may require a similar statement; and at all general meetings of the stockholders, a majority of them in value, may remove from office any President, Director, or other officer of said company, and elect others in their stead: Provided, Notice of such intended removal shall have been given as required in the preceding section.

§ 9. There shall be a President, Secretary and Treasurer of said company, who shall be elected annually by the Directors, and the President from the Directors, except as provided in the preceding section; and also such other subordinate officers, agents, engineers, and servants of the company, as may be necessary; who may be elected, appointed, or employed by the President and Directors; and any officer or agent of the company may be required to give good and sufficient security for the faithful performance of his duties.

§ 10. The President and Directors shall have power to make contracts for carrying on all the business within the object and purposes of the company, and to make such rules, regulations, and by-laws, not incompatible with the laws of this state, or of the United States, as they may deem necessary and proper for regulating elections, the government of the company, the duties and responsibilities of officers and agents, directing the manner of adjusting accounts against the company, and prescribing in what manner and by what evidence the capital stock of the company may be transferred: Provided, That no shares of stock shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon shall have been fully paid in, or the shares shall have been forfeited for the non-payment of the calls thereon on the books of the company.

§ 11. The President and Directors shall have power to open books and receive subscriptions to any of the capital stock which shall at any time remain unsubscribed for, or to sell, or dispose of the same for the benefit of the company, not under its par value; and if the President and Directors so determine, it shall be lawful for them to receive subscriptions to the capital stock, payable in contracts well secured, to build such parts of the railroad and branches, or to perform such work in the construction thereof, as may be accepted by the company, or payable in coal or iron lands, or any lands lying in convenient proximity to the road, or in the bonds of the subscribers, secured by double the amount in value of unincumbered real estate, redeemable by installments or otherwise, as may be specified, within ten years from the date thereof, and bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually in Louisville or elsewhere, as may be specified; and the President and Directors may, if necessary, issue a preferred stock, to an amount not exceeding one half of the capital stock of the company, with such priority over the remaining stock in the payment of dividends as they may determine, and shall be approved by a majority in value of the stockholders.

§ 12. The President and Directors, with the consent of a majority in value of the stockholders, shall have power to increase the capital stock of the company from time to time, until it shall be equal to the actual cost of the road and branches, together with the right of way, motive power, and all appurtenances and expenses necessary to the completion and operation of the same; and may close the capital account, and it shall not thereafter be increased. And it shall be lawful for the company to borrow such sums of money as may be necessary for their legitimate purposes; and they may issue and dispose of their bonds for any amounts so borrowed, for such sums, and at such rates of interest, as is allowed by the laws of the state where such contract is made; and mortgage the whole or any part of their corporate property and franchises to secure the payment of any debt contracted by the company; and may secure the same by a deed of trust on said property and franchises, conditioned for the punctual payment of the interest on said bonds as the same may fall due, and the principal when it shall become due, and with authority for the trustees to sell all said property and franchises to raise the interest and principal, if not punctually paid, on such terms and notice as shall be declared in the deed of trust, without suit and decree or foreclosure: Provided, That should said property and franchises be sold under said deed of trust, the purchaser shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges of this charter, and of any amendments which may be made thereto, and subject to all the obligations and restrictions of the same; and the company may sell their bonds, either within or without this state, at such rates and prices as permitted by law, and such sales shall be as valid as if such bonds should be sold at par value. The company may confer on any holder of any bond issued for money borrowed as aforesaid, the right to convert the principal due or owing thereon into stock of said company, under such regulations as the company may adopt; and may indorse any bonds which they are authorized by this act to receive in payment for stock, and may pledge the same as securities, and dispose of any such bonds on such terms, and at such rates, as may be lawful and expedient.

§ 13. The company may purchase, and by voluntary grants receive and take, and by their officers, agents, engineers, contractors, and workmen, enter upon, examine, survey, take possession of and hold, and appropriate and use, any lands and real estate and other property, and any earth, waters, timber, gravel, stone or other materials, and any right of way and interests which may be necessary or useful for the construction, maintenance and operation of their railroad and branches, side tracks, stations, depots, and other accommodations necessary to accomplish the objects for which this corporation is created: Provided, The company shall not take possession of, or change or alter the same, until the compensation therefor as agreed upon by the parties, or ascertained as hereinafter prescribed, shall have been paid to the owner or owners thereof, or deposited as hereinafter directed, unless the consent of such owner be given to enter into possession.

- § 14. Upon application of the company to any circuit or county court of any county, through or into which it may be proposed to construct said road, or any branch thereof, it shall be the duty of said court, or any judge thereof in vacation, to appoint a civil engineer and two disinterested Commissioners, any two of whom may act, to examine the proposed route of said road or branch within said county, and take from the owners of the lands over which it is to pass, a grant of the right of way of such width as may be desired, and to take any grants of real estate and other property or interests as aforesaid, which may be required for the purposes of the company; and they jointly or severally shall have the same power and authority to take and certify under their hands and seals the acknowledgments of such grants in fee, or right of way, or interest, and the separate acknowledgments of married women, that the clerks of the several county courts have; and on the presentation of the grant, and acknowledgment to the clerk of the county court, it shall be the duty of the clerk to record the same; and they shall be effectual against all persons according to their tenor: Provided, That when any of the owners are infants, or absent, or fail or refuse to make the necessary grant, they shall hear any proof that may be adduced, and upon their own view proceed to value any land required for the right of way, taking into consideration in each case the present value of the whole of any tract or parcel of land, of which that to be taken forms a part, and the fair prospective value of the remainder, after such part shall have been taken and the road constructed and in useful operation; and shall proceed in like manner to value any real estate, or other property, materials and interests as aforesaid, required for the purposes of the company, and report the value or damages they have affixed, together with the evidence adduced, to the court appointing them, with a map and profile of the route, and a description of the property appropriated; and said report may be filed with the clerk of such court, and a summons issued to the owners to show cause against the confirmation of said report; but if any owner shall be out of the state, the summons may be executed upon his known agent, if there be one in the county, and if there be no known agent, then the court may order the appearance of the party at a named day, and appoint the clerk to give the owner notice by letter; and in case of there being infant owners, the court shall appoint guardians ad litem for them, and cause the guardian to appear and act for them; and in case an absent defendant does not appear, the court shall appoint an attorney of the court to act for him. It shall be lawful for the company, or any owner, or for both, to traverse the report, and for the court to have the traverse tried in open court by a competent jury; on which trial the report and evidence returned as aforesaid shall be heard, together with such other proof as either party may produce. A new trial to the finding of the jury may be granted as in other cases. The report shall stand for hearing as to any owner when the process has been executed ten days, or after the appearance of an owner on the day fixed for his appearance; and the court shall have jurisdiction to confirm the report if no traverse is filed; and in case a traverse is filed, to have the same tried by a jury, and to give judgment upon the report or finding of the jury, and order the payment of the money awarded; and the execution of the grant in accordance with the report, and to have the grant executed by a Commissioner appointed by the court, and order them to be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court; and either party may have an appeal or writ of error to the proceedings, but no appeal or writ of error shall prevent the company from taking and holding the property and interests thus acquired, and using the same according to the terms of the grant; and any further proceedings shall only affect the amount of compensation to be allowed: Provided, The assessed or estimated value of the advantages to the adjoining lands shall in no case be deducted from or set off against the value of the land actually taken, but the full value of the same shall be allowed.

§ 15. If there be adverse or conflicting claimants to any part of the money awarded as aforesaid, the court may order the money to be paid into the said court, or take security from the said company, until it can determine who is entitled to the same, and shall direct to whom the same shall be paid; and may, in its discretion, order a reference to ascertain the facts on which such determination and order are to be made.

§ 16. Similar proceedings may be had whenever the company wish to acquire title by appraisal of damages; and if, at any time, it shall be found that any title thereby or otherwise attempted to be acquired, is defective, the company may proceed anew to acquire or perfect the same, in the same manner as if no appraisal had been made; and at any stage of such new proceedings, the court may authorize the company, if in possession, to continue in possession, and if not in possession to take possession; and may stay all actions against the company, upon the company paying into court a sufficient sum, as the court may direct, to pay the final award; and in every such case the owner may conduct the proceedings to a conclusion, if the company delays or omits to prosecute the same.

§ 17. If at any time after the location of the road, or any branch thereof, in whole or in part, it shall appear that the line may be improved, the company may, from time to time, alter the line, and thereupon take possession of the lands embraced in such new location, in such manner and by such proceedings as are authorized in the preceding sections of this act, and use the same in place of the line for which the new is substituted.

§ 18. The company may construct their railroad and branches across any navigable river, water course, road, highway, railroad, or canal, in such manner as to afford security to life and property, and so as not to interfere with the free use of the same, and shall restore the same to its former state, or in a sufficient manner not to have impaired its usefulness or injured its franchises; and may cross, intersect, or connect their road with any other railroad; at any point upon its route, and upon the grounds of such other Railroad Company, with the necessary sidings, switches, and other conveniences, upon such terms as the two companies can agree; and if they cannot agree upon the amount of compensation to be made therefor, or the point or manner of such crossings or connections, the same shall be ascertained and determined by Commissioners to be appointed as provided in respect to the taking of lands; but this section is not to affect the rights or franchises heretofore granted to such other Company; and full power is hereby reserved to the state to authorize any other Railroad Company to cross, intersect, or connect their road, in like manner, and upon like terms, with the railroad belonging to this Company.

§ 19. The President and Directors of the Company shall have power to make any arrangements, and enter into articles of agreement with any Railroad Company for the running of cars, engines, or trains over their respective roads, or for any other purpose, and, with the consent of a majority in value of the stockholders, may consolidate their business and interests with such other company, so far as may be deemed expedient and mutually beneficial to themselves and the public.

§ 20. The Company shall have the same power to construct any branch road to the Ohio or Mississippi river, in a good direction to connect with the most favorable route to the Pacific Ocean, or any other branch said Company may desire, which this charter gives them to construct the main line, and with the same rights and privileges, and with the same duties and restrictions.

§ 21. The Company shall have power to receive, transport, and convey persons and property on their railroad, by the force of steam, of animals, or any mechanical power, or any combination of machinery and powers, and may establish and regulate the time and manner in which passengers and property shall be transported, and the tolls and compensation to be paid therefor to said Company: Provided, such compensation shall not exceed, per ton of freight and per passenger, for tolls, one and a half cents per mile, and for transportation four cents per mile, except coal, or iron, or lead ore, which shall be transported any distance over twenty miles for not more than two cents per mile per ton.

§ 22. The Company shall have power to establish a telegraph along the line of their road, and may erect and use any apparatus for conveying intelligence with rapidity, by means of signals or otherwise.

§ 23. Whenever the Company shall have finished five miles of their road, they may prosecute their business as if the whole work was completed: Provided, That if they do not commence their road and expend five per cent. of their capital stock thereon within ten years, this act of incorporation shall be void.

§ 24. If any person or persons shall willfully, by any means whatsoever, injure, obstruct, impair, or destroy any part of any railroad constructed for said Company under this act, or any of their works, buildings, carriages, or machinery, or property of any kind, such person or persons shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay to said Company a sum equal to twice the amount of damages sustained by said Company by reason thereof, which may be recovered in the name of said Company by action in the Circuit Court of the county wherein such offense shall be committed.

§ 25. The President and Directors shall annually or semi-annually declare and make such dividend as they may deem proper, of the net profits arising from the business and resources of the Company, after deducting a reserved fund for the current and probable contingent expenses, and shall divide the same among the stockholders in proportion to their respective shares: Provided, That when stock shall be subscribed for the construction of a branch, or any part of the road within a particular county, they may provide that such stock shall not be entitled to draw dividends until the said branch or part of the road shall be completed, and that any preferred stock shall draw dividends according to the terms of the issue; but in all cases the Company shall allow interest, in the form of assignable certificates, redeemable in stock, on all payments for stock, from the time of making such payments until an equivalent dividend on the stock shall be declared: And it is further provided, That all sums of money contributed and expended for preliminary examinations, surveys, and proceedings, in furtherance of the objects of this charter, previous to the organization of this Company, may duly certified to the contributors thereof by the chairman of the executive committee appointed by the Railroad Convention at Hopkinsville, October 3d, 1853; and such certificates shall be received by the Company in payment for stock.

§ 26. The Louisville and Memphis Railroad Company may receive subscriptions to their capital stock by any state, city, county, railroad Company, or other corporation whatever, payable in such manner, and upon such conditions, as shall be accepted by said Company; and the board of councilmen of any city and the County Courts of any county are hereby authorized to levy on the taxable property of such city or county such sums of money as shall be sufficient to pay their respective subscriptions, or the interest on their bonds, or the principal when due; but no such subscriptions shall be made until the board of councilmen or the County Court, as the case may be, shall have submitted the question of such subscription to all the qualified voters of such city or county, and if a majority of all the qualified voters in any county or city shall vote for such subscription and tax, then the same shall be assessed and made on behalf of such county or city, and not otherwise; unless the vote be taken at a general election, in which case the subscription may be made, if the proposition receive in its favor a majority of the votes cast for or against it: Provided, That unless a majority of all the legal voters of Meade county shall vote in favor of any tax or subscription proposed to be levied or made by said county, in aid of said road, the same shall not be assessed, levied, collected, or made.

§ 27. Whenever the said Company shall request the County Court of any county, or city council of any city, to subscribe, either absolutely or conditionally, a specified amount to the capital stock of said Company, the court or council, as the case may be, shall, within sixty days thereafter, on a day appointed by said court or council, cause a vote of the people to be taken at the several election precincts in such county or city, and shall appoint the judges and other officers necessary to conduct the election; and return thereof shall be made to the clerk of the County Court, or mayor of the city, as the case may be, within ten days after the vote is taken.

§ 28. At the next term of the County Court or meeting of the city council, after the return of the vote as aforesaid, the said court or council shall order the vote for and against the subscription to be entered upon its records, and if a majority of the votes cast shall be in favor of the subscription, the County Court, by their Clerk, or the city council, by the mayor of the city, as the case may be, shall make it forthwith in the name of such subscribing county or city.

§ 29. Whenever any such subscription shall be made by any county, the County Court of such county shall have power to issue the bonds of the county, made negotiable and payable to the Louisville and Memphis Railroad Company, in the city of New York, at not more than sixty years from the date of the issue, with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually in the city of New York, and with coupons attached, under the seal of the County Court, signed by the presiding judge thereof, and countersigned by the clerk, in payment for the full amount of such subscription: Provided, That the County Court of any county shall have power to levy a direct tax, sufficient to pay, by annual installments, in a specified number of years, the whole of such subscription: And provided further, That the County Court of any county as aforesaid, shall have power to pay such subscription, partly in bonds and partly in cash, at such times and upon such conditions as shall be most acceptable to said court, and to the Company.

§ 30. Whenever any county shall have issued bonds in payment for the whole, or any part of such subscription, until the dividends on the stock thus paid for shall be sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds, the County Court shall levy a tax on the property, both real and personal, as listed for state purposes, which shall lie or be most usually kept in said county, sufficient after making a reasonable allowance for delinquencies to pay said interest, or such part thereof as such dividends shall be at any time insufficient to pay; and said levy shall include the amount given in under the equalization law.

§ 31. Within twenty days after any tax shall have been levied in any county to pay the whole or any part of such subscription, or to pay any interest on any county bonds issued to the company as aforesaid, the presiding judge of the county court shall summons the justices of the peace to meet together on a day to be by him appointed, at not more than sixty days after the time such levy was made, to elect three persons, who shall be called the commissioners of the sinking fund of said county. One of said commissioners shall hold his office for one year, another for two years, and another for three years—the term of each to be decided by lot; and annually, after the first election, the justices of the peace shall re-assemble and elect a commissioner to fill the place of the one whose term shall then expire, and such commissioner shall serve three years. Said commissioners shall annually appoint one of their number treasurer, and such treasurer, before he receives any money under the provisions of this act, shall execute bond, with security, to be approved by the county court, in double the sum which will probably be collected during the year then to ensue, under the provisions of this act, payable to said county, and conditioned to account for and pay over, on the order of said commissioners, all funds which shall come into his hands under the provisions of this act; and said treasurer shall be allowed not exceeding one per cent. of all moneys he shall receive and pay over. In case of any vacancy by death, resignation, or from any other cause, in said board of commissioners, such vacancy shall be filled, for the unexpired term, by the county court.

§ 32. The sheriff of any such subscribing county shall collect all taxes levied under the authority of this act, and for that purpose he shall have the same powers of distraining, advertising and selling personal estate and slaves, which he has in the collection of the state revenue; and whenever he shall be unable to find any personal estate or slaves liable to the tax of any individual, he may levy on the real estate of such individual, and sell the same, under the rules and regulations prescribed for the sale of real estate under execution; but the owner of any real estate thus sold, who shall not have consented to the said sale in writing, shall have five years to redeem the same; upon payment of the purchase money, and ten per cent. interest per annum, with all taxes and levies which shall have accrued subsequently to the sale. Said sheriff shall execute bond with security, to be approved by the county court, in double the sum which will probably be collected under the provisions of this act, payable to the county, and conditioned to account for and pay over, from time to time, to the said commissioners of the sinking fund, upon their order, all funds which shall come into his hands under the authority of this act; and said sheriff shall be allowed for his services not to exceed five per cent. of all moneys thus collected and paid over.

§ 33. The commissioners of the sinking fund of any such subscribing county, shall see that the sheriff collects and pays over, according to law, the taxes herein provided to be levied, and shall institute legal proceedings against him in case of failure. They shall appropriate such taxes to the payment, at the office of the Louisville and Memphis Railroad Company, of the amount to be paid by such subscribing county in cash; and shall also appropriate such taxes as shall be levied to pay interest on the bonds issued by the county, to the payment at the city of New York of such interest, according to the purpose of the levy and the terms of subscription. They shall cast the votes to which their county shall be entitled at all elections, and at any general meetings of the stockholders of said company. They shall receive the dividends upon all the stock held in the name of the county, and apply them first to the payment of the interest on the county bonds; and when a surplus shall accrue after the payment of such interest, they shall apply such surplus to the purchase of their county bonds, if they can be purchased at par or under, and if that cannot be done, they shall invest such surplus in some safe and profitable manner, so that when it shall at any time be wanted for the purchase or payment of the bonds, it can be speedily and readily converted into cash for that purpose.

§ 34. All dividends which shall be received upon the stock held and owned by any county under this act, shall be sacredly set apart as a sinking fund, to be only used, as above provided, for the payment of the principal and interest on the bonds which shall be issued by any county under this act.

§ 35. § 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That the Governor is hereby authorized and required, as soon as may be after the passage of this act, to appoint a state geologist, who shall be a person of competent, scientific and practical knowledge of the sciences of geology and mineralogy; and the said state geologist shall, by and with the consent of the governor, appoint two suitable persons to assist him in the discharge of his duties, one of whom shall be a competent and skillful chemist.

§ 2. That it shall be the duty of the said state geologist and his assistants, as soon as may be practicable after his said appointment, to commence and carry on, with as much expedition and dispatch as may be consistent with minuteness and accuracy, a thorough geological, mineralogical, and chemical survey of this state, with a view to determine the order, succession, arrangement, relative position, and comparative magnitude of the several strata or geological formations of this state, and to discover and examine all beds or deposits of ore, coal, and such other mineral substances as may be useful or valuable, and to analyze the same; and to perform such other duties as may be necessary to make a full and complete geological, mineralogical, and chemical survey of this state.

§ 3. That it shall be the duty of the said state geologist and his assistants to make full and complete examinations, assays, and analyses of all such rocks, ores, or other substances, as may be submitted to them for that purpose, and to furnish, if required, a detailed and complete account of the results so obtained; and at the court house of each county in this state, in which he shall discover valuable mineral deposits, the said geologist shall deliver either a written or verbal discourse upon their examinations, assays, and analyses of all such rocks and ores within such county, and said geologist, or his assistants, shall deposit at the clerk's office of such county in which he shall discover minerals, such specimens as he shall deem of value, for the inspection of the citizens and visitors of said county.

§ 4. That it shall be the duty of the said geologist and his assistants to visit and make such exploration of each county in this state, beginning with the mineral regions, as will be sufficient to satisfy him whether it contains valuable mineral deposits, and the extent, nature and value thereof.

§ 5. That it shall be the duty of said geologist and his assistants, on or before the first day of December in each and every year, to make a report of the progress of said survey, accompanied with such maps, drawings, and specimens, as may be necessary and proper to exemplify and elucidate the same, to the governor, who shall lay such report before the general assembly.

§ 6. That it shall be the duty of the said state geologist and his assistants to forward to the governor, from time to time, during the progress of said survey, such specimens of rocks, ores, coals, and other mineral substances or useful matters discovered and examined, as may be proper and necessary to form a complete cabinet of the specimens of geology, mineralogy, and other useful matters of the state; and the governor shall cause the same to be deposited in proper order in some convenient room in the state capital, there to be preserved for public inspection.

§ 7. That for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act, the sum of ten thousand dollars be, and the same is hereby appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the governor: Provided, however, the principal geologist shall not receive more than seven dollars per day, nor the assistants more than five dollars per day each, for the time they are in actual service: And, provided, further, that the appropriation herein made shall only be used so far as the governor may find, on investigation, necessary to obtain the services of a competent geologist and assistants during that part of the year when such geologist can be profitably employed in the prosecution of such survey.

§ 8. The governor shall have power to remove any of the persons appointed under this act for negligence or incompetency, or any other cause which he may deem sufficient for such removal, and appoint others in their stead.

§ 9. The principal geologist and each of his assistants, before entering upon the duties of their offices, shall take an oath faithfully to perform all the services required of them under this act, and to abstain from all pecuniary speculations for themselves or others in the objects of their survey during their progress, and that they will not conceal any valuable discovery or information from the owner or owners of the land on which such discovery is made, but will in all things so conduct the survey, &c., as will (if practicable to do so,) duly notify the community generally, and especially the owner or owners of the land on which all such valuable discoveries are made.

WM. M. COFFEY, } Committee.
JOSEPH N. EVE,

GOVERNOR POWELL'S ADDRESS.

Governor Wright—It affords me pleasure to welcome you to the Capital of Kentucky. Forming, as the States of this Union do, one great confederacy, it is greatly to be desired that the most friendly and unreserved intercourse should exist between the people of the respective States. Such intercourse will strengthen and unite more closely the bonds of our Union.

From the earliest period in the history of our respective States, the kindest feeling has existed between them. It had its origin in the common dangers, toils, and difficulties incident to frontier settlements, as well as in geographical contiguity. It has been preserved, by each faithfully fulfilling its constitutional obligations to the other. It is now hallowed by the sacred memories of the past. It is upon the observance of good faith between the States, that the Union is to be preserved in its purity and strength. This friendly intercourse commenced with our first Governors. It is a fact worthy of note that Governor SCOTT, one of the first Governors of Kentucky, commissioned WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON, Governor of the Indiana Territory, Major General of the Militia of Kentucky, and that Governor HARRISON visited the Capital of Kentucky, and received the commission from the hands of the Governor of this Commonwealth.

This was not the only time our early Governors met. In 1813, when the tide of war, with its frightful and devastating ravages, had rolled over the Northwest, and the sun had set upon the bloody field of the River Raisin, and Proctor and Tecumseh were victorious, General HARRISON, the first Governor of the Indiana Territory, was in command of the army of the Northwest. The mournful tidings of the bloody massacre of the Raisin had reached Kentucky. "A voice of lamentation like that which went up from Egypt when the first-born of every house was slain," arose from almost every dwelling in Kentucky; for almost every family numbered a friend or a relation among the slain. That venerable patriot, ISAAC SHELBY, the hero of King's Mountain, the first Governor of Kentucky, was for the second time Governor of the State. He called for volunteers, and, at the head of 5,000 brave Kentuckians, marched to the Northwest and joined the army of General HARRISON. Then the first Governor of the Indiana Territory welcomed the first Governor of Kentucky. They did not meet as you and I, to extend and receive hospitalities and social courtesies. They met around the camp fire and in the war council. Their voices were not heard in extending social greetings, but in urging their brave soldiers to the charge at the Thames.

What mighty changes have taken place since that meeting of our patriot fathers! Kentucky was then a frontier State, and the few feeble settlements of the Indiana Territory were the very outposts of Western civilization. The area of freedom has been extended. The tide of civilization has rolled on, even to the Pacific. Our population has increased from eight to twenty-five millions. We have grown from eighteen to thirty-one sovereign States, all enjoying civil, religious, and political liberty, in its fullest extent, and protected and bound together by the broad and strong shield of the National Constitution. I welcome, to-day, the Governor of one of the sovereign States formed out of the Indiana Territory—a State containing a population of a million of inhabitants—a million of free Christian people—rich in all the elements of national wealth. Schools and seminaries have sprung up throughout your State, and from all over the land the spires of the temples dedicated to the worship of the living God pierce the heavens. We have witnessed, with pride and pleasure, the rapid growth of your State. The forest has been reclaimed. Towns and cities have sprung up. Canals and railroads have been made. Agriculture, commerce, manufactures, and all the industrial pursuits, have prospered. The arts and sciences have flourished. Your improvement has been wonderful, indeed. But all you have accomplished, great as it is, is but an earnest of what you will do; and what you are, but slightly indicates what you will be, when your resources are fully developed. We have witnessed, with pleasure, your patriotic efforts to promote and encourage all that is useful in your State.

Kentucky and Indiana have ever been true to themselves, and true to the National Constitution. The prompt and cheerful manner with which they have performed the duties incumbent upon them, under the national compact, has only been equalled by their attachment and devotion to the common Union. It was left for you, sir, to resume the social intercourse that had existed between our early Governors. A few years since, one of my distinguished predecessors, upon your invitation, visited the Capital of Indiana, and was most handsomely and gracefully received. And, I assure you, sir, that it affords us unmixed pleasure to reciprocate your hospitalities. You have chosen an auspicious day to visit us—the birth-day of Washington—a day consecrated to liberty—a day, of all others, on which the Governors and people of the sovereign States of this Union should meet and interchange fraternal greetings, and mingle together as one great family.

You are surrounded, to-day, by the descendants of the heroes of Tippecanoe, Fort Harrison, and the Thames. While Kentucky shall exist, the glorious memories of Tippecanoe will linger with her sons, and, in all time to come, our children will make their pilgrimages to your State, and muse upon that field consecrated by the blood of their patriot fathers.

It is not my purpose to entertain you with a set speech, but to extend to you the hospitalities of the State. We receive you with open arms and warm hearts, and bid you welcome—thrice welcome—to Kentucky.

GOVERNOR WRIGHT'S REPLY.

Governor Powell, Senators, Representatives, and Fellow Citizens:

I need not say to you that I feel embarrassed after the eloquent remarks of your distinguished Governor, and from the kind treatment I have received since I entered your State. It has been one continual mark of respect from the time I touched Kentucky's shore. There is nothing in my history, in my past life, deserving of this. I owe it all to your excellent Governor, and the kindness and liberality of Kentuckians. I regard all this as a compliment to my State, and not to me, and in this view will cherish the recollections of this hour to the latest period of my life.

But these evidences of your kindness are made the more enduring when I recollect it was stated by your worthy Governor, in the letter of invitation, and in the course of his eloquent address of to-day, that the object in view is to cause a more intimate and friendly intercourse between the different States of this Union.

Governor Powell, you refer to the invitation extended to Governor Crittenden to visit our State in 1850, and have alluded to me in connection therewith. That invitation, sir, came from the people of Indiana, and it was due to the exalted worth, talents and services of your then distinguished Executive. It was peculiarly appropriate, in the dark hour of our country's history, when the tempest of disunion frowned in the political horizon, that the people of two States like Kentucky and Indiana, differing in their institutions, should meet together, smoke the pipe of peace, and pledge themselves to the support of the Constitution. It was eminently proper, in this dark and trying hour, that the heart of this nation should speak, and when Kentucky and Indiana spoke, the heart did speak.

The associations of this day, and the circumstances that surround us, are well calculated to make our hearts swell with gratitude for the innumerable blessings we enjoy. It behooves each one of us to cultivate a more intimate and friendly intercourse between the different members of the confederacy.

The public men of Kentucky are the property of the nation; their fame and deeds belong to us all. Your favorite son, the defender of the constitution, the embodiment of concession, conciliation, and compromise, who won justly for himself the proud name of the peace-maker, will live so long as a friend of free principles shall be left to admire independence, eloquence, and zeal in behalf of republican institutions. The highest tribute to his memory, here and throughout the world, is HENRY CLAY, of Kentucky.

It is right, proper, and mete, that every son and daughter of the great center and heart of this nation should make a visit to Kentucky. There is a debt due you which you desire only to be paid in contributions to the future greatness and glory of the confederacy. No other spot in this Union is more richly deserving the homage of the sons and daughters of the Mississippi Valley, if they desire to pay a suitable tribute to the living, and to embalm the memories of the dead. The eloquence, the patriotism, and the rigid virtues of Kentucky, are the common property of this nation, and as such meriting a universal acknowledgment of respect. As one of the representatives of Indiana, I am proud to tender to you to-day a portion of that regard which is due from us as a member of the sisterhood of States, and in making this tender, be assured we are satisfied we are only doing our duty.

For near forty years, your sons guarded this immense frontier from the red coat and the red man. You were the breakwater that held in check the enemies of the country. Seven thousand of your sons traversed this great valley during the war of 1812; you stood as sentinels for this cluster of States, now inhabited by eight millions of freemen. The battle of the Thames belongs to the glory of Kentucky; it was to the Northwest what New Orleans was to the Southwest, the peacemaker. And be it said to the glory and honor of Kentucky, while we have had a Black Hawk War, and a Florida War, costing millions to the National Government, and old and new States have been exacting from the national treasury, from time to time, remuneration for past services, Kentucky has never asked from the government for past services a dollar, although her blood flowed upon the battlefields of the North and South, and her sons marched at a moment's warning to defend the firesides of every settler in what is now more than one-half of the territory of this Republic.

Kentucky has been to the Northwest, the South and Southwest, the great nursery from which have been transplanted many precious scions. Your sons like good footholds, and have no objections to the extension of "the area of freedom." I believe that story told of the Kentuckian who visited the Crystal Palace, at London, in 1851. Being asked by a son of John Bull, after spending some time at the Exhibition of the Wealth and Industry of all Nations, whether he had been around the Island, he replied in the negative; when interrogated in regard to his reason, he answered, "he was fearful that he should fall off." I have in my eye, at this moment, many of your sons who settled in Indiana thirty years ago, and who, when their neighbors were near enough to exchange daily salutations, pulled up stakes and filed away to the farther west. Twenty years ago I heard of some of them on the summits of the Ozarks—since then, driving the first teams across the Rocky Mountains; and doubtless to-day, they are hunting for more territory among the lost islands of the Pacific. Your sons are practical annexationists.

Kentucky and Indiana are not in the West; we are in the heart of the Republic. Thirty-six years ago, I came from the slope of the Alleghanies to the interior of Indiana, when she contained less than a hundred thousand inhabitants, and Kentucky less than half a million. Now these States number over two millions. This country was then called the West. Fifteen years ago, I went to the State of Iowa, situated at a distance of 500 miles from Indiana, and after inquiring of my relatives about some of their neighbors, was informed that they had gone West from Iowa. I have never found the West. Our sons and daughters that went, a few years ago to the Pacific, and bathed in its waters, may have found it, but if they were successful, before they had time to communicate us intelligence as to what composed the West, two great Territories and States sprung into existence and were welcomed into the brotherhood of Nations.

If we should take time to investigate the question of the centre of the population of our happy republic, and trace it from the year 1790 to the present period, we should find it moving almost in a direct line from the seaboard to the waters of the Mississippi, and perhaps to-day it is not far from the great States of Kentucky, Ohio, and Indiana.

That centre will never pass the waters of the Mississippi. Two hundred millions are to be protected by our glorious constitution in the next seventy-five years; one hundred and fifty millions of them in this great valley, thirty upon the Eastern coast extending around to Florida, and twenty on the Pacific.

Kentucky and Indiana are in the very heart of the Republic, and from that heart are to issue forth the streams that are to give health, life, peace, and prosperity to the nation. No great question has been settled in the last thirty years without the voice of this section of the nation, and this must continue to be so in all time to come. We are two contiguous States that differ in our social laws and institutions, but our past history is a sure guarantee that the peace and prosperity of each will be found in maintaining mutually a friendly intercourse, and frequent meetings with each other. May our future be as harmonious as the past, and our united motto—The land conquered under freedom's banner shall be consecrated to freedom and union, now and forever.

There is a community of interest between the people of Kentucky and Indiana, and in fact between the whole Northwest, South, and Southwest. Our associations, commerce and trade, must make us more and more united in feeling and sentiment. Kentucky is now within ten hours' travel of ports upon the inland seas of the North. The tendency of trade and commerce is to these northern lakes. The trade and commerce of this belt of States, running, say South of Tennessee, and North of Michigan to the Pacific, cannot and will not remain tributary to the Eastern ports. You will soon be within forty hours' travel of Charleston, South Carolina. This iron band will unite the South and Southwest with the North and Northwest; the sons and daughters of the sunny South will spend their summer months upon the healthful lakes within a few hours of Kentucky; and the center of the Republic will build up by its trade and commerce those great arteries of trade which will be well calculated to make the people one in feeling and in opinions.

We shall learn some of these days that although the sun rises in the East, yet the glittering allurements of wealth will be found along those iron bands that will soon connect the South with the lakes of the North.

In this valley, thank heaven, we have no men who go to bed simmering, and rise in the morning boiling with rage about Northern rights and Southern rights. Here we sit quietly under the shade of our mighty oaks, each State attending to its municipal government. Peace dwells in this valley; Kentuckians have a higher law—they have an inalienable law—it is most righteously called the law of Fair Play. Hands off—boys, decide for yourselves! To this, Indiana says amen and amen. Kentuckians and Indianians teach their children that this Union consists of something more than iron mills and factories in the North, and cotton bales and sugar farms in the South.

It is gratifying to witness Kentuckians and Indianians, mingling together as one people. The great mass of the people of both States turn away from that mis-called philanthropy which sets at defiance the solemn compact of our fathers, which would violate all law and order, and which makes each man's conscience the arbiter of constitutional rights. Differing in the structure of our social relations, we come up to the bond of our Union, the ark of safety—the Constitution—consequently the property of the Kentuckian is returned as promptly to his owner by the Indianian, as his is, in return, by the Kentuckian. I ardently hope that the citizens of Kentucky and Indiana will ever retain the proud distinction they now enjoy, of living as a people foremost in sustaining the rights due to each other, and regarding and faithfully fulfilling the obligations that they owe to each member of this confederacy of brothers. It is true that the government of the United States is not perfect, but man has established none better—none so good. Through the many centuries of the Past and among the restless nations of the Present, and over the habitable globe, wherever man has made a home, we may search in vain for a political confederation more free, and better adapted, in its practical operations, to raise the whole human family to the highest attainable condition of virtue, freedom, knowledge, political equality, prosperity, and safety. The hand of an overruling and unseen Providence is visible in the unexampled blessings which are scattered all round us. A nation of freemen, stretching from ocean to ocean, from State to State, embracing free thought, free religion, free Bible, schools, homes, churches, libraries, and asylums!

The truth is, we always find our neighbors better upon acquaintance; the worst of all neighbors are those with whom we have no intercourse. Strife and bitterness are always the characteristics of those who communicate little with each other; harmony and brotherly kindness are ever incident to frequent and hearty interchange of sentiments and feelings. I have always admired that trait in the character of the Patriarch Abraham which induced him to contend with the angel of the Lord that there were many godly men among the Sodomites. Abraham had faith in his neighbors.

Kentucky has not as many precious metals in her midst as California, nor as much wealth as some of the other members of the confederacy, but if Lazarus was poor, [alluding to the first name of Gov. Powell] yet Kentucky is rich in the valor, strength, and integrity of her sons, and in the virtue and beauty of her daughters. Above all, she is rich in the universally acknowledged characteristics of her people, that they love the whole Union; every inch and foot of territory of this wide-spread Republic is alike to the Kentuckian. When the day and hour of peril and war arrive, Kentucky asks not where the defense or the attack is to be made, whether North or South—Our country calls, our sons are ready.

On crossing the beautiful Ohio, on yesterday, I was reminded of the custom of some of the aboriginal inhabitants of this country, in performing the marriage ceremony of the tribe. The bride stood upon one side of the stream, and the groom upon the other, their hands plaited together, and the clear living waters of the rivulet, emblematical of their virtue and purity, and tending to a common union—the great ocean of love. Kentucky and Indiana have clasped hands upon the Thames and the Tippecanoe, and at Buena Vista, and for forty years, in peace and in war, they have been shaking hands; and to-day [shaking the hand of Gov. Powell] they renew the covenant afresh, that Kentucky and Indiana will live by the bond of their union—the ark—the covenant—the pillar—the cloud—the constitution! They theoretically and practically carry out the doctrine of non-intervention, each State attending to its own municipal affairs.

If there be upon this green earth a place where the sentiment of the poet is peculiarly appropriate, Kentucky is that spot: "What State would fall, what Empire decay, if man's noisy patriotism were as pure as the silent loyalty of woman's love and devotion."

This is the land where your mothers, according to history, "chawed bullets," and learned to use the weapons of war in defense of home and country. It is right, proper, and meet that their daughters should be present to participate in the festivities of this occasion. We cannot succeed without the influence of woman. The wise man says, "Lord, help, for the godly man ceaseth;" but there is not a passage in the bible which says the godly woman ever ceaseth or faileth.

The woman's rights of our valley are different from those of other portions of the country; with us, they are something like those of the German women of other days. When placed, after a severe battle, in a fort with their husbands, and barricaded up, they petitioned the successful general to let them out with what they could carry with them. So modest a request was granted. When the doors were opened, each woman was seen carrying her husband in her arms! In this valley, husbands take care of their wives, and wives of their husbands.

The world never witnessed such a busy, bustling, energetic crowd of human beings as we have with us. We are on the fast line—scarcely time to speak to each other as we pass by in the transaction of the busy affairs of the day; and there may be some truth in the story related of the young lady who had been going to school, and said, "I must leave school to-day." When asked for the reason why, she said, "I was married last night," and when again asked why she did not give the information sooner, appropriately replied, "He never asked me till sundown."

Senators and Representatives of the renowned Commonwealth of Kentucky, and fellow-citizens, permit me again to return you my grateful and profound acknowledgments for the manifestations of your kindness at every step of my progress. I can never forget the open hearts, liberal souls, cheerful countenances, and smiling faces, that have greeted me since I entered your borders. This exhibition of kindness and welcome on your part, I receive on behalf of a million and a quarter—your neighbors—your sister State—Indiana—and not for myself.

May we ever continue to dwell in peace and unity, illustrating the sentiment of the poet:

“Kindred alike where'er our skies may shine,
Where'er our sight first drank the vital morn,
Brothers! one bond around our souls should twine,
And woe to him by whom that bond is torn!”

May we cherish, in all time to come, a community of sentiment, a brotherhood of feeling, and be that happy people whose God is the Lord.

In conclusion, permit me to offer you, not in behalf of the people of Indiana alone, but in behalf of eight millions of freemen in the Valley of the Mississippi, the following sentiment, which is due to you, and to you alone:

KENTUCKY: the first child of the Revolution: her subsequent history fully proves that her sons have not been unmindful of the baptismal vows of their fathers.

On motion of Mr. Fain,

Ordered, That leave of absence for the balance of the session be granted him.

The committee on the Judiciary reported a bill to reduce into one an act and to amend an act, entitled, an act establishing Tobacco Inspections in the city of Louisville, which was read the first time as follows, viz:

§ 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That Inspections of leaf tobacco in hogsheads may be had in the city of Louisville, and warehouses for the inspection, storage, and sale of tobacco shall be constructed so as to keep safely and securely, and guard against fire and the weather as far as practicable, all tobacco stored therein, and such houses shall at all times be kept open and in good repair, for receiving, storing, inspecting, selling and delivering tobacco in hogsheads. Such warehouses shall be hereafter established by the city council, but such owner or owners shall have the right to close or discontinue his or their warehouses at pleasure, after giving notice to said council of such intention, sixty days before the time fixed by him or them for closing said tobacco warehouse.

§ 2. Such warehouses shall be used for the storing, &c., of tobacco as aforesaid, and shall be kept open and in proper condition with the necessary conveniences to receive, inspect, sell, and deliver hogsheads of tobacco; the proprietor of each tobacco warehouse shall provide and continually keep in the same, and in good order, scales of sufficient size and strength to weigh at least one ton weight, and shall be tested once in every year, and oftener if necessary, by the standard weights and measures, and shall provide a sufficient number of coopers to do the coopering and to handle tobacco stored, inspected and sold in such warehouses, and to do all things needful in receiving, storing, inspecting, selling, coopering, and delivering tobacco. The said warehouse keepers shall superintend the weighing each hogshead of tobacco, and see that the empty casks are properly weighed and that the proper number and weights, gross, tare and net, is marked on one of the heads of the same. They shall cause each hogshead to be uncased and shall furnish the necessary hands to break the same. The inspectors shall then cause it to be broke not less than three times, and oftener shall they deem it necessary; and shall draw samples from each hogshead, not exceeding ten pounds in quantity, of the quality thereof.

§ 3. The proprietors shall keep a well bound book of proper size, in which shall be entered the marks, numbers, gross, tare, and net weight of each hogshead inspected and sold, together with owner's name and the name of the purchaser, and the price sold for, per cwt. and the amount each hogshead sold for, and when requested to do so collect and pay to the planter and seller of tobacco the sum due him. He shall make account of sales for the planter or seller, stating the number of hogsheads, gross, tare, net, price per cwt. and the sum each hogshead comes to.

§ 4. No proprietor or any of his agents shall directly or indirectly be engaged in buying leaf tobacco in the city of Louisville, nor shall they rent or have any portion of their warehouse to be used for the sale of tobacco in the hogshead, except as provided for in this act, the proprietor shall be liable for his agents and servants and for the safe keeping and delivery in their warehouse, except in case of fire or unavoidable accidents, and shall deliver all tobacco to the owner on the sidewalk, within a reasonable time after demanded at the warehouse, on presentation of the receipt to one of the proprietors of the house or his clerk, and the payment of the fees due on said tobacco.

§ 5. The proprietors of each warehouse shall enter into bond with good security, to be approved by the Mayor and general council of the city of Louisville, payable to the Commonwealth of Kentucky, in the sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned well and truly to perform and comply with all the provisions of this act, and the injured party, if any, may sue thereon and recover by civil suit for his own benefit as in other cases, for any injury; and any such proprietors shall, in addition, pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars to the Commonwealth of Kentucky, to be recovered as in other cases for any violation, neglect, failure, or refusal of himself, his agents, or servants, to perform the duties required by this act.

§ 6. The fees to be collected by the proprietors of the tobacco warehouses in the city of Louisville shall be as follows: one dollar and fifty-five cents for receiving, weighing, coopering, marking, making out bills of sale and paying the money to the seller, and making out and delivering the note to the purchaser, and fifty cents storage, and twenty cents to the inspectors; of this amount the planter or owner shall pay one dollar, and the purchaser shall pay one dollar and twenty-five cents when the note is made out and presented to said purchaser.

§ 7. That on the first meeting of the general council of the city of Louisville in the month of November, 1854, and every two years thereafter, the said council shall elect three competent persons who shall act as inspectors of tobacco in the city of Louisville, and hold their offices for two years and until three successors are elected and qualified; and the persons thus elected shall be required, if they are not so at the time, to become residents in the said city of Louisville; two of the said persons thus elected shall be the regular inspectors and the third shall act in the event of the absence, inability, or refusal of either of the regular inspectors, and the said council shall designate at the time of the election which two are the regular inspectors; and the two inspectors performing the duties of the office shall receive ten cents each on every hogshead of tobacco inspected by them. The said inspectors shall enter upon the duties of their office on the first Monday after their election, but before that time shall take an oath before some Justice of the Peace for the county of Jefferson, that they will well and truly and without partiality perform the duties of tobacco inspectors in the city of Louisville, and to comply with all requisitions of this act; the said inspectors shall neither directly or indirectly be engaged in purchasing or selling leaf tobacco, in hand or in the hogshead, and for every such offence he shall, upon conviction, pay to the Commonwealth of Kentucky the sum of five hundred dollars to be recovered as in other cases, and the city council may remove any inspector from office for a violation of his duty or any of the provisions of this act, and may fill vacancies. The inspectors shall each day between the hours of 8 o'clock, A. M., and 5 o'clock, P. M., attend to the inspection of tobacco at the different warehouses in the city of Louisville.

§ 8. The planter or owner of tobacco shall be required to take it to any warehouse in Louisville, or to have the same inspected or sold at auction at either of said warehouses, but when sold at auction may refuse to take the price at which the same was cried off.

§ 9. If any hogshead of tobacco shall remain in the warehouse twelve months, the proprietors of said warehouse shall be entitled to one dollar extra for storage, and at the same rate for the time it remains over one year, and shall be entitled to receive fifty cents storage on all tobacco which may remain in the house for less than one year; a lien is hereby given to the proprietors of warehouses and inspectors on all tobacco, and the proceeds, for the fees and charges on the same.

§ 10. It shall be the duty of the inspectors when required by seller or buyer, to seal the samples out of hogsheads of tobacco as made by them with marks and numbers corresponding with those upon the hogsheads from which they were taken; they shall class the same, if required by seller or buyer, by placing the letter P on the sample, which shall represent the word passed, or R, which shall represent refused.

§ 11. The proprietors of tobacco warehouses in the city of Louisville shall furnish twine for tying the samples of tobacco, and furnish cards of good pasteboard, with the name of the house printed thereon, to be tied on said samples, and they shall also furnish a stamp of tin, brass, or copper which they shall have the words Louisville Tobacco Inspection, and the name of the house shall also be on it, and the same shall be stamped on one of the heads of each hogshead of tobacco sold in said warehouse. This act shall take effect from and after its passage, permitting the present inspectors to hold their office until their successors are elected or appointed, and they (the present inspectors) shall receive for every hogshead so inspected by them, ten cents, to be paid them by the proprietors of the different warehouses, but after the first election under this act the fees of the inspectors shall be as herein prescribed.

§ 12. No proprietor, his agent, or servant, of any established tobacco warehouse in the city of Louisville shall sell or suffer to be sold at public outcry in said warehouse, by sample, any tobacco in hogsheads unless said tobacco has been inspected by the regular elected inspectors of tobacco in said city, and for every violation of this section the said proprietor shall be subject to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, to be recovered in the name of the Commonwealth, in any court of competent jurisdiction, at the instance of any person aggrieved; said fine shall be for the benefit of the Commonwealth and to be recovered in such manner as other like fines are now recovered by the Commonwealth.

§ 13. The following shall be the form of the note and receipt to be made out and assigned by the proprietors for each hogshead of leaf tobacco sold and weighed by them. We this — day of —, 18—, weighed and sold for —, in hogsheads of leaf tobacco No. —, marks —, gross —, tare —, nett —, price —. Witness our hands, the date above written. Said note shall be assignable by indorsement or delivery, and such assignment shall pass the title to the tobacco described in said note.

§ 14. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with the foregoing provisions are hereby repealed.

Ordered, That said bill be read a second time.

The rule of the House, constitutional provision, and second reading of said bill having been dispensed with,

Mr. Cravens moved to amend said bill by striking out all of the 7th section down to the words "and the two inspectors," printed in italics, and insert in lieu thereof the following, viz:

That from and after the first day of November next, there shall be but two inspectors of tobacco in the city of Louisville. The city council of Louisville shall, in the month of October next, elect a competent judge of tobacco inspector thereof, and the Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky shall, in said last mentioned month, appoint a competent judge of tobacco inspector thereof for said city, both of whom shall enter on the discharge of the duties of their offices on said first day of November, and shall continue in office for two years and until successors are elected and appointed and qualified. And the said city council shall at the same times appoint an alternate inspector of tobacco, whose duty it shall be to act in the absence of either of the other inspectors, who shall possess like qualifications and powers, and be subject to the same restrictions, and be entitled to the same fees for discharging the duties of the office, as the other inspectors are. The Governor and the city council aforesaid may, at any time, remove any inspector so by him appointed or by them elected; and shall when a vacancy occurs appoint another.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, }
Frankfort, Feb. 28, 1854. }

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:

Three days ago a bill, entitled, "an act to incorporate the Planters and Manufacturers Bank of Kentucky," was presented to me for my approval and signature. The banks in Kentucky had, in 1850, a circulation of $6,682,521. Since that time, the Farmers Bank of Kentucky, and Branches; the Southern Bank of Kentucky, and branches; the Commercial Bank of Kentucky, and branches; the Kentucky Trust Company Bank, and the Newport Safety Fund Bank, have gone into operation.

The banks of Kentucky now have a circulation of $13,299,000, independent of deposits, which, together with a portion of their capital, is used for banking purposes. Of the chartered capital of the present banks, there remains $3,550,623 untaken. There is now due to the banks the sum of $20,89,4795. This is an immense indebtedness, and the indebtedness of the community will be increased at least to the extent of the increased issue of the banks. This bill proposes to charter a bank with nine branches, with a capital of $2,600,000, with the privilege of extending it to $3,600,000. A bill entitled, "an act to amend the Deposit Bank of Covington," with two branches, and a capital of $800,000, has passed the two houses, and is now before me. Bills to establish the Milton Bank of Kentucky, with three branches, with a capital of $800,000, and the Falls City Bank of Kentucky, with one branch, and $600,000 of capital, are now before the legislature, and will probably pass. The former has passed the House of Representatives. The Northeastern Bank at Maysville, with a capital of $1,000,000; also, a bank at Paducah, with a capital of $300,000, I understand will be reported to the legislature in a few days.

If the bills now before me should become laws, it will increase the chartered capital of the banks, of Kentucky $4,400,000, which added to the $3,550,623 untaken in the present banks would make $7,950,623 of chartered bank capital untaken in the state. If the capital should all be taken and paid in, and two dollars in paper for every dollar paid in were issued, it would increase the bank circulation $15,901,246, and to that extent, at least, the community would become indebted; that, added to the present indebtedness to the banks, would make an indebtedness of $36,796,041. Is it prudent thus to increase the indebtedness of the community, by increasing bank issues, when the wants of commerce do not require it?

Heavy indebtedness ought to be avoided by individuals as well as states, if they wish to be free, prosperous and happy. If the bills now before me become laws, and the $4,400,000 allowed by their charters should be paid in, and two dollars for every one paid in were issued, it would increase the bank circulation $8,800,000, which added to the $13,299,000 we now have, would give the banks of Kentucky a paper circulation of $22,099,000. Do the commerce of our state, or the wants of our people, require such a large increase of bank capital? I think not. "Banks add nothing to the capital of a country; the manufacture of printed or written promises to pay adds nothing to a country's wealth."

"Capital is the material on which industry operates, the instruments with which it operates, or the means of sustenance by which it is supported during the operation. The capital of any one country, at any one moment, consists of the amount of these which it then possesses." While banks add nothing to the existing capital of a country, they are capable of rendering existing capital more productive. If they were created by well guarded charters, with an amount of capital sufficient (and no more) to supply the wants of a healthy state of commerce, they would doubtless be advantageous to the country.

Kentucky as a state is eminently distinguished for its agriculture; hence we require less bank capital than a more commercial state of equal wealth. By the census returns of 1850, we have a white population of 761,417. The assessed value of the property of the state in 1853, was $366,957,487. We have over $13,000,000 of bank circulation, to say nothing of the deposits, or the capital used by the various deposit banks, savings banks, insurance companies with banking powers, and private bankers, and $3,550,623 of capital untaken in the present banks. That is certainly bank capital sufficient to supply the legitimate wants of the commerce of our people. An increase of banks or bank capital, at this time, so far from benefitting the people, or the state, would, in my judgment, be injurious to the prosperity of the one, and prejudicial to the best interests of the other.

There is at this time throughout the United States an unhealthy and inflated state of things, caused in a great measure by an excessive issue of bank paper, which must sooner or later result in ruin and bankruptcy, if the excessive issue of bank paper is not arrested. Indeed, nothing but the great influx of gold has kept it off to this time. Other states are increasing their banks and bank capital to an alarming extent, thus hurrying on the disastrous results that must inevitably follow.

The states of Indiana and Illinois have recently largely increased their bank capital. Indiana, until a short time since, had a bank capital of a little over two millions. Forty-eight free banks, with a nominal capital of fifteen millions one hundred thousand dollars, have recently been established in that state. Illinois has largely increased her bank capital, under the free banking system. The paper of the banks of Kentucky has heretofore had a large circulation in these two states. The great increase of bank capital in these states will supply the wants of their people, and to a very great extent drive the paper of the Kentucky banks from them, and leave it to supply the wants of our own people. Should we not pause and reflect, and do what we could to avert the impending danger, instead of adding to the causes which threaten so much injury, and such great destruction to the best interests of the people of our state.

This great increase of banks and bank capital is demanded at a time when the most prudent and sagacious business men are expecting a commercial revulsion—at a time when gold is flowing into the country in large quantities. The receipts of gold from California alone are not less than fifty-five millions annually.

We have received from California, since its annexation to the United States, more than two hundred millions of gold; thus supplying a circulating medium, a constitutional currency of unmistakable uniformity of value.

The following statistics of California gold and gold importations into the United States are taken from the Banker's Magazine for December, 1853:

Deposits of gold in the Mint of the United States and Branch
Mints, from the year 1848, including that year, to the 31st
October, 1853, will, in the aggregate, amount to	$204,886,025
Imports of foreign gold, 1847 to 1852, inclusive, (official)	52,718,681

Total from California and other countries,	$257,604,706

It will be seen from the above calculations that the net increase of gold in the United States since 1846 is $129,780,818.

The currency of the least value that will pass, is the one that always circulates most extensively, and inferior currency always drives out that which is more valuable; hence as you increase the circulation of bank paper, you lessen the circulation of gold and silver.

Everything is high. Labor commands high wages. Every product of the farm and the workshop is commanding high prices. There is not a farmer, mechanic, miner, or manufacturer in the country that cannot command, in cash, high prices for anything and everything he has to sell—which fact fully proves that there is no scarcity of money in the country.

It is not the great laboring and producing classes of the people of Kentucky, so much as the speculators, traders, and capitalists, and their agents and attorneys, that are pressing with so much zeal these bank bills. A large number of the bank charters the legislature has been asked to grant are sought by speculators from other states. That has been openly avowed. They want chartered privileges in our state for the purpose or making profit alone. When commercial revulsions shall come, and there shall be bank suspensions and failures, our people will be left with the depreciated bank paper in their pockets. The great producing classes of our people, with very few exceptions, are not asking an increase of banks. They are quietly pursuing their vocations, and for everything they produce, they get high prices in cash. They want no more banks. When the day of suspensions and failures shall come, the speculators, traders, and stock jobbers, who watch the markets, will have but little of the irredeemable and comparatively worthless trash in their hands; it will be in the hands of the producing classes, whose pursuits withdraw them from the stock markets.

The old men who have retired from business, the widows and orphans, and those whose pursuits withdraw their attention from the stock markets, who, or whose guardians and agents have confided in the solvency of the banks, and invested their means in their stocks, and the laboring classes, who receive the paper for the products of their labor, will be the sufferers; the loss will fall on them. The wily stock jobber will be very apt to be rid of his stock before failing hour arrives.

From Mr. Wayland's book on Political Economy, I extract the following: "The amount lost by the public from the failure of banks is actually enormous. Mr. Gallatin, a most able and competent authority upon this subject, in his pamphlet on the currency, has made the following statement, which, from the character and accuracy of the author, is entitled to full credit. 'We have an account of one hundred and sixty-five banks which have failed between the 1st of January, 1811, and the 1st July, 1830. The capital of one hundred and twenty-nine of them amounted to more than twenty-four millions of dollars, stated as having been paid in. The whole amount may be estimated at nearly thirty millions, and our list may not be complete. The capital of the state banks now existing amounts to about one hundred and ten millions. On a total capital of one hundred and forty millions, the failures have amounted to thirty, or more than one fifth of the whole. Of the actual loss incurred we can give no account. There are instances in which the stockholders by paying for their shares in their own notes, and afterwards redeeming their notes with the stock in their name, suffered no loss, and this loss fell exclusively on the holders of notes and the depositors. In many cases when the whole stock has been lost, the holders of notes, nevertheless, suffered a partial loss. In the most favorable cases, the stockholders lost a considerable portion of the stock, and all the debts will be ultimately paid. But even here there has been a heavy loss to the community, the notes having been generally sold by the holders at depreciated rates when the failure took place. We believe that the pecuniary loss sustained by government, on loans raised during the suspension of specie payments, and from bank failures, exceeded four millions of dollars.'

"Since the above was written the 'United States Bank of Pennsylvania' has failed, and its shares of the par value of one hundred dollars, and which cost the present holders in many cases one hundred and twenty dollars, are selling at the nominal price of five or six dollars. They are in fact considered worthless, and the bills of the bank are selling at sixty cents for the dollar."

"Thus the whole capital of this institution, thirty-five millions of dollars, has in two or three years vanished, and I fear that neither seer nor prophet, nor jury will ever tell us where it is gone, and this mismanagement or fraud was committed by men who were celebrated as models of finance, ability, and disinterested patriotism, and in a city proud of its mercantile faith. It is surely not remarkable if, with such facts recent in their recollection, there should arise, in the minds of the people, a serious distrust of banks." The heavy and ruinous losses and disastrous results that followed the bank failures in Mississippi and other states in 1836, 1837, 1838 and 1840, are fresh in the recollection of all, and need not now be enumerated.

Kentucky has once before passed through the ordeal of bank inflations. During a period of high commercial prosperity, the General Assembly, doubtless with honest convictions of the correctness of its views, passed an act to establish "Independent Banks in this Commonwealth," approved January 26th, 1818. By that act forty Independent Banks were established at as many different points within the commonwealth, with an aggregate capital of $7,920,000; and on the 31st of January of the same year, a Manufacturing Company was incorporated with a capital of $300,000, with banking privileges. It was passed the Governor's veto notwithstanding, and this made the aggregate capital $8,220,000. Nearly all of these banks it is well known went into operation. As soon, however, as the paper was thrown into circulation, those who knew how to profit by confusion, and to speculate upon an ever varying currency, commenced the system of sending the notes home for redemption; and in a very short time, every bank in the state, except perhaps two, suspended payment, and one general scene of commercial distress was presented over the whole state. The first legislature which met after this, immediately passed an act, 16th December, 1819, to suspend sales under executions and decrees in chancery for sixty days, the objections of the Governor notwithstanding. At the same session, February 10th, 1820, the charters of the forty banks, and the Manufacturing Company, were repealed. On the next day an act passed to regulate sales of property under execution—providing that when an indorsement was made, that notes on the Bank of Kentucky or branches would be received, the defendant might replevy for one year, but if the plaintiff failed so to indorse, the defendant might replevy two years. This act was to continue in force until the 1st of March, 1821. Before this act expired the legislature again met, and on the 29th of November, 1820, established the "Bank of the Commonwealth of Kentucky," authorizing an issue of $3,000,000 of irredeemable currency; and a few days afterwards, the "Indorsement and Replevin Laws" were passed. The paper of this bank sunk to half its nominal value. All confidence was destroyed, industry was paralyzed, property of every kind was ruinously depressed, and in that condition our beloved Commonwealth lay prostrated like a fettered giant, with an incubus of debt from which it could not extricate itself.

Such is the lesson experience has taught us; shall we not profit by it? We are now on the high tide of prosperity. Why hazard our progress? The banks of the United States now have a capital of largely over three hundred millions of dollars, which is being rapidly increased. Is it not enough to make sagacious and prudent men pause and reflect before they commence the work of flooding the state with large additional issues of bank paper?

While the present banks afford a sound and uniform currency that will compare favorably with the currency of the banks of any other state, they have, for the purpose of increasing their profits, dealt too much in bills of exchange, and too little in the discounting of notes. The action of the present banks, in this particular, has caused much of the feeling that exists for new banks. Capitalists from without have witnessed the heavy profits they have made by this species of shaving, and they are anxious to obtain corporate privileges in Kentucky, in order that they may reap similar harvests. The banks, while they existed, I dare say, would make money; but could the business of the country stand such a heavy draft upon its labor and capital?

No bank should, in my judgment, be allowed to issue any note under five dollars. The effect of large issues of small notes is to drive coin from circulation. The present banks should be compelled, so far as it can be done, without an infraction of their charters, to deal less in bills of exchange, and more in notes. The issue of notes under five dollars should, if possible, be prohibited.

Whilst it affords me pleasure to say that the present banks are in a sound and healthy condition, and that they furnish a good currency, candor and truth compel me to condemn, in the most earnest manner, the practice they have of using so much of their means in bills of exchange, instead of accommodating the people by loans on notes. The premiums or rates of exchange charged by them, have been too great. The exorbitant rates of exchange charged and received, have induced them to deal more largely in bills than they should have done. It has been the custom of the banks, under the color of exchange, to charge upon bills a usury dependent for amount upon the length of time the bills have to run, and not upon the intrinsic difference in the value of the money at the point drawn upon. And more than this, they exact a similar usury between points so contiguous to each other, that there is really no appreciable difference in the exchange. By this means they use the larger portion of their means in dealing in bills of exchange. Whilst the dealing in bills is most profitable, it is most hazardous. The notes offered for discount are usually upon the farmers and the most solvent business men. This species of shaving drives such customers from the banks, and leaves the reckless speculator to pay the interest that the more prudent and solvent business men will not pay. And thus for the prospect of gain the security of the banks is hazarded, and the most reliable and solvent customers driven from them.

Large amounts of bills brought from distant points, are bought by our banks to the exclusion of the business of our own people, for whose accommodation the banks were created. The banks more recently established have used a larger ratable amount of their means in bills than the old banks. Since the banks more recently established have gone into operation, this practice, so far from being lessened, has been greatly increased.

There is another consideration why we should be exceedingly careful not to increase to an injurious extent the bank capital of the state. The state owns nearly two millions of stock in the present banks. These stocks form a large part of the sinking fund, which is dedicated to the payment of the principal and interest of the state debt. The profits arising from these stocks constitute the largest item of the receipts of the sinking fund. The taxes upon the stock of the banks, and the dividends from the state stock, pay largely over one-half the annual interest of our state debt, whilst the stock could at any time be converted into money at a handsome premium. If by an unwise and injudicious policy, the credit of the present banks should be injured, or in a great commercial crisis they should fail, the consequence would be very deleterious to the state, as well as to the people, for the failure of those banks would compel a resort to increased taxation, to meet the interest and principal of our state debt, at a time when the people would be ill able to bear it.

We have now a healthy and sound currency. We are in an eminently prosperous condition. We have a bank circulation of over thirteen millions—our progress is steady and healthy. We have banking facilities sufficient to supply all the wants of a healthy commerce. Why should we wish to hazard our present prosperous condition by increasing banks or bank capital. Banks add nothing to the capital of a country. They increase the indebtedness of the people, and generate a spirit of wild and reckless speculation, that but too often results in ruin. The inflated state of affairs, brought about by too much bank capital, causes the people to give up in a measure the two great elements of a nation's wealth, industry and economy. A spirit of speculation and extravagance usually attends an unhealthy and inflated state of things in the commercial world; and distress, bankruptcy and ruin are sure to follow. When the country is tending to this, all wise and prudent men should attempt to avert the evil by every means in their power. Surely it is not the part of wisdom so to shape our policy as to bring about or hasten the result.

This is a question of deep and vital interest to the people of Kentucky. I have endeavored to give it that calm and impartial consideration that its importance demands. I have no interest in the question, other than that which attaches to every citizen of the Commonwealth—the happiness and prosperity of our common country.

The constitution declares that "every bill which shall have passed both houses, shall be presented to the Governor. If he approve, he shall sign it; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated, who shall enter the objections at large upon their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such a reconsideration, a majority of all the members elected to that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house, by which it shall likewise be considered, and if approved by a majority of all the members elected to that house, it shall be a law."

I do not approve this bill, and cannot sign it. If, in your judgment, I should be wrong, you have the power to pass it, notwithstanding my objections.

If it should become a law, the responsibility will rest alone with you.

Having great respect for the patriotism and intelligence of the General Assembly, I regret that I cannot concur with them. Entertaining the views I do, I would be untrue to the people who, for a time, have partially confided their interest to my keeping, and false to myself, were I to approve this bill. A stern sense of duty compels me to return it to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, with my objections to its becoming a law.

When the time shall come, and I believe it will come at no distant day, if the wild and reckless spirit of increasing banks and bank paper is not arrested—when the banks shall fail, and millions of an irredeemable and worthless currency shall be in the hands of the people—when the rich shall be reduced, and the poor shall be oppressed, I will have the satisfaction of knowing that I did what I could to avert the calamity.

The committee on Internal Improvement reported a bill incorporating the Falls City Bridge Company, which was read the first time as follows, viz:

§ 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That Geo. W. Dunlap, T. C. Coleman, Jas. S. Lithgow, William Watkins, Jas. S. Speed, Daniel Lavielle, Bland Ballard, Sanders Shanks, D. T. Monsarrat, Wm. Riddle, Thos. A. Hurley, Oscar Wilders, T. Y. Brent, Jabez Baldwin, Paul Vilier, B. Musselman, Andrew Graham, Richardson Burge, Isham Henderson, Isaac P. Miller, and George Stealy, of the city of Louisville, with their associates, be and they are hereby created a body politic and corporate, by the name of the Falls City Bridge Company, for the purpose of erecting and constructing a bridge across the Ohio river, between the city of Louisville, and a point opposite in the state of Indiana; and they, and their associates and successors, shall continue and have perpetual succession, and by that name and style are hereby made as capable, in law, as natural persons, to contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered, in this commonwealth and elsewhere, in all courts of law and equity; to make, have, and use a common seal, and the same to break, alter, and annul at pleasure; they shall also have the power to purchase and hold as much real estate as will be necessary for the site of said bridge, or the sites for piers, abutments, toll houses, and suitable avenues leading to said bridge; also, to borrow money, not exceeding the capital stock mentioned in this act; but not to have or exercise the privilege of loaning money, or issuing bills or notes on banking principles; also, to ordain and establish such by laws, ordinances and regulations as shall be necessary for the well being and government of said corporation, not contrary to the laws of this commonwealth, the state of Indiana, or of the United States.

§ 2. That the capital stock of said company shall consist of one million dollars, divided into ten thousand shares of one hundred dollars each, to be subscribed for and sold in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

§ 3. That within six months after the passage of this act, and the confirmation thereof by the state of Indiana, the persons before named, or a majority of them, shall cause a public advertisement to be made of the time and place of opening the books for the subscription of stock of said company, which books shall be kept open under the direction of said persons or a majority of them, not less than one nor more than four months. If, however, at the closing of the subscription it shall be found that a greater number of shares than ten thousand have been taken, then and in that case, the persons before named, or a majority of them, shall proceed to reduce the number of shares in an equitable and just proportion among the subscribers, not reducing any one below five shares; and they shall have the right to demand and receive from every person subscribing for stock of said company, a sum not exceeding ten nor less than one dollar on each share subscribed at the time of making the subscription; and no subscription shall be deemed valid unless such payment be made, if required by the condition of the subscription.

§ 4. That when one-fifth of said shares shall have been subscribed, the said persons, or a majority of them, shall advertise a meeting of the subscribers at Louisville, Jeffersonville, and New Albany, in the state of Indiana, giving at least ten days notice of the time and place of such meeting, and the stockholders shall thereupon proceed to elect a president and six directors, and those persons named in the first section of this act, who shall not then be stockholders, shall cease to be members of this corporation; and the said shareholders shall also proceed to fix what compensation the said president and directors shall be entitled to receive, if any be allowed; also, to ordain and adopt any such by-laws for the permanent organization of said corporation as they may deem needful; at which meeting each shareholder shall be entitled to one vote for each share to the number of fifteen, and to one vote for every five shares over fifteen, to the number of fifty, and to one vote for every ten shares exceeding fifty; and at all subsequent elections or general meetings of the stockholders, no shares shall be voted on that have not stood in the name of the person claiming to vote, at least three months previous to the day of election or meeting; and that the shares in said company may be voted on by proxies duly recorded, conforming to the foregoing regulations.

§ 5. That the president and directors first chosen shall hold their offices until the first Monday in May ensuing said election, and until others are chosen in their places; and so on the first Monday in May in each year, the stockholders of said company shall meet at their office in Louisville, or at some place to be designated by the president, and then proceed to elect a president and six directors, who shall be shareholders and residents of the states of Kentucky and Indiana, who shall hold their offices for one year, and until their successors are elected. Public notice of such elections and meetings shall be given by the clerk or secretary of the company, in some newspaper published in Louisville, Jeffersonville or New Albany, at least ten days previous thereto; at the annual meetings a statement of the affairs of the company shall be made out by the president and directors and presented to such meetings, and such dividends of the profits declared as shall be deemed advisable.

§ 6. That the concerns of said corporation shall be under the control of said president and directors, and the president and three directors shall constitute a quorum to transact business, or in the absence of the president any four of the directors, one of whom shall act as president pro tempore. The president and directors, after they have been duly elected as aforesaid, may make such assessments on the share of stock in said company as are subscribed, payable at such time as they may deem advisable, with such conditions of forfeiture for non-compliance, not exceeding the amount of stock delinquent, as they may deem proper. They are to open and renew the subscription for the shares not already subscribed, or sell them and any forfeited shares as they may think best for the company: Provided, however, That no stock be sold by them for less than the par value thereof.

§ 7. That it shall be the duty of the president and directors to appoint a clerk or secretary, and cause a record of their proceedings to be kept; they may also appoint a treasurer, and such other officers and agents as they may think needful for promoting said undertaking, and allow them such compensation as they may agree on; to make contracts and to do all things necessary to carry them into immediate effect, and to require and take such bonds, or other security in their corporate capacity, from any person or persons they may so appoint and contract with; and in the event of death, resignation, or vacancy from any cause, of the president or any director, the survivors, or a majority of them shall supply such vacancy until the next annual election, by the election of another stockholder.

§ 8. That the president and directors shall have the right to fix the rates of toll for passing over said bridge, and to collect the same from all and every person or persons passing thereon, with their goods, carriages, or animals of every description or kind: Provided however, That the said company shall lay before the General Assembly of this commonwealth a correct statement of the cost of said bridge, and an annual statement of the tolls received for passing the same, and the cost of keeping the said bridge in repair, and of the other expenses of the company, and the said president and directors shall, from time to time, reduce the rates of toll, so that the net profits of said bridge shall not exceed twelve and a half per centum per annum, after the proper deductions are made for repairs. Toll gates shall be kept and toll received at each end of the bridge; and the rates of toll shall be posted up in some conspicuous place where the toll is demanded.

§ 9. That certificates of stock in said company shall be issued under the seal of said corporation, in form and manner designated by the by-laws of said company, which shall designate the mode of transfer.

§ 10. That said company shall be held liable by any appropriate action, for all injuries sustained by vessels or boats, and rafts of plank, timber or other lumber passing up or down said river, in consequence of the construction of said bridge, unless the injury shall be produced by the carelessness or neglect of the persons managing such vessels, rafts, or boats; and it shall be unlawful for said company, their agents or officers, to suffer or permit any slave or slaves to pass over said bridge without the consent of the owner or owners of such slave or slaves, given in the manner required by law, or as the same may be prescribed from time to time, in passing a slave or slaves over the ferries on the Ohio river from the Kentucky to the Indiana shore; and said company shall be liable to pay to said owner or owners, for every slave so permitted or suffered to pass, contrary to the provisions of this act, the full value of said slave or slaves, to be ascertained by the verdict of a jury, together with twenty per centum thereon to be assessed by the judgment of the court, and all costs of suits, which shall be recovered as other debts.

§ 11. That it shall be sufficient service of process on the corporation hereby created, to execute a summons or other process on the president, clerk, or treasurer, or any one of the directors of the company, and process so executed, shall authorize judgment at the first term, as in other cases, if no appearance should be entered or plea filed: Provided, however, The president, secretary or treasurer, and three directors shall reside in Kentucky, and either the one or the other of those officers with the three directors, shall reside in Indiana.

§ 12. If any person or persons shall willfully do any act or thing whatever, whereby the said bridge or bridges, or any part thereof, or anything attached thereto is injured or damaged, the said person or persons so offending shall each forfeit and pay three times the amount of the damage thus done or sustained, with costs of suit, recoverable before any court of competent jurisdiction, by suit in the name of said company, and shall likewise be subject to punishment in the same manner and to the same extent as is prescribed by law in like cases; and if any person shall pass, or attempt to pass such bridge or bridges, without paying the toll, if there be any person present to receive the same, he or she shall forfeit and pay three times the amount of the tolls, recoverable before any justice of the peace or police judge, and if any person or persons shall willfully set fire to said bridge or bridges, or either of them, or any part thereof, or cause the same or either of them to be burned, in whole or in part, such person or persons so offending, shall be held and deemed guilty of arson and punished accordingly.

§ 13. If the owners of any land necessary for the abutments, the site, or any avenue leading thereto, so as to connect the said bridge or bridges with the streets of said city and Indiana shore or either side of said river, shall object to sell said land at such price as the board may think reasonable, it shall be lawful for said board to apply to the mayor of the city of Louisville, should the land be situated in the city of Louisville, or to the proper authorities of the state of Indiana, for a writ of ad quod damnum to issue, and which may be issued and directed to the marshal of the city in which the land may be situated, requiring him to summon a jury of free holders of the city, who shall be disinterested; and said marshal shall have power to supply, by summons, other persons to act as jurors, if needed, qualified as aforesaid; and the jurors shall be sworn by the said marshal, well and truly to enquire the value of the land to be condemned and the damage thereby resulting to the owner thereof, according to the facts and evidence submitted to them by the parties. The verdict of the jury when rendered, signed and sealed by said jury, shall be forthwith returned to said mayor, and if no legal and valid exception be taken thereto, the same shall be entered of record by him; and whenever, or any time within one year thereafter, the amount so assessed shall be paid, the title of the land applied for and thus condemned, shall vest in said company; and the mayor aforesaid, who shall have issued the writ, shall execute a deed of conveyance thereof, which shall pass the legal title: Provided, No such public street or avenue in the city of Louisville shall be taken without the consent of the city council.

§ 24. That nothing contained in this act shall be so construed as to authorize the said company to construct any bridge which may obstruct the free and common navigation of the Ohio river.

Ordered, That said bill be read a second time.

The rule of the House, constitutional provision, and second and third readings of said bill having been dispensed with, and the same being engrossed,

Resolved, That the title thereof be as aforesaid.

Mr. M. C. Johnson, from the same committee, to whom was referred a bill from the Senate, entitled, an act to amend the 2d section, 48th chapter of the Revised Statutes, entitled, Idiots and Lunatics, reported the same without amendment.

And the question being taken on ordering said bill to be read a third time, it was decided in the negative, and so the said bill was disagreed to.

The House then took up for consideration the resolutions read and laid on the table by Mr. Bates on the 13th of February.

Mr. Morehead moved the following as a substitute for said resolutions, viz:

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States have now under consideration a bill organizing temporary governments for the territories of Nebraska and Kansas, in which is contained a clause repealing the restriction of slavery which was imposed by the eighth section of the act preparatory to the admission of Missouri as a state into the Union; and whereas, Kentucky feels a deep and abiding interest in a proposition so consistent with the equal rights of all the states. Therefore,

1. Resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That while the people of this state, from their known devotion to the concord and harmony which ought to prevail among states belonging to the same federal union, have ever manifested their willingness to acquiesce in and abide by what is called the Missouri compromise, we yet feel it to be an imperious duty to express our solemn conviction that the restriction of slavery thereby imposed was in derogation of the just rights of a part of the states, and if not a violation of the letter of the constitution, in conflict with the genius and spirit of our government.

2. That we hold it a fundamental principle of republican government, and an inherent right inseparably attached to popular sovereignty, that the people alone, in all territories, when they form their state constitution, have the exclusive power to decide for themselves whether they shall or shall not have domestic slavery.

3. That the federal government is one of limited powers, and we deny that any power has been, either expressly or by implication, delegated to it to prescribe what shall or shall not be property, either in the territories or elsewhere; and we solemnly protest against a common government for all the states assuming or maintaining an attitude of hostility to the property of a part of the states.

4. That the existing restriction of slavery north of the parallel of latitude of 36.30, in the territory acquired from France, is altogether inconsistent with the foregoing principles, and a departure from the true theory which ought to prevail in the establishment of the governments in question, as well as all other territorial governments.

5. That the true principles of popular sovereignty, and a rightful limitation of federal authority, were made the basis of the adjustment measures of 1850; and in a spirit of fraternal kindness, we invoke the patriotism of our brothers of the north to remove a restriction inconsistent with those principles, as well as with the just and equal rights of all the states.

Ordered, That the further consideration of said resolutions and substitute be postponed until Saturday at 12 o'clock, and that the Public Printer forthwith print 150 copies of said resolutions and substitute for the use of the members of the General Assembly.

Ordered, That the committee of the Whole be discharged from the further consideration of the bill from the Senate, entitled, an act to aid in carrying out a general Turnpike Road system in the county of Franklin.

Ordered, That said bill be read a third time.

The rule of the House, constitutional provision, and third reading of said bill having been dispensed with,

Resolved, That said bill do pass, and that the title thereof be as aforesaid.

Ordered, That the committee of the Whole be discharged from the further consideration of a bill to incorporate the Pikeville Turnpike Road Company.

The said bill was then amended.

Ordered, That said bill as amended be engrossed and read a third time.

Resolved, That said bill do pass, and that the title thereof be as aforesaid.

A message was received from the Senate, announcing that they had received a message from the Governor vetoing a bill from the Senate, entitled, an act to amend the charter of the Deposit Bank of Covington, and that they had passed said bill, the Governor's objections to the contrary notwithstanding.

Mr. Fitch, from the committee on Education, to whom was referred a bill from the Senate, entitled, an act for the benefit of the Common School System, reported the same with an amendment as a substitute for said bill.

The said bill reads as follows, viz:

§ 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That it shall be the duty of the sheriffs and other officers conducting the next annual election, to be held on the first Monday in August next, to open a poll in the various precincts in their respective counties, and take the sense of the qualified voters of this commonwealth upon the propriety and expediency of imposing an additional tax of three cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property in the state, for the purpose of increasing the Common School Fund of Kentucky.

§ 2. That it shall be the duty of the several sheriffs conducting said election, to propound distinctly to each voter the question: "Are you for, or against, levying an additional tax of three cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property, to increase the Common School Fund?" If said voter shall answer in the affirmative, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the election to record his vote in favor of levying the tax for the purposes aforesaid. If he shall answer in the negative, it shall be the duty of said clerk to record his vote against it.

§ 3. That it shall be the duty of the several sheriffs and other returning officers, to make out a correct list of the vote required to be taken under the provisions of this act, and cause the same to be delivered to the Secretary of State, and upon a failure to do so, shall be fined in the sum of one thousand dollars, to be recovered against them as other fines are recovered under the existing laws regulating elections in this state.

§ 4. That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State, to report to the next General Assembly, within ten days after it commences, a statement of the vote directed to be taken under the provisions of this act.

§ 5. After a short time the messenger returned with said bill.

Mr. Reasor moved to reconsider the vote passing said bill.

Mr. Woodson moved to lay said motion on the table.

And the question being taken thereon, it was decided in the affirmative.

Mr. W. E. Hall read and laid on the table the following preamble and resolutions, viz:

WHEREAS, It is represented to the General Assembly that the Kentucky State Medical Society have prepared, by various committees of that society, reports of great value to the profession and to the state at large, upon the subject of vital statistics, the history and mode of management of Hospitals and Penitentiaries, the relation of diseases to particular geological formations, the lives of distinguished medical men, &c., and that the said society is unable to print and publish a sufficient number of said reports for general distribution. Therefore,

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That the Public Printer be authorized and he is hereby directed to print one thousand copies of said reports, of which six hundred copies shall be for the use of said society; one copy shall be forwarded by the Secretary of State to each clerk of a circuit or county court in this common-

Mr. H. T. Wilson, from the committee on the Expenditures of the Board of Internal Improvement, made the following report, viz:

The committee on Expenditures of the Board of Internal Improvement, respectfully beg leave to make the following report:

Your committee have taken great pains in the examination of the report of the President of the Board, together with the actual amount expended and received, and, as far as your committee were capable of judging, we found the same correct, and we confidently believe that all the disbursements, as exhibited by the board, have been made in fulfillment of stipulated contracts in consideration of services actually rendered, and other demands in furtherance of the system of Internal Improvement, under their control and management.

For the whole amount of the gross costs of expenditures, and gross receipts, your committee would beg leave to refer you to the annual report of the President of the board.

Too much encomium cannot be bestowed on Dr. D. R. Haggard, the President of the board, for the indefatigable energy, wisdom and economy, which he has so clearly evinced in the management of the same, as the following statements will clearly prove: the average expenses upon the Kentucky river previous to his induction into office was the net sum of $15,981 91, whilst the average expenses upon the same since his induction into office is the sum of $9,101 37, thereby saving to the state the sum of $6,880 53½. The average expenditures upon Green and Barren rivers, for the last two years before his induction, was the sum of $15,339 09, whilst the average of the same rivers under his management for the last two years, was $11,307 97, thereby saving annually the sum of $4,031 12.

When the President of the board entered upon the duties of his office, it was confidently asserted and believed that the Kentucky river would be so injured in its business operations by the extension of the railroad from Frankfort to Louisville, that it would fail to be a source of revenue to the Sinking Fund, (and the Green and Barren rivers for the last three years before his connection with the board exceeded the receipts $15,-053 11.)

Your committee are pleased to say that within the last two years there has been paid into the Treasury, as net proceeds from this river, the sum of $17,946 39, and from the Green and Barren rivers for the last two years and six months $17,440 49. The aggregate amount of money paid by the President into the Sinking Fund, and debts paid by him at the time he took charge of the office, is $35,286 59.

The amount of salary this officer receives is $1,000, per annum. When we take into consideration the actual value of the services as above, and when we further take into consideration the additional fact that the President of the board bestows his almost entire time to the duties of his office, so deranging his business at home that he is dependent almost entirely upon his salary for a means of support, your committee believe his salary is too low, and earnestly and unanimously recommend that for the remainder of his term, there shall be an increase of his salary at the rate of three hundred dollars per annum. Therefore,

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky,
That the sum of three hundred dollars be paid in addition to the present salary to the President of the Board of Internum, during his present term of office.

§ 2. That in all orders and decrees rendered by the courts of this commonwealth subjecting slaves to sale for the payment of debts or other purposes, the court rendering such order or decree shall require the mother and her child or children under five years of age, where they are the property of the same person or persons, to be sold together to the same purchaser.

§ 3. That where a husband and wife who are slaves, be subjected by any such order or decree as mentioned in the second section of this act, the court shall require them to be sold together to the same purchaser, unless for good cause shown in the pleadings before said court, and sustained by satisfactory proof, it appear that it would materially damage the interests of the owner or owners of said slaves to have them sold together, in which case the court may admit of their separate sale.

§ 4. That on all judgments and decrees under which executions shall be issued and levied on a slave woman having a child or children under the age of five years, the property of the same person or persons as the mother, said execution or executions shall likewise be levied on the child or all of said children, and they shall be sold together to the same purchaser; and where execution issued as aforesaid shall be levied on any slave child under the age aforesaid, which shall have a slave mother, the property of the same owner or owners, said execution shall likewise be levied on the mother, and they shall be sold together; and if she have other children under the same age, the property of the same owner, they shall likewise be levied on and sold under the same execution, at the same time and to the same purchaser; and a sheriff or other officer selling under execution, for a violation of this act, shall be subject to the same penalties as owners of slaves under the first section.

§ 5. That one-third of every fine imposed under this act shall go to the attorney for the commonwealth prosecuting the same, and the other two-thirds shall go into the treasury and constitute a part of the fund set apart for the benefit of common schools.
